Slots, Bookies Found at Spa

HOT SPRINGS, (AP) — County and city police yesterday, raided a downtown establishment, arrested three men and confiscated two slot machines and book-making equipment.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Sam Richards and Police Chief John Ermey said the gambling house was in a second— story room at 813½ Central Avenue. Charges of operating a gambling house was filed against James T. Barker, A. B. Abbott and C. F. Mahoney, all of Hot Springs.

The three were released on bonds of $250 each pending preliminary hearing in Municipal Court Saturday.

The officers said between 25 and 40 persons were found in the establishment.

Richards said the afternoon raid was instituted on a search warrant signed by Cicuit Judge C. Floyd Hull.

William Ransome Gall Baker is said to be the only to have a television station named for him. It's N. Y.

Uncle Charged in Death of Girl

RIVERSIDE, Calif., — Acting Dist. Atty. Elwood Rich says he will file first degree murder charges today against John Chauncey of Lawrence 37, held in the slaying of Kathryn Knodel, 16, Lawrence's niece.

Rich said yesterday he will seek a grand jury indictment against Lawrence in about two weeks.

Funeral services for the battered and ravished girl were held yesterday at Redlands, but burial was delayed to make sure officials have all the medical information they need.

The girl's body was found near Palm Springs early last Wednesday. Lawrence has admitted hitting Kathryn on the head with a rock but insists she was already dead and he was trying to make it look as if she had been run over by a car. She was killed accidentally, Lawrence says, when struck by a jack handle as she helped to fix a tire.

Fair Enough

The American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations have had the effrontery to invite the two candidates for the presidency of this socialist republic to come, hat-in-hand, to their autumn consistories and seek their favor. These are organizations operating under special political license from the Roosevelt-Truman administration. Both candidates know this to be the fact but neither of them will have the honor and courage to express the proper resentment and both will treat these invitations as commands. Both nominees are afraid to declare that these bad bums are outlaws against the American state and its people and to promise the nation and the people deliverance from their ruthless power.

The AF of L executive council or cabinet recently received with a straight face a report from a special committee revealing the fact that racketeers had managed to obtain charters in a few unimportant locals and had been extorting money from workers and employers. Our press treated this as hot news and played it straight without reference to the sordid record established in the last 15 years proving beyond denial that the AF of L was a licensing authority for criminals of the lowest types.

The executive council of the AF of L is a band of political highbinders which in many proven cases has taken aggressive action against rank-and-file workers who were driven to the folly of opposing the rule of gangsters put over them by the authority of the AF of L.

For many years its attorney-general, so to speak, was Joe Padway, a greedy and thoroughly corrupt ambulance chaser from Milwaukee who ran up an enormous practice as defender of such rogues as Browne and Bioff and George Scalise, known to him to be agents of the Capone mob. Padway brazenly showed himself at a convention of the Browne-Bioff underworld chapter of the AF of L in Louisville and sang rapturous praises of these two vermin. He had his price and they paid it, and the AF of L endorsed his conduct.

Browne was a member of the executive council or cabinet and Dan Tobin, of the teamsters, frankly admitting his own knowledge that Browne was an underworld criminal, explained that he would not think of denouncing him because protocol in this gang which now commands the nominees, forbade one racketeer to embarrass another lest reprisals lead to general embarrassment. If he had called Browne a crook and tried to liberate Browne's subjects from persecution, Browne and other crooks would holler up the fact that Tobin had thrown a whole council of locals of the teamsters' union in Cincinnati into permanent receivership under a loathesome old thief named Brocky Farrell with plenipotentiary powers from Tobin, himself.

Farrell's reign lasted 25 years, during which his subjects had no voice in the affairs of their unions and fell steadily lower in the scale of wages and living.

Farrell was responsible only to Tobin and he became notorious as the official spendthrift at the drunken galas of the heirarchy, squandering with the lavish hand of a bush-league Paul Hoffman money wrung from the hearts and marrow of degraded Cincinnati truckmen and their wives and children.

When, at last, his reign was ended by a court order, that order, with sweet consideration for the political might of the boss racketeers of unionism, quietly dissolved the situation without awarding damages to the victims. And Padway, as Tobin's counsel, was included in the order for a fee of $5,000.

For more than 15 years I have been pounding the scoundrels of unionism in both of the great gangs, AF of L and CIO. It is not quite to the point to say, as some do, that if I had not been right I should have been jailed away long ago for abusing virtuous men. It is straight to the point, however, to say that extortion, persecution and degradation of millions of union subjects, many of them unwilling captives, are inherent in the very nature of these evil societies and are brazenly defended as just powers of unions by the very men whom Eisenhower and Stevenson will gladly truckle to.

The "committee" which reported, as though in shocked astonishment, the presence of a few racketeers newly "discovered" in the AF of L included William L. McFetridge, president of the building service employees' union. This mealy faker succeeded George Scalise when Scalise was deposed by the official diligence of Tom Dewey in his old, conscientious phase.

McFetridge, was, until then, a subordinate official in this foul underworld crew. He now enjoys a spurious reputation as a brave man who fought the mob at great risk. The truth is that he kept his mouth shut and took no action to clean the gangsters out. He had a soft job and was content.

Inquiring about old thieves in Chicago recently I remarked to a case-hardened cop who had specialized in union criminality the where-abouts of Umbrella Mike Boyle, long ago denounced by the federal courts as a betrayer of labor and a grafter and all-around crook. His union was the electrical brotherhood of the AF of L. Surely, I thought, this incredible rogue must have been eliminated by now.

"Oh, no," the policeman said, "Mike is down in Washington in the grand headquarters."

This union, incidentally, has established scholarships in the electricians' trade for deserving young men in the saintly name of William E. Hogan, who was sent to Sing Sing prison for robbing the widows' and orphans' fund, paroled and promptly reinstated for life in the same fiduciary jobs.

This commentary is a practice swing in preparation for my report to the Vatican for the information of the pope on the true, foul nature of an American phenomenon as requested by the holy father's chief advisor on labor.

HOMETOWN, U. S. A., (AP) — The Peebles, like many an American family today, are a house divided. Wilbur, the country's most average citizen, and his wife, Trellis Mae, used to quarrell over only one thing — her ambition to own a mink coat.

But that was before Wilbur went to the Republican convention and came home in favor of Gen. Eisenhower, and Trellis Mae attended the Democratic convention and returned an ardent rooter for Gov. Stevenson.

Now they are separated by a new yawning chasm— party politics.

Wilbur awoke the other morning in a cramped position on the living room sofa, to which he had been exiled by Trellis Mae after he referred slightingly to Stevenson as "a Truman in short pants." His wife, her hair still in metal curlers, sat in his favorite chair studying the newspaper.

"How about breakfast, honey" said Wilbur. "I'm starving."

"Make it yourself, you Republican— you believe in individual enterprise," replied Trellis Mae. "And don't burn the toast. I have to catch up on the political news."

Wilbur meekly got up, showered, shaved, dressed, and fixed breakfast for two. Trellis Mae joined him at the table, put down the newspaper, and said:

"Well, he's done it again."

Her husband went on morosely munching his toast.

"I say, he's done it again:" said Trellis Mae more loudly.

"Who?" said Wilbur, unable to resist the bait.

"As if you didn't know, Ha, ha, Hal Stevenson— of course."

"Has he attacked that mess in Washington again?"

"Don't be so funny," said Trellis Mae. "He says your pal Ike is up to his knees in a bucket of eels. Ha, ha, ha! What's the matter with Ike's campaign anyway? It's stalled."

"Ike's just getting into gear," replied Wilbur stoutly. "He likes to plan his campaigns instead of going off half— cocked. When he really hits the Democrats it'll be another Normandy landing."

"All I can say," remarked Trellis Mae, "is that right now he is approaching victory with the speed of erosion."

"I really don't understand you," said Wilbur, trying dignity. "Your father was a Republican, your grandfather was a Republican, and you were a Republican until last month. You don't want to be a turncoat, do you?"

"Look who's talking," answered his wife. "Who voted for Roosevelt three times? You! Who said when he got out of the army he'd never vote for a man who wore a uniform? You!"

"That was before they nominated Ike," said Wilbur. "Can't a man change his mind?"

"Can't a woman?"

"Sure, but Ike is a new broom. He's got what the country needs. He is a real man of action. Stevenson is just a phrase-maker. Anybody can make a high-sounding phrase."

"Oh, can they?" demanded Trellis Mae. "All right, Wilbur. You make one. Right now. Quick."

Wilbur stard at her. His mouth opened and closed, opened and closed again.

"Uh-uh-uh," he spluttered. "Women have no darn business talking politics."

"That isn't a new phrase," said Trellis Mae. "That is a platitude, my love."

Wilbur made a final attempt to convert her.

"I ask you one thing— just one thing," he said. "What has Adlai Stevenson got that Ike doesn't have more of?"

"Me!" said Trellis Mae triumphantly.

Wilbur looked at his wife, shook his head, threw down his napkin, and trudged off to work. November— and peace— seemed a long way off.

Detroit Case Cited as One Smoothed Over

WASHINGTON, (AP) — House investigators today charged that the Justice Department has been "most dilatory" in some prosecutions and cited a Detroit war fraud case as a "typical example."

Counsel Robert A. Collier laid before a judiciary subcommittee a number of documents dealing with the Norman E. Miller and Associates, Inc. case which came up in 1944 and closed in 1951 without prosecution or recovery of government funds.

Collier said Miller was indicted July 14, 1944 on six counts alleging fruad in that he had "knowingly and fraudulently charged in direct time as direct time for his employes in performing under certain government contracts."

In addition to the indictment, Collier said a civil suit was filed by the government seeking recovery of $36,000.

"Despite the fact that in its early phases the case was described by the justice attorneys as 'one of the best' that the department had." Collier said, "action was delayed through various devices for over six years at which time both suits were dropped."

Collier told the committee that its staff, after a review of numerous cases in Justice Department files, decided "it is to the best interests" that it demonstrate publicly how dilatory the department has been.

Plane Brings Soldier to His Stricken Family

By HENRY SUPPLE

SALEM, Mass., (AP) — A grim-faced Nebraska soldier stepped from a Coast Guard mercy plane today in a relay race home to his tragedy stricken family

Tech. Sgt. Charles R. Buggy, of Winebago, Neb., stepped off the mercy plane at 9:23 a.m., (CST), a little more than three hours after he was plucked from the troop transport Gen. Alexander Patch 500 miles at sea in the Atlantic ocean.

The Patch was New York bound from Bremerhaven, Germany.

The husky, moustached soldier, a veteran of World War II who re-enlisted, already has lost one of his two children to polio.

His other child is ill of the same disease.

His wife faces critical surgery for a spinal ailment.

"I appreciate it an awful lot," Buggy told the Coast Guard crew which flew so far to sea to pick him up.

He blinked as he added:

"I hope everything is all right at home."

Buggy said he first learned of the illness at his midwestern home yesterday noon.

A first mercy plane from Westover Air Force Base, Mass., alighted on the water near the transport last night, but was disabled when it collided with a life boat lowered from the ship.

The second mercy flight left Salem in the middle of the night, and contacted the transport at dawn.

Buggy was whisked immediately by automobile to the Beverly airport eight miles away where he was taken in a small plane to the Westover Air Force Base for transfer to a Nebraska bound military plane.

Rayburn and Johnson Rally for Stevenson

DALLAS, Tex., (AP) —Speaker Sam Rayburn and U. S. Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson rallied around the Democratic banner of Adlai Stevenson today. Others of their fellow Texans did too.

But the cry to put Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower's name on the Texas Democratic ticket continued.

Johnson and Rayburn announced yesterday their advocacy of Stevenson's Democratic presidential bid in the face of opposing stands by Gov. Allan Shivers and Atty. Gen. Price Daniel, Democratic nominee for U.S. senator to succeed Tom Connally.

oth Shivers and Daniel have expressed personal opposition to Stevenson's candidacy because the illinois governor said he agreed with President Truman in advocating federal ownership of the supposedly oilrich off-shore tide lands. Shivers also stand refelcted opinions that would likely lead him to follow the doctrines of what Shivers called "Trumanism."

Johnson said that while he did not agree with Stevenson's stand for federal ownership of the tie lands he would back the nominee of the National Democratic party. Rayburn at his home in Bonham said, "I indorse Sen. Johnson's statement fully."

Two other veteran Democrats, Rep. Lindley Beckworth of Gladewater and John C. Calhoun, former state Democratic Executive Committee chairman, also came out for Stevenson.

Dulles Attacks 'Termites' in Government

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) John Foster Dulles today attacked "termites" in government and declared a greater measure of patriotism is needed among all in authority as "we look into the awful abyss of atomic and hydrogen war."

In a speech prepared for the Nation convention of Amvets, the tional convention of Amvets, the viser declared:

"Termites can destroy the noble edifice that our forebearers built. They must be rooted out, and the loyalty which qualified their successors must be something more positive than the negative virtue of not being a known member of the Communist party."

Dulles told the World War II veterans:

"When I speak of those 'in authority,' I have in mind not only the handful of conspicious men at the top, but also the hundreds of thousands of government servants in all branches of public service. When government is so big that it

Hempstead Melons for Hospital Veterans

WATERMELONS FOR FT. ROOTS-VET. HOSP. DONATED BY V.F.W. POST 4511 HOPE ARK.

War veterans at Ft. Roots Hospital near Little Rock, Sunday enjoyed some 200 choice Hempstead watermelons which were taken to them by the local Ramsey-Cargile VFW post. Each year the VFW takes a load of melons to the hospitalized veterans.

Most of the melons were donated by Hempstead growers — Ervin Jones, O. D. Middlebrooks, W. H. Light, J. W. Hairston, Albert Smith, John Lloyd and Claud O'Steen. Trucks to haul them were furnished by Midwest Dairy Co. and Standard Auto Co. of Hope.

Melon Season on Last Legs, Yield Fair

The watermelon season in this section is on its last legs and only a few late ones are being sold locally. Truck loads, so prominent only a few days ago, are a thing of the past now.

Despite weather conditions — the driest season in years — production in this county was about 75 per cent normal. Larger acreage was offset by the reduction in yield.

Growers who normally produced 15,000 pounds of melons last year got only 7,000 to 10,000 pounds this season.

Over 1,200 acres of melons for market were planted in Hempstead this season — a majority of them being moved by truck. Only 27 rail carloads were shopped by Monts Seed Store from this city and shipping lasted only a couple of weeks.

Competition from trucks is gradually cutting into the rail shipping. Many truckers buy melons on the vine and deals of this type save the producer expense of pulling and hauling to market. The big trucks simply drive to the field and load direct. Some growers estimate that at least 95 per cent of the melon crop is moved by trucks.

Growers grossed from $75 to $100 per acre on marketable melons with the production and harvesting costs running about $25 per acre. But Hempstead producers run more as a rule because melons produced here always sell at top price.

Also many growers raise larger melons for special shipping. These are sent by individuals to persons and organizations all over the United States and weights range from 50 to 195 pounds — a 130-pounder was the largest produced this year.

It was grown by O. D. Middlebrooks of near Hope who in 1935 raised one that weighed 195 pound —the largest on record.

War Widow, Children Sleep in Car

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y. —(AP)— A young Arkansas war widow and her three small sons who were found sleeping in a car here yesterday are being cared for by the White Plains Shelter of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to children.

The 30-year--old World War II widow, Mrs. Rose Buffington, told police she and her children had driven here from Conway, Ark. in search of living quarters in New York.

Mrs. Buffington said that she decided to stay in the car when she saw how crowded living conditions were here. She said her only income was from government death benefit checks and that she was trying to save enough money to return to Arkansas.

Police said Mrs. Buffington and her sons, Lionel, 11; Daniel, 9, and James, 7, had been sleeping in the car for several nights. The mother said she had "a few dollars" in her purse.

It is believed theat we are using the same water that existed on earth when the world began, although it has been turned from liquid to vapor or ice and back again many, many times.

Mr. Floyd, who five years ago took over the Hotel Barlow in Hope, will assume full charge of the Jonesboro Hotel on September 1, from R. H. Halbert who has operated the hotel for the past eight years.

Floyd has been manager of hotels in Salem, Ill., and Henderson, N. C. before coming to Hope. He was also associated with hotels in Tennessee, Alabama and Maine.

Mobster Settles Income Tax Debt

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The government, peeling the "secrecy" label from compromise tax settlement cases, says it accepted $100,000 from Jack "Greasy Thumb" Guzik as full payment for $900,000 it had claimed he owed in taxes and penalites.

The eleven - cents - on - the dollar settlement by Guzik, once connected with Al Capone's organization in Chicago, was one of several disclosed yesterday by the Bureau of Internal Reveune as it put into effect a new "open book" policy.

Under the new policy, all cases settled on or after Aug. 20 with taxpayers for less than the amount of taxes assessed will be made public. Those before that date will be disclosed upon specific requests naming the taxpayers involved.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue said Guzik was granted a compromise for three reasons: doubt as to whether he owed the full amount; inability of investigators to determine what he was worth; and "reduced earning power."

Asks Legality of Highway Purchases

LITTLE ROCK —(AP)— Rep. Jim Coates Jr. of Pulaski County requested a ruling by Atty. Gen. Ike Murry yesterday on the legality of "brand name purchasing" by the Arkansas Highway Department.

Murry, who previously refused to rule on the question, said he expected to have his answer ready "soon".

In connection with the ruling, Deputy Auditor B. E. Friday said that if the attorney general finds the method of inviting bids of "brand" name invalid, the state auditor's office will not issue a warrant to pay successful bidders.

The controversy concerns an invitation by the department on motor graders specifying three brand names; Austin-Western, Galion and Warco equipment.

Bids invited by the department were opened yesterday. plus bids from three suppliers handling other brands of motor graders. Prices listed by the "non-brand-name" dealers generally were lower than listings by suppliers complying with the Highway Department invitation.

Cherry Beat McMath by 98,396 Votes

LITTLE ROCK, (AP) — The official tally of the Aug. 12th Democratic run-off primary shows that Chancellor Francis Cherry defeated Gov. Sid McMath by 98,396 votes.

Frank Newell, secretary of the Democratic State Committee, said that of the official 376,500 votes cast, Cherry received 237,448; McMath 139,052.

Famous Ponies Coming to Hope

Grumpy and Dopey, the lead ponies of the famed Curtis Candy Six Pony Hitch stand ready and waiting for action at the Third District Livestock Show here September 22-27.

These fiery little animals and their four buddies have recently performed at many of the largest rodeos in Texas, thrilling thousands of people with their fast stepping exhibition of intricate and percision turns, pulling their gleaming white wagon behind them.

The ponies will be housed in a large tent on the showgrounds throughout the day and will perform each night of the rodeo. There is no admission to see the ponies.

Hurricane Is Moving Toward Three States

MIAMI, Fla., (UP)— An Atlantic hurricane aimed its 75 mile an hour winds today at upper Florida Georgia and South Carolina coasts.

The hurricane, increasing in intensity, was located at 11 a.m. only 280 miles east of Melbourne, about midway up the Florida peninsula.

Storm warnings were ordered hoisted from Vero Beach, Fla., to Wilmington, N. C., and the weather bureau warned coast residents to stand by for possible hurricane warnings this afternoon and tonight.

Hurricane "able," the first of the year, was bowling alone at an 18 mile an hour clip— rather fast for the doughnut shaped tropical storm.

"Further intensification may occur during passage over the Gulf stream," the Weather Bureau predicted. "It had shown a slight increase in strength and has a more definite center today."

It was moving in a westnorthwestward direction but a more northerly course is forecast after the howler approaches the coast.

"All interests are advised to stand by for further advices and possibly hurricane warnings," the advisory warned.

The storm, spawned north of the Leeward Islands in the Atlantic five days ago, caught residents along the North Florida coast by surprise. Only 12 hours ago it was far out at sea and had wind of only 55 miles an hour.

"I don't think people are aware yet that the storm is this close," Bill Morrison of Jacksonville beach said.

In the path of the blow lay huge navy ship bases and shipbuilding yards at Jacksonville. Also warnings were up along Georgia's golden isles— the tourist and wealthy folk mecca of St. Simons and sea island.

India Has Troubles But Is Sincere

By C. E. PALMER

ABOARD R.M.S. QUEEN ELIZABETH, — (Via Air Mail From London) — I was fortunate in meeting onboard Max C. Elliott, formerly manager of the American Express Company in Bombay, India, and now being transferred to Frankfurt, West Germany, where the company handles banking and finance for U.S. occupation forces.

Mr. Elliott has spent 24 years in the Far East and during that time has learned a great deal about Asiatics. He spent three and a half years as a prisoner of war and was one of 50,000 POWs who built the Burma railroad. About 20,000 of them died, Mr. Elliott estimating this at about one death for every tie that was laid. Surprisingly, the larger percentage of death was among the younger prisoners to most of whom of course, the Far East was new. Their guards were mostly Koreans who were brutal and cruel. When the war was over the POWs imprisoned their guards, most of whom were later executed for their atrocities.

Mr. Elliott thinks the Indian government is honest and sincere and has made very satisfactory progress considering the difficulties which face it. Nehru has feasible plans for hydro-electric development for power and irrigation, both badly needed, but because Indian capital is so limited these will have to be financed largely by foreign capital which will be welcomed and fairy treated. The English are more popular than ever, largely because they can no longer be blamed for everything that goes wrong, and there is more appreciation for what they have done in the past. Americans and American capital are also welcome and American engineering skill and money are now engaged in building oil refinaries in India.

Illiteracy and poverty are appalling, and millions spend their lives in the grasp of money lenders whose interest rates often reach 100 per cent per annum.

India ardently desires to remain neutral in the struggle between East and West, but there is little doubt that in the final showdown she will line up wholeheartedly with the West. Mr. Elliott be-

Department Store Sales Still Gaining

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Department store sales in the Eighth Federal Reserve Bank District continued to gain for the third consecutive week over a like period for a year ago.

The gain was not general. Sales in Memphis and small cities were down but elsewhere they were up, including Little Rock which showed an eight per cent gain for the week ending Aug. 23.

The eighth district, as a whole, was up 5 per cent for the week and 2 per cent for the comparable four week period in 1952. Little Rock was up 10 per cent for the four week period.

Food Prices Highest in U. S. History

WASHINGTON, (AP) — Mid-August retail food prices, the governments Bureau of Labor Statistic reports, were the highest in U. S. history.

During the first half of this month the bureau's index went up almost 1 per cent to 235.6 per cent of the 1935-39 average.

On the basis of figures collected in eight cities, the bureau said foods now are about 16 per cent higher than when the Korean War began in June, 1950.

In another economic development, the government yesterday suspended price controls on radios, television sets, record players, carpets and bedding. The latter includes studio couches, davenports, mattresses, springs and pillows.

Price controls were abolished on vitrified chinaware, silverware and jewelry, and hand-made household glassware.

Retiring Price Stabilizer Ellis Arnall said relaxations "do not mean abandonment of controls in any area where controls are needed."

OPS made clear that if the prices of items on which controls have been suspended rise to a point where they threaten to pierce the old price ceilings, controls will be reimposed.

Higher prices for pork and chicken were the main factors in the latest rise in the food index. Pork rose nearly 5 per cent during early August; chickens more than 4 per cent.

1,403 Sorties Heaviest Raid of Entire War

By WARREN FRANKLIN

SEOUL, Korea, (UP)— Allied war planes of four nations, striking from land and sea, pounded huge sections of the North Korean capital of Pyongyang into flaming shambles today in the heaviest air assault of the Korean war.

Fighter-bombers in three waves totaling 1,403 sorties lashed the Communist nerve center with bombs, bullets, rockets and napalm (jellied gasoline).

They hit 40 carefully-selected military targets in daylight after warning the civilian population by radio that the attack was coming.

Communist MIG-15 jet fighters tried desperately to halt the assault. Protecting U. S. Sabrejets and Australian meteor jets drove back the Russianbuilt MIGS destroying one and damaging two.

Previous record attack came on July 11 when the United Nations hit Pyongyang with 1,200 sorties. (A Sortie is one flight by one plane).

Today's strike also was the Fifth Air Force's greatest effort of the war. Planes of the fifth and attached units flew 1,103 missions over the target area, surpassing their 1,063 record of July 11.

In addition carrier planes of the U. S. S. Essex, Princeton and Boxer struck with an estimated 210 sorties.

The third and final assault today sent 278 fighters and fighter-bombers of the 5th Air Force and about 70 planes from carriers against Pyongyang.

The combined land and [illegible] mada dropped more than [illegible] of bombs and fired more than [illegible]000 rounds of ammunition.

The planes dropped tanks with 4,000 gallons of flaming napalm ignoring Communist radio protests of last week that use of napalm was a "barbarism."

Towering plumes of smoke prevented full estimates of damage.

Incomplete claims of pilots returning from the third wave included five buildings destroyed and [illegible] damaged, two gun positions, [illegible] stroyed and one damaged, one warehouse destroyed and 32 [illegible] on a concrete bridge.

Slots, Bookies Found at Spa

HOT SPRINGS, (AP) — County and city police yesterday raided a downtown establishment, arrested three men and confiscated two slot machines and book-making equipment.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Sam Richards and Police Chief John Ermey said the gambling house was in a second— story room at 813½ Central Avenue. Charges of operating a gambling house was filed against James T. Barker, A. B. Abbott and C. F. Mahoney, all of Hot Springs.

The three were released on bonds of $250 each pending preliminary hearing in Municipal Court Saturday.

The officers said between 25 and 40 persons were found in the establishment.

Richards said the afternoon raid was instituted on a search warrant signed by Cicuit Judge C. Floyd Hull.

Uncle Charged in Death of Girl

RIVERSIDE, Calif., — Acting Dist. Atty. Elwood Rich says he will file first degree murder charges today against John Chauncey of Lawrence 37, held in the slaying of Kathryn Knodel, 16, Lawrence's niece.

Rich said yesterday he will seek a grand jury indictment against Lawrence in about two weeks.

Funeral services for the battered and ravished girl were held yesterday at Redlands, but burial was delayed to make sure officials have all the medical information they need.

The girl's body was found near Palm Springs early last Wednesday. Lawrence has admitted hitting Kathryn on the head with a rock but insists she was already dead and he was trying to make it look as if she had been run over by a car. She was killed accidentally, Lawrence says, when struck by a jack handle as she helped to fix a tire.

Fair Enough

The American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations have had the effrontery to invite the two candidates for the presidency of this socialist republic to come, hat-in-hand, to their autumn consistories and seek their favor. These are organizations operating under special political license from the Roosevelt-Truman administration. Both candidates know this to be the fact but neither of them will have the honor and courage to express the proper resentiment and both will treat these invitations as commands. Both nominees are afraid to declare that these bad bums are outlaws against the American state and its people and to promise the nation and the people deliverance from their ruthless power.

The AF of L executive council or cabinet recently received with a straight face a report from a special committee revealing the fact that racketeers had managed to obtain charters in a few unimportant locals and had been extorting money from workers and employers. Our press treated this as hot news and played it straight without reference to the sordid record established in the last 15 years proving beyond denial that the AF of L was a licensing authority for criminals of the lowest types.

The executive council of the AF of L is a band of political highbinders which in many proven cases has taken aggressive action against rank-and-file workers who were driven to the folly of opposing the rule of gangsters put over them by the authority of the AF of L.

For many years its attorney-general, so to speak, was Joe Padway, a greedy and thoroughly corrupt ambulance chaser from Milwaukee who ran up an enormous practice as defender of such rogues as Browne and Bioff and George Scalise, known to him to be agents of the Capone mob. Padway brazenly showed himself at a convention of the Browne-Bioff underworld chapter of the AF of L in Louisville and sang rapturous praises of these two vermin. He had his price and they paid it, and the AF of L endorsed his conduct.

Browne was a member of the executive council or cabinet and Dan Tobin, of the teamsters, frankly admitting his own knowledge that Browne was an underworld criminal, explained that he would not think of denouncing him because protocol in this gang which now commands the nominees, forbade one racketeer to embarrass another lest reprisals lead to general embarrassment. If he had called Browne a crook and tried to liberate Browne's subjects from persecution, Browne and other crooks would holler up the fact that Tobin had thrown a whole council of locals of the teamsters' union in Cincinnati into permanent receivership under a loathesome old thief named Brocky Farrell with plenipotentiary powers from Tobin, himself.

Farrell's reign lasted 25 years, during which his subjects had no voice in the affairs of their unions and fell steadily lower in the scale of wages and living.

Farrell was responsible only to Tobin and he became notorious as the official spendthrift at the drunken galas of the heirarchy, squandering with the lavish hand of a bush-league Paul Hoffman money wrung from the hearts and marrow of degraded Cincinnati truckmen and their wives and children.

When, at last, his reign was ended by a court order, that order, with sweet consideration for the political might of the boss racketeers of unionism, quietly dissolved the situation without awarding damages to the victims. And Padway, as Tobin's counsel, was included in the order for a fee of $5,000.

For more than 15 years I have been pounding the scoundrels of unionism in both of the great gangs, AF of L and CIO. It is not quite to the point to say, as some do, that if I had not been right I should have been jailed away long ago for abusing virtuous men. It is straight to the point, however, to say that extortion, persecution and degradation of millions of union subjects, many of them unwilling captives, are inherent in the very nature of these evil societies and are brazenly defended as just powers of unions by the very men whom Eisenhower and Stevenson will gladly truckle to.

The "committee" which reported, as though in shocked astonishment, the presence of a few racketeers newly "discovered" in the AF of L included William L. McFetridge, president of the building service employees' union. This mealy faker succeeded George Scalise when Scalise was deposed by the official diligence of Tom Dewey in his old, conscientious phase.

McFetridge, was, until then, a subordinate official in this foul underworld crew. He now enjoys a spurious reputation as a brave man who fought the mob at great risk. The truth is that he kept his mouth shut and took no action to clean the gangsters out. He had a soft job and was content.

Inquiring about old thieves in Chicago recently I remarked to a case-hardened cop who had specialized in union criminality the where-abouts of Umbrella Mike Boyle, long ago denounced by the federal courts as a betrayer of labor and a grafter and all-around crook. His union was the electrical brotherhood of the AF of L. Surely, I thought, this incredible rogue must have been eliminated by now.

"Oh, no," the policeman said, "Mike is down in Washington in the grand headquarters."

This union, incidentally, has established scholarships in the electricians' trade for deserving young men in the saintly name of William E. Hogan, who was sent to Sing Sing prison for robbing the widows' and orphans' fund, paroled and promptly reinstated for life in the same fiduciary jobs.

This commentary is a practice swing in preparation for my report to the Vatican for the information of the pope on the true, foul nature of an Amercian phenomenon as requested by the holy father's chief advisor on labor.

HOMETOWN, U. S. A., (AP) — e Peebles, like many an Amerin family today, are a house vided. Wilbur, the country's most erage citizen, and his wife, Trel Mae, used to quarrell over only e thing — her ambition to own a ink coat.

But that was before Wilbur went the Republican convention and me home in favor of Gen. Eishower, and Trellis Mae attended e Democratic convention and rerned an ardent rooter for Gov. evenson.

Now they are separated by a ew yawning chasm— party polics.

Wilbur awoke the other morning a cramped position on the livg room sofa, to which he had een exiled by Trellis Mae after referred slightingly to Stevenn as "a Truman in short pants." His wife, her hair still in metal urlers, sat in his favorite chair udying the newspaper.

"How about breakfast, honey" id Wilbur. "I'm starving."

"Make it yourself, you Republin— you believe in individual nterprise," replied Trellis Mae. And don't burn the toast. I have catch up on the political news."

Wilbur meekly got up, showered, aved, dressed, and fixed breakst for two. Trellis Mae joined m at the table, put down the ewspaper, and said:

"Well, he's done it again."

er husband went on morosely unching his toast.

"I say, he's done it again:" said rellis Mae more loudly.

"Who?" said Wilbur, unable to esist the bait.

"As if you didn't know, Ha, ha, al Stevenson— of course."

"Has he attacked that mess in Washington again?"

"Don't be so funny," said Trells Mae. "He says your pal Ike s up to his knees in a bucket of els. Ha, ha, ha! What's the maper with Ike's campaign anyway? t's stalled."

"Ike's just getting into gear," replied Wilbur stoutly. "He likes o plan his campaigns instead of going off half— cocked. When he really hits the Democrats it'll be another Normandy landing."

"All I can say," remarked Trellis Mae, "is that right now he is approaching victory with the speed of erosion."

"I really don't understand you," said Wilbur, trying dignity. "Your father was a Republican, your grandfather was a Republican, and you were a Republican until last month. You don't want to be a turncoat, do you?"

"Look who's talking," answered his wife. "Who voted for Roosevelt three times? You! Who said when he got out of the army he'd never vote for a man who wore a uniform? You!"

"That was before they nominated Ike," said Wilbur. "Can't a man change his mind?"

"Can't a woman?"

"Sure, but Ike is a new broom. He's got what the country needs. He is a real man of action. Stevenson is just a phrase-maker. Anybody can make a high-sounding phrase."

"Oh, can they?" demanded Trellis Mae. "All right, Wilbur. You make one. Right now. Quick."

Wilbur stard at her. His mouth opened and closed, opened and closed again.

"Uh-uh-uh," he spluttered. "Women have no darn business talking politics."

"That isn't a new phrase," said Trellis Mae. "That is a platitude, my love."

Wilbur made a final attempt to convert her.

"I ask you one thing— just one thing," he said. "What has Adlai Stevenson got that Ike doesn't have more of?"

"Me!" said Trellis Mae triumphantly.

Detroit Case Cited as One Smoothed Over

WASHINGTON, (AP) — House investigators today charged that the Justice Department has been "most dilatory" in some prosecutions and cited a Detroit war fraud case as a "typical example."

Counsel Robert A. Collier laid before a judiciary subcommittee a number of documents dealing with the Norman E. Miller and Associates, Inc. case which came up in 1944 and closed in 1951 without prosecution or recovery of government funds.

Collier said Miller was indicted July 14, 1944 on six counts alleging fruad in that he had "knowingly and fraudulently charged in direct time as direct time for his employes in performing under certain government contracts."

In addition to the indictment, Collier said a civil suit was filed by the government seeking recovery of $36,000.

"Despite the fact that in its early phases the case was described by the justice attorneys as 'one of the best' that the department had," Collier said, "action was delayed through various devices for over six years at which time both suits were dropped."

Collier told the committee that its staff, after a review of numerous cases in Justice Department files, decided "it is to the best interests" that it demonstrate publicly how dilatory the department has been.

Plane Brings Soldier to His Stricken Family

By HENRY SUPPLE

SALEM, Mass., (AP) — A grim-faced Nebraska soldier stepped from a Coast Guard mercy plane today in a relay race home to his tragedy stricken family

Tech. Sgt. Charles R. Buggy, of Winnebago, Neb., stepped off the mercy plane at 9:23 a.m., (CST), a little more than three hours after he was plucked from the troop transport Gen. Alexander Patch 500 miles at sea in the Atlantic ocean.

The Patch was New York bound from Bremerhaven, Germany.

The husky, moustached soldier, a veteran of World War II who re-enlisted, already has lost one of his two children to polio.

His other child is ill of the same disease.

His wife faces critical surgery for a spinal ailment.

"I appreciate it an awful lot," Buggy told the Coast Guard crew which flew so far to sea to pick him up.

He blinked as he added:

"I hope everything is all right at home."

Buggy said he first learned of the illness at his midwestern home yesterday noon.

A first mercy plane from Westover Air Force Base, Mass., alighted on the water near the transport last night, but was disabled when it collided with a life boat lowered from the ship.

The second mercy flight left Salem in the middle of the night, and contacted the transport at dawn.

Buggy was whisked immediately by automobile to the Beverly airport eight miles away where he was taken in a small plane to the Westover Air Force Base for transfer to a Nebraska bound military plane.

Rayburn and Johnson Rally for Stevenson

DALLAS, Tex., (AP) —Speaker Sam Rayburn and U. S. Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson rallied around the Democratic banner of Adlai Stevenson today. Others of their fellow Texans did too.

Johnson and Rayburn announced yesterday their advocacy of Stevenson's Democratic presidential bid in the face of opposing stands by Gov. Allan Shivers and Atty. Gen. Price Daniel, Democratic nominee for U.S. senator to succeed Tom Connally.

oth Shivers and Daniel have expressed personal opposition to Stevenson's candidacy because the Illinois governor said he agreed with President Truman in advocating federal ownership of the supposedly oilrich off-shore tide lands. Shivers also stand refelcted opinions that would likely lead him to follow the doctrines of what Shivers called "Trumanism."

Johnson said that while he did not agree with Stevenson's stand for federal ownership of the tie lands he would back the nominee of the National Democratic party. Rayburn at his home in Bonham said, "I indorse Sen. Johnson's statement fully."

Two other veteran Democrats, Rep. Lindley Beckworth of Gladewater and John C. Calhoun, former state Democratic Executive Committee chairman, also came out for Stevenson.

Dulles Attacks 'Termites' in Government

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) John Foster Dulles today attacked "termites" in government and declared a greater measure of patriotism is needed among all in authority as "we look into the awful abyss of atomic and hydrogen war."

In a speech prepared for the National convention of Amvets, the tional convention of Amvets, the visor declared:

"Termites can destroy the noble edifice that our forebearers built. They must be rooted out, and the loyalty which qualified their successors must be something more positive than the negative virtue of not being a known member of the Communist party."

Dulles told the World War II veterans:

"When I speak of those 'in authority,' I have in mind not only the handful of conspicious men at the top, but also the hundreds of thousands of government servants in all branches of public service. When government is so big that it

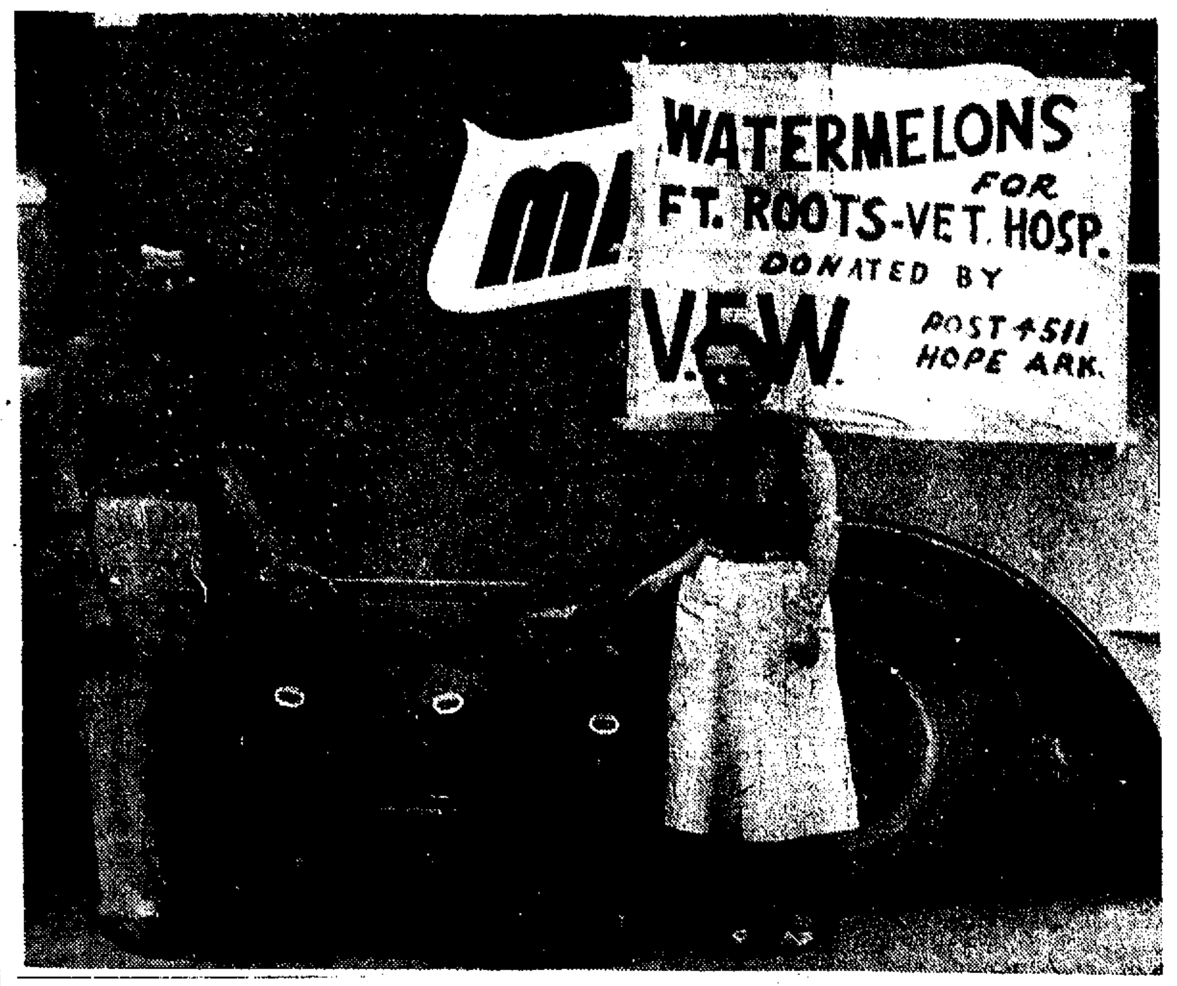
Hempstead Melons for Hospital Veterans



WATERMELONS FOR FT. ROOTS-VET. HOSP. DONATED BY V.F.W. POST 4511 HOPE ARK.

War veterans at Ft. Roots Hospital near Little Rock, Sunday enjoyed some 200 choice Hempstead watermelons which were taken to them by the local Ramsey-Cargile VFW post. Each year the VFW takes a load of melons to the hospitalized veterans.

Most of the melons were donated by Hempstead growers — Ervin Jones, O. D. Middlebrooks, W. H. Light, J. W. Hairston, Albert Smith, John Lloyd and Claud O'Steen. Trucks to haul them were furnished by Midwest Dairy Co. and Standard Auto Co. of Hope.

Melon Season on Last Legs, Yield Fair

The watermelon season in this section is on its last legs and only a few late ones are being sold locally. Truck loads, so prominent only a few days ago, are a thing of the past now.

Despite weather conditions — the driest season in years — production in this county was about 75 per cent normal. Larger acreage was offset by the reduction in yield.

Growers who normally produced 15,000 pounds of melons last year got only 7,000 to 10,000 pounds this season.

Over 1,200 acres of melons for market were planted in Hempstead this season — a majority of them being moved by truck. Only 27 rail carloads were shopped by Monts Seed Store from this city and shipping lasted only a couple of weeks.

Competition from trucks is gradually cutting into the rail shipping. Many truckers buy melons on the vine and deals of this type save the producer expense of pulling and hauling to market. The big trucks simply drive to the field and load direct. Some growers estimate that at least 95 per cent of the melon crop is moved by trucks.

Growers grossed from $75 to $100 per acre on marketable melons with the production and harvesting costs running about $25 per acre. But Hempstead producers run more as a rule because melons produced here always sell at top price.

Also many growers raise larger melons for special shipping. These are sent by individuals to persons and organizations all over the United States and weights range from 50 to 195 pounds — a 130-pounder was the largest produced this year.

It was grown by O. D. Middlebrooks of near Hope who in 1935 raised one that weighed 195 pound —the largest on record.

War Widow, Children Sleep in Car

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y. —(AP)— A young Arkansas war widow and her three small sons who were found sleeping in a car here yesterday are being cared for by the White Plains Shelter of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to children.

The 30-year--old World War II widow, Mrs. Rose Buffington, told police she and her children had driven here from Conway, Ark. in search of living quarters in New York.

Mrs. Buffington said that she decided to stay in the car when she saw how crowded living conditions were here. She said her only income was from government death benefit checks and that she was trying to save enough money to return to Arkansas.

Police said Mrs. Buffington and her sons, Lionel, 11; Daniel, 9, and James, 7, had been sleeping in the car for several nights. The mother said she had "a few dollars" in her purse.

D. M. Floyd Takes Over Hotel at Jonesboro, Ark.

D. M. Floyd of Hope has acquired a lease on the Hotel Nobel, largest hotel in Jonesboro, Ark.

Mr. Floyd, who five years ago took over the Hotel Barlow in Hope, will assume full charge of the Jonesboro Hotel on September 1, from R. H. Halbert who has operated the hotel for the past eight years.

Floyd has been manager of hotels in Salem, Ill., and Henderson, N. C. before coming to Hope. He was also associated with hotels in Tennessee, Alabama and Maine.

Mobster Settles Income Tax Debt

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The government, peeling the "secrecy" label from compromise tax settlement cases, says it accepted $100,000 from Jack "Greasy Thumb" Guzik as full payment for $900,000 it had claimed he owed in taxes and penalites.

The eleven - cents - on - the dollar settlement by Guzik, once connected with Al Capone's organization in Chicago, was one of several disclosed yesterday by the Bureau of Internal Reveune as it put into effect a new "open book" policy.

Under the new policy, all cases settled on or after Aug. 20 with taxpayers for less than the amount of taxes assessed will be made public. Those before that date will be disclosed upon specific requests naming the taxpayers involved.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue said Guzik was granted a compromise for three reasons; doubt as to whether he owed the full amount; inability of investigators to determine what he was worth; and "reduced earning power."

Asks Legality of Highway Purchases

LITTLE ROCK —(AP)— Rep. Jim Coates Jr. of Pulaski County requested a ruling by Atty. Gen. Ike Murry yesterday on the legality of "brand name purchasing" by the Arkansas Highway Department.

Murry, who previously refused to rule on the question, said he expected to have his answer ready "soon".

In connection with the ruling, Deputy Auditor B. E. Friday said that if the attorney general finds the method of inviting bids of "brand" name invalid, the state auditor's office will not issue a warrant to pay successful bidders.

The controversy concerns an invitation by the department on motor graders specifying three brand names; Austin-Western, Galion and Warco equipment.

Bids invited by the department were opened yesterday, plus bids from three suppliers handling other brands of motor graders. Prices listed by the "non-brand-name" dealers generally were lower than listings by suppliers complying with the Highway Department invitation.

Cherry Beat McMath by 98,396 Votes

LITTLE ROCK, (AP) — The official tally of the Aug. 12th Democratic run-off primary shows that Chancellor Francis Cherry defeated Gov. Sid McMath by 98,396 votes.

Frank Newell, secretary of the Democratic State Committee, said that of the official 376,500 votes cast, Cherry received 237,448; McMath 139,052.

Famous Ponies Coming to Hope

Grumpy and Dopey, the lead ponies of the famed Curtis Candy Six Pony Hitch stand ready and waiting for action at the Third District Livestock Show here September 22-27.

These fiery little animals and their four buddies have recently performed at many of the largest rodeos in Texas, thrilling thousands of people with their fast stepping exhibition of intricate and percision turns, pulling their gleaming white wagon behind them.

The ponies will be housed in a large tent on the showgrounds throughout the day and will perform each night of the rodeo. There is no admission to see the ponies.

Hurricane Is Moving Toward Three States

MIAMI, Fla., (UP)— An Atlantic hurricane aimed its 75 mile an hour winds today at upper Florida Georgia and South Carolina coasts.

The hurricane, increasing in intensity, was located at 11 a.m. only 280 miles east of Melbourne, about midway up the Florida peninsula.

Storm warnings were ordered hoisted from Vero Beach, Fla., to Wilmington, N. C., and the weather bureau warned coast residents to stand by for possible hurricane warnings this afternoon and tonight.

Hurricane "able," the first of the year, was bowling alone at an 18 mile an hour clip— rather fast for the doughnut shaped tropical storm.

"Further intensification may occur during passage over the Gulf stream," the Weather Bureau predicted. "It had shown a slight increase in strength and has a more definite center today."

It was moving in a westnorthwestward direction but a more northerly course is forecast after the howler approaches the coast.

"All interests are advised to stand by for further advices and possibly hurricane warnings," the advisory warned.

The storm, spawned north of the Leeward Islands in the Atlantic five days ago, caught residents along the North Florida coast by surprise. Only 12 hours ago it was far out at sea and had wind of only 55 miles an hour.

"I don't think people are aware yet that the storm is this close," Bill Morrison of Jacksonville beach said.

In the path of the blow lay huge navy ship bases and shipbuilding yards at Jacksonville. Also warnings were up along Georgia's golden isles— the tourist and wealthy folk mecca of St. Simons and sea island.

India Has Troubles But Is Sincere

By C. E. PALMER

ABOARD R.M.S. QUEEN ELIZABETH, — (Via Air Mail From London) — I was fortunate in meeting onboard Max C. Elliott, formerly manager of the American Express Company in Bombay, India, and now being transferred to Frankfurt, West Germany, where the company handles banking and finance for U.S. occupation forces.

Mr. Elliott has spent 24 years in the Far East and during that time has learned a great deal about Asiatics. He spent three and a half years as a prisoner of war and was one of 50,000 POWs who built the Burma railroad. About 20,000 of them died, Mr. Elliott estimating this at about one death for every tie that was laid. Surprisingly, the larger percentage of death was among the younger prisoners to most of whom of course, the Far East was new. Their guards were mostly Koreans who were brutal and cruel. When the war was over the POWs imprisoned their guards, most of whom were later executed for their atrocities.

Mr. Elliott thinks the Indian government is honest and sincere and has made very satisfactory progress considering the difficulties which face it. Nehru has feasible plans for hydro-electric development for power and irrigation, both badly needed, but because Indian capital is so limited these will have to be financed largely by foreign capital which will be welcomed and fairy treated. The English are more popular than ever, largely because they can no longer be blamed for everything that goes wrong, and there is more appreciation for what they have done in the past. Americans and American capital are also welcome and American engineering skill and money are now engaged in building oil refineries in India.

Illiteracy and poverty are appalling, and millions spend their lives in the grasp of money lenders whose interest rates often reach 100 per cent per annum.

India ardently desires to remain neutral in the struggle between East and West, but there is little doubt that in the final showdown she will line up wholeheartedly with the West. Mr. Elliott be

Department Store Sales Still Gaining

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Department store sales in the Eighth Federal Reserve Bank District continued to gain for the third consecutive week over a like period for a year ago.

The gain was not general. Sales in Memphis and small cities were down but elsewhere they were up, including Little Rock which showed an eight per cent gain for the week ending Aug. 23.

The eighth district, as a whole, was up 5 per cent for the week and 2 per cent for the comparable four week period in 1952. Little Rock was up 10 per cent for the four week period.

Food Prices Highest in U. S. History

WASHINGTON, (AP) — Mid-August retail food prices, the governments Bureau of Labor Statistic reports, were the highest in U. S. history.

During the first half of this month the bureau's index went up almost 1 per cent to 235.6 per cent of the 1935-39 average.

On the basis of figures collected in eight cities, the bureau said foods now are about 16 per cent higher than when the Korean War began in June, 1950.

In another economic development, the government yesterday suspended price controls on radios, television sets, record players, carpets and bedding. The latter includes studio couches, davenports, mattresses, springs and pillows.

Price controls were abolished on vitrified chinaware, silverware and jewelry, and hand-made household glassware.

Retiring Price Stabilizer Ellis Arnall said relaxations "do not mean abandonment of controls in any area where controls are needed."

OPS made clear that if the prices of items on which controls have been suspended rise to a point where they threaten to pierce the old price ceilings, controls will be reimposed.

Higher prices for pork and chicken were the main factors in the latest rise in the food index. Pork rose nearly 5 per cent during early August; chickens more than 4 per cent.

1,403 Sorties Heaviest Raid of Entire War

By WARREN FRANKLIN

SEOUL, Korea, (UP)— Allied war planes of four nations, striking from land and sea, pounded huge sections of the North Korean capital of Pyongyang into flaming shambles today in the heaviest air assault of the Korean war.

Fighter-bombers in three waves totaling 1,403 sorties lashed the Communist nerve center with bombs, bullets, rockets and napalm (jellied gasoline).

They hit 40 carefully-selected military targets in daylight after warning the civilian population by radio that the attack was coming.

Communist MIG-15 jet fighters tried desperately to halt the assault. Protecting U. S. Sabrejets and Australian meteor jets drove back the Russianbuilt MIGS destroying one and damaging two.

Previous record attack came on July 11 when the United Nations hit Pyongyang with 1,200 sorties. (A Sortie is one flight by one plane).

Today's strike also was the Fifth Air Force's greatest effort of the war. Planes of the fifth and attached units flew 1,103 missions over the target area, surpassing their 1,063 record of July 11.

In addition carrier planes of the U. S. S. Essex, Princeton and Boxer struck with an estimated [illegible] sorties.

The third and final assault today sent 278 fighters and fighter-bombers of the 5th Air Force and about 70 planes from carriers against Pyongyang.

The combined land and [illegible] mada dropped more than [illegible] tons of bombs and fired more than [illegible] 000 rounds of ammunition.

The planes dropped tanks with 4,000 gallons of flaming napalm, ignoring Communist radio protests of last week that use of napalm was a "barbarism."

Towering plumes of smoke prevented full estimates of damage.

Incomplete claims of pilots returning from the third wave included five buildings destroyed and [illegible] damaged, two gun positions [illegible] stroyed and one damaged, one warehouse destroyed and 32 [illegible] on a concrete bridge.

The first mercy plane landed successfully on the water near the transport but collided with a life boat lowered from the ship to secure a line between the 2 craft. The plane's propellor was damaged.

Slots, Bookies Found at Spa

HOT SPRINGS, (AP) — County and city police yesterday, raided a downtown establishment, arrested three men and confiscated two slot machines and book-making equipment.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Sam Richards and Police Chief John Ermey said the gambling house was in a second— story room at 813½ Central Avenue. Charges of operating a gambling house was filed against James T. Barker, A. B. Abbott and C. F. Mahoney, all of Hot Springs.

The three were released on bonds of $250 each pending preliminary hearing in Municipal Court Saturday.

The officers said between 25 and 40 persons were found in the establishment.

Richards said the afternoon raid was instituted on a search warrant signed by Cicuit Judge C. Floyd Hull.

William Ransome Gall Baker is said to be the only to have a television station named for him. It's N. Y.

Uncle Charged in Death of Girl

RIVERSIDE, Calif., — Acting Dist. Atty. Elwood Rich says he will file first degree murder charges today against John Chauncey of Lawrence 37, held in the slaying of Kathryn Knodel, 16, Lawrence's niece.

Rich said yesterday he will seek a grand jury indictment against Lawrence in about two weeks.

Funeral services for the battered and ravished girl were held yesterday at Redlands, but burial was delayed to make sure officials have all the medical information they need.

The girl's body was found near Palm Springs early last Wednesday. Lawrence has admitted hitting Kathryn on the head with a rock but insists she was already dead and he was trying to make it look as if she had been run over by a car. She was killed accidentally, Lawrence says, when struck by a jack handle as she helped to fix a tire.

Fair Enough

By King Features Syndicate.

The American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations have had the effrontery to invite the two candidates for the presidency of this socialist republic to come, hat-in-hand, to their autumn consistories and seek their favor. These are organizations operating under special political license from the Roosevelt-Truman administration. Both candidates know this to be the fact but neither of them will have the honor and courage to express the proper resentment and both will treat these invitations as commands. Both nominees are afraid to declare that these bad bums are outlaws against the American state and its people and to promise the nation and the people deliverance from their ruthless power.

The AF of L executive council or cabinet recently received with a straight face a report from a special committee revealing the fact that racketeers had managed to obtain charters in a few unimportant locals and had been extorting money from workers and employers. Our press treated this as hot news and played it straight without reference to the sordid record established in the last 15 years proving beyond denial that the AF of L was a licensing authority for criminals of the lowest types.

The executive council of the AF of L is a band of political highbinders which in many proven cases has taken aggressive action against rank-and-file workers who were driven to the folly of opposing the rule of gangsters put over them by the authority of the AF of L.

For many years its attorney-general, so to speak, was Joe Padway, a greedy and thoroughly corrupt ambulance chaser from Milwaukee who ran up an enormous practice as defender of such rogues as Browne and Bioff and George Scalise, known to him to be agents of the Capone mob. Padway brazenly showed himself at a convention of the Browne-Bioff underworld chapter of the AF of L in Louisville and sang rapturous praises of these two vermin. He had his price and they paid it, and the AF of L endorsed his conduct.

Browne was a member of the executive council or cabinet and Dan Tobin, of the teamsters, frankly admitting his own knowledge that Browne was an underworld criminal, explained that he would not think of denouncing him because protocol in this gang which now commands the nominees, forbade one racketeer to embarrass another lest reprisals lead to general embarrassment. If he had called Browne a crook and tried to liberate Browne's subjects from persecution, Browne and other crooks would holler up the fact that Tobin had thrown a whole council of locals of the teamsters' union in Cincinnati into permanent receivership under a loathesome old thief named Brocky Farrell with plenipotentiary powers from Tobin, himself.

Farrell's reign lasted 25 years, during which his subjects had no voice in the affairs of their unions and fell steadily lower in the scale of wages and living.

Farrell was responsible only to Tobin and he became notorious as the official spendthrift at the drunken galas of the heirarchy, squandering with the lavish hand of a bush-league Paul Hoffman money wrung from the hearts and marrow of degraded Cincinnati truckmen and their wives and children.

When, at last, his reign was ended by a court order, that order, with sweet consideration for the political might of the boss racketeers of unionism, quietly dissolved the situation without awarding damages to the victims. And Padway, as Tobin's counsel, was included in the order for a fee of $5,000.

For more than 15 years I have been pounding the scoundrels of unionism in both of the great gangs, AF of L and CIO. It is not quite to the point to say, as some do, that if I had not been right I should have been jailed away long ago for abusing virtuous men. It is straight to the point, however, to say that extortion, persecution and degradation of millions of union subjects, many of them unwilling captives, are inherent in the very nature of these evil societies and are brazenly defended as just powers of unions by the very men whom Eisenhower and Stevenson will gladly truckle to.

The "committee" which reported, as though in shocked astonishment, the presence of a few racketeers newly "discovered" in the AF of L included William L. McFetridge, president of the building service employees' union. This mealy faker succeeded George Scalise when Scalise was deposed by the official diligence of Tom Dewey in his old, conscientious phase.

McFetridge, was, until then, a subordinate official in this foul underworld crew. He now enjoys a spurious reputation as a brave man who fought the mob at great risk. The truth is that he kept his mouth shut and took no action to clean the gangsters out. He had a soft job and was content.

Inquiring about old thieves in Chicago recently I remarked to a case-hardened cop who had specialized in union criminality the where-abouts of Umbrella Mike Boyle, long ago denounced by the federal courts as a betrayer of labor and a grafter and all-around crook. His union was the electrical brotherhood of the AF of L. Surely. I thought, this incredible rogue must have been eliminated by now.

"Oh, no," the policeman said. "Mike is down in Washington in the grand headquarters."

This union, incidentally, has established scholarships in the electricians' trade for deserving young men in the saintly name of William E. Hogan, who was sent to Sing Sing prison for robbing the widows' and orphans' fund, paroled and promptly reinstated for life in the same fiduciary jobs.

This commentary is a practice swing in preparation for my report to the Vatican for the information of the pope on the true, foul nature of an Amercian phenomenon as requested by the holy father's chief advisor on labor.

HOMETOWN, U. S. A., (AP) — e Peebles, like many an Ameri n family today, are a house vided. Wilbur, the country's most erage citizen, and his wife, Trel Mae, used to quarrell over only e thing — her ambition to own a ink coat.

But that was before Wilbur went the Republican convention and me home in favor of Gen. Eis hower, and Trellis Mae attended e Democratic convention and re rned an ardent rooter for Gov. evenson.

Now they are separated by a ew yawning chasm— party poli cs.

Wilbur awoke the other morning a cramped position on the liv g room sofa, to which he had een exiled by Trellis Mae after referred slightingly to Steven n as "a Truman in short pants." His wife, her hair still in metal urlers, sat in his favorite chair udying the newspaper.

"How about breakfast, honey" id Wilbur. "I'm starving."

"Make it yourself, you Republi n— you believe in individual nterprise," replied Trellis Mae. And don't burn the toast. I have catch up on the political news."

Wilbur meekly got up, showered, aved, dressed, and fixed break st for two. Trellis Mae joined m at the table, put down the ewspaper, and said:

"Well, he's done it again."

er husband went on morosely unching his toast.

"I say, he's done it again:" said rellis Mae more loudly.

"Who?" said Wilbur, unable to esist the bait.

"As if you didn't know, Ha, ha, al Stevenson— of course."

"Has he attacked that mess in Washington again?"

"Don't be so funny," said Trel s Mae. "He says your pal Ike s up to his knees in a bucket of els. Ha, ha, ha! What's the mat er with Ike's campaign anyway? t's stalled."

"Ike's just getting into gear," eplied Wilbur stoutly. "He likes o plan his campaigns instead of going off half— cocked. When he eally hits the Democrats it'll be another Normandy landing."

"All I can say," remarked Trel lis Mae, "is that right now he is approaching victory with the speed of erosion."

"I really don't understand you," said Wilbur, trying dignity. "Your father was a Republican, your grandfather was a Republican, and you were a Republican until last month. You don't want to be a turncoat, do you?"

"Look who's talking," answered his wife. "Who voted for Roosevelt three times? You! Who said when he got out of the army he'd never vote for a man who wore a uniform? You!"

"That was before they nominated Ike," said Wilbur. "Can't a man change his mind?"

"Can't a woman?"

"Sure, but Ike is a new broom. He's got what the country needs. He is a real man of action. Stevenson is just a phrase-maker. Anybody can make a high-sounding phrase."

"Oh, can they?" demanded Trellis Mae. "All right, Wilbur. You make one. Right now. Quick."

Wilbur stard at her. His mouth opened and closed, opened and closed again.

"Uh-uh-uh," he spluttered. "Women have no darn business talking politics."

"That isn't a new phrase," said Trellis Mae. "That is a platitude, my love."

Wilbur made a final attempt to convert her.

"I ask you one thing— just one thing," he said. "What has Adlai Stevenson got that Ike doesn't have more of?"

"Me!" said Trellis Mae triumphantly.

Wilbur looked at his wife, shook his head, threw down his napkin, and trudged off to work. November— and peace— seemed a long way off.

Detroit Case Cited as One Smoothed Over

WASHINGTON, (AP) — House investigators today charged that the Justice Department has been "most dilatory" in some prosecutions and cited a Detroit war fraud case as a "typical example."

Counsel Robert A. Collier laid before a judiciary subcommittee a number of documents dealing with the Norman E. Miller and Associates, Inc. case which came up in 1944 and closed in 1951 without prosecution or recovery of government funds.

Collier said Miller was indicted July 14, 1944 on six counts alleging fruad in that he had "knowingly and fraudulently charged in direct time as direct time for his employes in performing under certain government contracts."

In addition to the indictment, Collier said a civil suit was filed by the government seeking recovery of $36,000.

"Despite the fact that in its early phases the case was described by the justice attorneys as 'one of the best' that the department had," Collier said, "action was delayed through various devices for over six years at which time both suits were dropped."

Collier told the committee that its staff, after a review of numerous cases in Justice Department files, decided "it is to the best interests" that it demonstrate publicly how dilatory the department has been.

U.N. Planes Pound Big Sections of N. Korean Capital Into Shambles

By HENRY SUPPLE

SALEM, Mass., (AP) — A grim-faced Nebraska soldier stepped from a Coast Guard mercy plane today in a relay race home to his tragedy stricken family

Tech. Sgt. Charles R. Buggy, of Winebago, Neb., stepped off the mercy plane at 9:23 a.m., (CST), a little more than three hours after he was plucked from the troop transport Gen. Alexander Patch 500 miles at sea in the Atlantic ocean.

The Patch was New York bound from Bremerhaven, Germany.

The husky, moustached soldier, a veteran of World War II who re-enlisted, already has lost one of his two children to polio.

His other child is ill of the same disease.

His wife faces critical surgery for a spinal ailment.

"I appreciate it an awful lot," Buggy told the Coast Guard crew which flew so far to sea to pick him up.

He blinked as he added:

"I hope everything is all right at home."

Buggy said he first learned of the illness at his midwestern home yesterday noon.

A first mercy plane from Westover Air Force Base, Mass., alighted on the water near the transport last night, but was disabled when it collided with a life boat lowered from the ship.

The second mercy flight left Salem in the middle of the night, and contacted the transport at dawn.

Buggy was whisked immediately by automobile to the Beverly airport eight miles away where he was taken in a small plane to the Westover Air Force Base for transfer to a Nebraska bound military plane.

Rayburn and Johnson Rally for Stevenson

DALLAS, Tex., (AP) —Speaker Sam Rayburn and U. S. Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson rallied around the Democratic banner of Adlai Stevenson today. Others of their fellow Texans did too.

But the cry to put Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower's name on the Texas Democratic ticket continued.

Johnson and Rayburn announced yesterday their advocacy of Stevenson's Democratic presidential bid in the face of opposing stands by Gov. Allan Shivers and Atty. Gen. Price Daniel, Democratic nominee for U.S. senator to succeed Tom Connally.

oth Shivers and Daniel have expressed personal opposition to Stevenson's candidacy because the illinois governor said he agreed with President Truman in advocating federal ownership of the supposedly oilrich off-shore tide lands. Shivers also stand refelcted opinions that would likely lead him to follow the doctrines of what Shivers called "Trumanism."

Johnson said that while he did not agree with Stevenson's stand for federal ownership of the tie lands he would back the nominee of the National Democratic party. Rayburn at his home in Bonham said, "I indorse Sen. Johnson's statement fully."

Two other veteran Democrats, Rep. Lindley Beckworth of Gladewater and John C. Calhoun, former state Democratic Executive Committee chairman, also came out for Stevenson.

Dulles Attacks 'Termites' in Government

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP)John Foster Dulles today attacked "termites" in government and declared a greater measure of patriotism is needed among all in authority as "we look into the awful abyss of atomic and hydrogen war."

In a speech prepared for the Nation convention of Amvets, the tional convention of Amvets, the visor declared:

"Termites can destroy the noble edifice that our forebearers built. They must be rooted out, and the loyalty which qualified their successors must be something more positive than the negative virtue of not being a known member of the Communist party."

Dulles told the World War II veterans:

"When I speak of those 'in authority,' I have in mind not only the bandful of conspicious men at the top, but also the hundreds of thousands of government servants in all branches of public service. When government is so big that it

Hempstead Melons for Hospital Veterans

WATERMELONS FOR FT. ROOTS-VET. HOSP. DONATED BY V.F.W. POST 4511 HOPE ARK.

War veterans at Ft. Roots Hospital near Little Rock, Sunday enjoyed some 200 choice Hempstead watermelons which were taken to them by the local Ramsey-Cargile VFW post. Each year the VFW takes a load of melons to the hospitalized veterans.

Most of the melons were donated by Hempstead growers — Ervin Jones, O. D. Middlebrooks, W. H. Light, J. W. Hairston, Albert Smith, John Lloyd and Claud O'Steen. Trucks to haul them were furnished by Midwest Dairy Co. and Standard Auto Co. of Hope.

Melon Season on Last Legs, Yield Fair

The watermelon season in this section is on its last legs and only a few late ones are being sold locally. Truck loads, so prominent only a few days ago, are a thing of the past now.

Despite weather conditions — the driest season in years — production in this county was about 75 per cent normal. Larger acreage was offset by the reduction in yield.

Growers who normally produced 15,000 pounds of melons last year got only 7,000 to 10,000 pounds this season.

Over 1,200 acres of melons for market were planted in Hempstead this season — a majority of them being moved by truck. Only 27 rail carloads were shopped by Monts Seed Store from this city and shipping lasted only a couple of weeks.

Competition from trucks is gradually cutting into the rail shipping. Many truckers buy melons on the vine and deals of this type save the producer expense of pulling and hauling to market. The big trucks simply drive to the field and load direct. Some growers estimate that at least 95 per cent of the melon crop is moved by trucks.

Growers grossed from $75 to $100 per acre on marketable melons with the production and harvesting costs running about $25 per acre. But Hempstead producers run more as a rule because melons produced here always sell at top price.

Also many growers raise larger melons for special shipping. These are sent by individuals to persons and organizations all over the United States and weights range from 50 to 195 pounds — a 130-pounder was the largest produced this year.

It was grown by O. D. Middlebrooks of near Hope who in 1935 raised one that weighed 195 pound —the largest on record.

War Widow, Children Sleep in Car

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y. —(AP)— A young Arkansas war widow and her three small sons who were found sleeping in a car here yesterday are being cared for by the White Plains Shelter of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to children.

The 30-year-old World War II widow, Mrs. Rose Buffington, told police she and her children had driven here from Conway, Ark. in search of living quarters in New York.

Mrs. Buffington said that she decided to stay in the car when she saw how crowded living conditions were here. She said her only income was from government death benefit checks and that she was trying to save enough money to return to Arkansas.

Police said Mrs. Buffington and her sons, Lionel, 11; Daniel, 9, and James, 7, had been sleeping in the car for several nights. The mother said she had "a few dollars" in her purse.

Mr. Floyd, who five years ago took over the Hotel Barlow in Hope, will assume full charge of the Jonesboro Hotel on September 1, from R. H. Halbert who has operated the hotel for the past eight years.

Floyd has been manager of hotels in Salem, Ill., and Henderson, N. C. before coming to Hope. He was also associated with hotels in Tennessee, Alabama and Maine.

Mobster Settles Income Tax Debt

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The government, peeling the "secrecy" label from compromise tax settlement cases, says it accepted $100,000 from Jack "Greasy Thumb" Guzik as full payment for $900,000 it had claimed he owed in taxes and penalites.

The eleven - cents - on - the dollar settlement by Guzik, once connected with Al Capone's organization in Chicago, was one of several disclosed yesterday by the Bureau of Internal Reveune as it put into effect a new "open book" policy.

Under the new policy, all cases settled on or after Aug. 20 with taxpayers for less than the amount of taxes assessed will be made public. Those before that date will be disclosed upon specific requests naming the taxpayers involved.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue said Guzik was granted a compromise for three reasons: doubt as to whether he owed the full amount; inability of investigators to determine what he was worth; and "reduced earning power."

Asks Legality of Highway Purchases

LITTLE ROCK —(AP)— Rep. Jim Coates Jr. of Pulaski County requested a ruling by Atty. Gen. Ike Murry yesterday on the legality of "brand name purchasing" by the Arkansas Highway Department.

Murry, who previously refused to rule on the question, said he expected to have his answer ready "soon".

In connection with the ruling, Deputy Auditor B. E. Friday said that if the attorney general finds the method of inviting bids of "brand" name invalid, the state auditor's office will not issue a warrant to pay successful bidders.

The controversy concerns an invitation by the department on motor graders specifying three brand names; Austin-Western, Galion and Warco equipment.

Bids invited by the department were opened yesterday, plus bids from three suppliers handling other brands of motor graders. Prices listed by the "non-brand-name" dealers generally were lower than listings by suppliers complying with the Highway Department invitation.

Cherry Beat McMath by 98,396 Votes

LITTLE ROCK, (AP) — The official tally of the Aug. 12th Democratic run-off primary shows that Chancellor Francis Cherry defeated Gov. Sid McMath by 98,396 votes.

Frank Newell, secretary of the Democratic State Committee, said that of the official 376,500 votes cast, Cherry received 237,448; McMath 139,052.

Famous Ponies Coming to Hope

Grumpy and Dopey, the lead ponies of the famed Curtis Candy Six Pony Hitch stand ready and waiting for action at the Third District Livestock Show here September 22-27.

These fiery little animals and their four buddies have recently performed at many of the largest rodeos in Texas, thrilling thousands of people with their fast stepping exhibition of intricate and percision turns, pulling their gleaming white wagon behind them.

The ponies will be housed in a large tent on the showgrounds throughout the day and will perform each night of the rodeo. There is no admission to see the ponies.

Hurricane Is Moving Toward Three States

MIAMI, Fla., (UP)— An Atlantic hurricane aimed its 75 mile an hour winds today at upper Florida Georgia and South Carolina coasts.

The hurricane, increasing in intensity, was located at 11 a.m. only 280 miles east of Melbourne, about midway up the Florida peninsula.

Storm warnings were ordered hoisted from Vero Beach, Fla., to Wilmington, N. C., and the weather bureau warned coast residents to stand by for possible hurricane warnings this afternoon and tonight.

Hurricane "able," the first of the year, was bowling alone at an 18 mile an hour clip— rather fast for the doughnut shaped tropical storm.

"Further intensification may occur during passage over the Gulf stream," the Weather Bureau predicted. "It had shown a slight increase in strength and has a more definite center today."

It was moving in a westnorth-westward direction but a more northerly course is forecast after the howler approaches the coast.

"All interests are advised to stand by for further advices and possibly hurricane warnings," the advisory warned.

The storm, spawned north of the Leeward Islands in the Atlantic five days ago, caught residents along the North Florida coast by surprise. Only 12 hours ago it was far out at sea and had wind of only 55 miles an hour.

"I don't think people are aware yet that the storm is this close," Bill Morrison of Jacksonville beach said.

In the path of the blow lay huge navy ship bases and shipbuilding yards at Jacksonville. Also warnings were up along Georgia's golden isles— the tourist and wealthy folk mecca of St. Simons and sea island.

India Has Troubles But Is Sincere

By C. E. PALMER

ABOARD R.M.S. QUEEN ELIZABETH, — (Via Air Mail From London) — I was fortunate in meeting onboard Max C. Elliott, formerly manager of the American Express Company in Bombay, India, and now being transferred to Frankfurt, West Germany, where the company handles banking and finance for U.S. occupation forces.

Mr. Elliott has spent 24 years in the Far East and during that time has learned a great deal about Asiatics. He spent three and a half years as a prisoner of war and was one of 50,000 POWs who built the Burma railroad. About 29,000 of them died, Mr. Elliott estimating this at about one death for every tie that was laid. Surprisingly, the larger percentage of death was among the younger prisoners to most of whom of course, the Far East was new. Their guards were mostly Koreans who were brutal and cruel. When the war was over the POWs imprisoned their guards, most of whom were later executed for their atrocities.

Mr. Elliott thinks the Indian government is honest and sincere and has made very satisfactory progress considering the difficulties which face it. Nehru has feasible plans for hydro-electric development for power and irrigation, both badly needed, but because Indian capital is so limited these will have to be financed largely by foreign capital which will be welcomed and fairy treated. The English are more popular than ever, largely because they can no longer be blamed for everything that goes wrong, and there is more appreciation for what they have done in the past. Americans and American capital are also welcome and American engineering skill and money are now engaged in building oil refinaries in India.

Illiteracy and poverty are appalling, and millions spend their lives in the grasp of money lenders whose interest rates often reach 100 per cent per annum.

India ardently desires to remain neutral in the struggle between East and West, but there is little doubt that in the final showdown she will line up wholeheartedly with the West. Mr. Elliott be[illegible]

Department Store Sales Still Gaining

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Department store sales in the Eighth Federal Reserve Bank District continued to gain for the third consecutive week over a like period for a year ago.

The gain was not general. Sales in Memphis and small cities were down but elsewhere they were up, including Little Rock which showed an eight per cent gain for the week ending Aug. 23.

The eighth district, as a whole, was up 5 per cent for the week and 2 per cent for the comparable four week period in 1952. Little Rock was up 10 per cent for the four week period.

Food Prices Highest in U. S. History

WASHINGTON, (AP) — Mid-August retail food prices, the governments Bureau of Labor Statistic reports, were the highest in U. S. history.

During the first half of this month the bureau's index went up almost 1 per cent to 235.6 per cent of the 1935-39 average.

On the basis of figures collected in eight cities, the bureau said foods now are about 16 per cent higher than when the Korean War began in June, 1950.

In another economic development, the government yesterday suspended price controls on radios, television sets, record players, carpets and bedding. The latter includes studio couches, davenports, mattresses, springs and pillows.

Price controls were abolished on vitrified chinaware, silverware and jewelry, and hand-made household glassware.

Retiring Price Stabilizer Ellis Arnall said relaxations "do not mean abandonment of controls in any area where controls are needed."

OPS made clear that if the prices of items on which controls have been suspended rise to a point where they threaten to pierce the old price ceilings, controls will be reimposed.

Higher prices for pork and chicken were the main factors in the latest rise in the food index. Pork rose nearly 5 per cent during early August; chickens more than 4 per cent.

1,403 Sorties Heaviest Raid of Entire War

By WARREN FRANKLIN

SEOUL, Korea, (UP)— Allied war planes of four nations, striking from land and sea, pounded huge sections of the North Korean capital of Pyongyang into flaming shambles today in the heaviest air assault of the Korean war.

Fighter-bombers in three waves totaling 1,403 sorties lashed the Communist nerve center with bombs, bullets, rockets and napalm (jellied gasoline).

They hit 40 carefully-selected military targets in daylight after warning the civilian population by radio that the attack was coming.

Communist MIG-15 jet fighters tried desperately to halt the assault. Protecting U. S. Sabrejets and Australian meteor jets drove back the Russianbuilt MIGS destroying one and damaging two.

Previous record attack came on July 11 when the United Nations hit Pyongyang with 1,200 sorties (A Sortie is one flight by one plane).

Today's strike also was the Fifth Air Force's greatest effort of the war. Planes of the fifth and attached units flew 1,103 missions over the target area, surpassing their 1,063 record of July 11.

In addition carrier planes of the U. S. S. Essex, Princeton and Boxer struck with an estimated [illegible] sorties.

The third and final assault today sent 278 fighters and fighter-bombers of the 5th Air Force and about 70 planes from carriers against Pyongyang.

The combined land and sea armada dropped more than [illegible] tons of bombs and fired more than [illegible] 000 rounds of ammunition.

The planes dropped tanks with 4,000 gallons of flaming napalm ignoring Communist radio protests of last week that use of napalm was a "barbarism."

Towering plumes of smoke prevented full estimates of damage.

Dewey to Go Out for Ike in New York

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

NEW YORK, (AP)— Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, spreading rosy predictions, said today that his campaigning for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will be confined to New York State.

Dewey and New York State Republican legislative leaders spent an hour this morning with the Republican presidential nominee.

The governor, twice a loser himself in presidential races, told reporters he offered Eisenhower no advice on how the general should campaign this time.

"I'm going to do everything I can to carry the State of New York. I'm going to carry any bags and run any errands."

He said that, "Goodness, no," he won't campaign outside the state.

As to whether the GOP will take New York State, Dewey said, "I have very high confidence in the intelligence and good sense of the people of New York. I believe they will vote overwhelmingly for Eisenhower."

The general himself was in the midst of another daylong whirl. Eisenhower's conference with Dewey came shortly after he announced his first major campaign trip — a double circle route that will carry him through strategic areas of the South and Mid West.

Eisenhower had daylong conferences scheduled at his headquarters at the Commodore Hotel. He started off by seeing 15 members of the Association of Wool Manufacturers. Then he posed for pictures, signed autographs and turned to hear some barber shop singing by the North Carolina delegation to the American Legion convention.

Leaving New York Sept. 2, he will make appearances in 14 cities in 10 states. The schedule also includes speeches in New York and Philadelphia. The itinerary:

Sept. 1 — New York.

Sept. 2 — Atlanta, Ga., and Jacksonville and Miami, Fla.

Sept. 3 — Tampa, Fla., Birmingham, Ala., Little Rock, Ark., and [illegible] New York.

Sept. 4 — Philadelphia.

Sept. 5 — Chicago.

Sept. 6 — Rochester, Kasson and Minneapolis, Minn.

Sept. 7 — Sunday— Minneapolis appointments.

Sept. 8 — Indianapolis, Ind.

Sept. 10 —Return New York.

One of his aides said today the general will remain in New York no more than two or three days before starting on an even longer trip via the traditional campaign train with numerous "whistle stop" appearances. The route has not been fixed.

Slots, Bookies Found at Spa

HOT SPRINGS, (AP) — County and city police yesterday, raided a downtown establishment, arrested three men and confiscated two slot machines and book-making equipment.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Sam Richards and Police Chief John Ermey said the gambling house was in a second— story room at 813½ Central Avenue. Charges of operating a gambling house was filed against James T. Barker, A. B. Abbott and C. F. Mahoney, all of Hot Springs.

The three were released on bonds of $250 each pending preliminary hearing in Municipal Court Saturday.

The officers said between 25 and 40 persons were found in the establishment.

Richards said the afternoon raid was instituted on a search warrant signed by Cicuit Judge C. Floyd Hull.

William Ransome Gail Baker is said to be the only to have a television station named for him. It's N. Y.

Uncle Charged in Death of Girl

RIVERSIDE, Calif., — Acting Dist. Atty. Elwood Rich says he will file first degree murder charges today against John Chauncey of Lawrence 37, held in the slaying of Kathryn Knodel, 16, Lawrence's niece.

Rich said yesterday he will seek a grand jury indictment against Lawrence in about two weeks.

Funeral services for the battered and ravished girl were held yesterday at Redlands, but burial was delayed to make sure officials have all the medical information they need.

The girl's body was found near Palm Springs early last Wednesday. Lawrence has admitted hitting Kathryn on the head with a rock but insists she was already dead and he was trying to make it look as if she had been run over by a car. She was killed accidentally, Lawrence says, when struck by a jack handle as she helped to fix a tire.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Copyright, 1952

By King Features Syndicate.

The American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations have had the effrontery to invite the two candidates for the presidency of this socialist republic to come, hat-in-hand, to their autumn consistories and seek their favor. These are organizations operating under special political license from the Roosevelt-Truman administration. Both candidates know this to be the fact but neither of them will have the honor and courage to express the proper resentment and both will treat these invitations as commands. Both nominees are afraid to declare that these bad bums are outlaws against the American state and its people and to promise the nation and the people deliverance from their ruthless power.

The AF of L executive council or cabinet recently received with a straight face a report from a special committee revealing the fact that racketeers had managed to obtain charters in a few unimportant locals and had been extorting money from workers and employers. Our press treated this as hot news and played it straight without reference to the sordid record established in the last 15 years proving beyond denial that the AF of L was a licensing authority for criminals of the lowest types.

The executive council of the AF of L is a band of political highbinders which in many proven cases has taken aggressive action against rank-and-file workers who were driven to the folly of opposing the rule of gangsters put over them by the authority of the AF of L.

For many years its attorney-general, so to speak, was Joe Padway, a greedy and thoroughly corrupt ambulance chaser from Milwaukee who ran up an enormous practice as defender of such rogues as Browne and Bioff and George Scalise, known to him to be agents of the Capone mob. Padway brazenly showed himself at a convention of the Browne-Bioff underworld chapter of the AF of L in Louisville and sang rapturous praises of these two vermin. He had his price and they paid it, and the AF of L endorsed his conduct.

Browne was a member of the executive council or cabinet and Dan Tobin, of the teamsters, frankly admitting his own knowledge that Browne was an underworld criminal, explained that he would not think of denouncing him because protocol in this gang which now commands the nominees, forbade one racketeer to embarrass another lest reprisals lead to general embarrassment. If he had called Browne a crook and tried to liberate Browne's subjects from persecution, Browne and other crooks would holler up the fact that Tobin had thrown a whole council of locals of the teamsters' union in Cincinnati into permanent receivership under a loathesome old thief named Brocky Farrell with plenipotentiary powers from Tobin, himself.

Farrell's reign lasted 25 years, during which his subjects had no voice in the affairs of their unions and fell steadily lower in the scale of wages and living.

Farrell was responsible only to Tobin and he became notorious as the official spendthrift at the drunken galas of the hetrarchy, squandering with the lavish hand of a bush-league Paul Hoffman money wrung from the hearts and marrow of degraded Cincinnati truckmen and their wives and children.

When, at last, his reign was ended by a court order, that order, with sweet consideration for the political might of the boss racketeers of unionism, quietly dissolved the situation without awarding damages to the victims. And Padway, as Tobin's counsel, was included in the order for a fee of $5,000.

For more than 15 years I have been pounding the scoundrels of unionism in both of the great gangs, AF of L and CIO. It is not quite to the point to say, as some do, that if I had not been right I should have been jailed away long ago for abusing virtuous men. It is straight to the point, however, to say that extortion, persecution and degradation of millions of union subjects, many of them unwilling captives, are inherent in the very nature of these evil societies and are brazenly defended as just powers of unions by the very men whom Eisenhower and Stevenson will gladly truckle to.

The "committee" which reported, as though in shocked astonisnment, the presence of a few racketeers newly "discovered" in the AF of L included William L. McFetridge, president of the building service employees' union. This mealy faker succeeded George Scalise when Scalise was deposed by the official diligence of Tom Dewey in his old, conscientious phase.

McFetridge, was, until then, a subordinate official in this foul underworld crew. He now enjoys a spurious reputation as a brave man who fought the mob at great risk. The truth is that he kept his mouth shut and took no action to clean the gangsters out. He had a soft job and was content.

Inquiring about old thieves in Chicago recently I remarked to a case-hardened cop who had specialized in union criminality the where-abouts of Umbrella Mike Boyle, long ago denounced by the federal courts as a betrayer of labor and a grafter and all-around crook. His union was the electrical brotherhood of the AF of L. Surely. I thought, this incredible rogue must have been eliminated by now.

"Oh, no," the policeman said. "Mike is down in Washington in the grand headquarters."

This union, incidentally, has established scholarships in the electricians' trade for deserving young men in the saintly name of William E. Hogan, who was sent to Sing Sing prison for robbing the widows' and orphans' fund, paroled and promptly reinstated for life in the same fiduciary jobs.

This commentary is a practice swing in preparation for my report to the Vatican for the information of the pope on the true, foul nature of an American phenomenon as requested by the holy father's chief advisor on labor.

HOMETOWN, U. S. A., (AP) — he Peebles, like many an Amerin family today, are a house vided. Wilbur, the country's most erage citizen, and his wife, Trel- Mae, used to quarrell over only e thing — her ambition to own a ink coat.

But that was before Wilbur went the Republican convention and me home in favor of Gen. Eisenhower, and Trellis Mae attended e Democratic convention and rerned an ardent rooter for Gov. evenson.

Now they are separated by a ew yawning chasm— party polics.

Wilbur awoke the other morning a cramped position on the livg room sofa, to which he had een exiled by Trellis Mae after e referred slightingly to Stevenn as "a Truman in short pants." His wife, her hair still in metal urlers, sat in her favorite chair udying the newspaper.

"How about breakfast, honey" id Wilbur. "I'm starving."

"Make it yourself, you Republin— you believe in individual nterprise," replied Trellis Mae. And don't burn the toast. I have catch up on the political news."

Wilbur meekly got up, showered, haved, dressed, and fixed breakst for two. Trellis Mae joined m at the table, put down the ewspaper, and said:

"Well, he's done it again."

er husband went on morosely unching his toast.

"I say, he's done it again:" said rellis Mae more loudly.

"Who?" said Wilbur, unable to esist the bait.

"As if you didn't know. Ha, ha, al Stevenson— of course."

"Has he attacked that mess in Washington again?"

"Don't be so funny," said Trells Mae. "He says your pal Ike is up to his knees in a bucket of els. Ha, ha, ha! What's the mater with Ike's campaign anyway? t's stalled."

"Ike's just getting into gear," eplied Wilbur stoutly. "He likes o plan his campaigns instead of going off half— cocked. When he really hits the Democrats it'll be another Normandy landing."

"All I can say," remarked Trellis Mae, "is that right now he is approaching victory with the speed of erosion."

"I really don't understand you," said Wilbur, trying dignity. "Your father was a Republican, your grandfather was a Republican, and you were a Republican until last month. You don't want to be a turncoat, do you?"

"Look who's talking," answered his wife. "Who voted for Roosevelt three times? You! Who said when he got out of the army he'd never vote for a man who wore a uniform? You!"

"That was before they nominated Ike," said Wilbur. "Can't a man change his mind?"

"Can't a woman?"

"Sure, but Ike is a new broom. He's got what the country needs. He is a real man of action. Stevenson is just a phrase-maker. Anybody can make a high-sounding phrase."

"Oh, can they?" demanded Trellis Mae. "All right, Wilbur. You make one. Right now. Quick."

Wilbur stard at her. His mouth opened and closed, opened and closed again.

"Uh-uh-uh," he sputtered. "Women have no darn business talking politics."

"That isn't a new phrase," said Trellis Mae. "That is a platitude, my love."

Wilbur made a final attempt to convert her.

"I ask you one thing— just one thing," he said. "What has Adlai Stevenson got that Ike doesn't have more of?"

"Me!" said Trellis Mae triumphantly.

Wilbur looked at his wife, shook his head, threw down his napkin, and trudged off to work. November— and peace— seemed a long way off.

Detroit Case Cited as One Smoothed Over

WASHINGTON, (AP) — House investigators today charged that the Justice Department has been "most dilatory" in some prosecutions and cited a Detroit war fraud case as a "typical example."

Counsel Robert A. Collier laid before a judiciary subcommittee a number of documents dealing with the Norman E. Miller and Associates, Inc. case which came up in 1944 and closed in 1951 without prosecution or recovery of government funds.

Collier said Miller was indicted July 14, 1944 on six counts alleging fruad in that he had "knowingly and fraudulently charged indirect time as direct time for his employes in performing under certain government contracts."

In addition to the indictment, Collier said a civil suit was filed by the government seeking recovery of $36,000.

"Despite the fact that in its early phases the case was described by the justice attorneys as 'one of the best' that the department had." Collier said, "action was delayed through various devices for over six years at which time both suits were dropped."

Collier told the committee that its staff, after a review of numerous cases in Justice Department files, decided "it is to the best interests" that it demonstrate publicly how dilatory the department has been.

Plane Brings Soldier to His Stricken Family

By HENRY SUPPLE

SALEM, Mass., (AP) — A grimfaced Nebraska soldier stepped from a Coast Guard mercy plane today in a relay race home to his tragedy stricken family

Tech. Sgt. Charles R. Buggy, of Winebago, Neb., stepped off the mercy plane at 9:23 a.m., (CST), a little more than three hours after he was plucked from the troop transport Gen. Alexander Patch 500 miles at sea in the Atlantic ocean.

The Patch was New York bound from Bremerhaven, Germany.

The husky, moustached soldier, a veteran of World War II who re-enlisted, already has lost one of his two children to polio.

His other child is ill of the same disease.

His wife faces critical surgery for a spinal ailment.

"I appreciate it an awful lot," Buggy told the Coast Guard crew which flew so far to sea to pick him up.

He blinked as he added:

"I hope everything is all right at home."

Buggy said he first learned of the illness at his midwestern home yesterday noon.

A first mercy plane from Westover Air Force Base, Mass., alighted on the water near the transport last night, but was disabled when it collided with a life boat lowered from the ship.

The second mercy flight left Salem in the middle of the night, and contacted the transport at dawn.

Buggy was whisked immediately by automobile to the Beverly airport eight miles away where he was taken in a small plane to the Westover Air Force Base for transfer to a Nebraska bound military plane.

Rayburn and Johnson Rally for Stevenson

DALLAS, Tex., (AP) —Speaker Sam Rayburn and U. S. Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson rallied around the Democratic banner of Adlai Stevenson today. Others of their fellow Texans did too.

But the cry to put Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower's name on the Texas Democratic ticket continued.

Johnson and Rayburn announced yesterday their advocacy of Stevenson's Democratic presidential bid in the face of opposing stands by Gov. Allan Shivers and Atty. Gen. Price Daniel, Democratic nominee for U.S. senator to succeed Tom Connally.

oth Shivers and Daniel have expressed personal opposition to Stevenson's candidacy because the Illinois governor said he agreed with President Truman in advocating federal ownership of the supposedly oilrich off-shore tide lands. Shivers also stand refelcted opinions that would likely lead him to follow the doctrines of what Shivers called "Trumanism."

Johnson said that while he did not agree with Stevenson's stand for federal ownership of the tie lands he would back the nominee of the National Democratic party. Rayburn at his home in Bonham said, "I indorse Sen. Johnson's statement fully."

Two other veteran Democrats, Rep. Lindley Beckworth of Gladewater and John C. Calhoun, former state Democratic Executive Committee chairman, also came out for Stevenson.

Dulles Attacks 'Termites' in Government

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP)John Foster Dulles today attacked "termites" in government and declared a greater measure of patriotism is needed among all in authority as "we look into the awful abyss of atomic and hydrogen war."

In a speech prepared for the Nation convention of Amvets, the tional convention of Amvets, the viser declared:

"Termites can destroy the noble edifice that our forebearers built. They must be rooted out, and the loyalty which qualified their successors must be something more positive than the negative virtue of not being a known member of the Communist party."

Dulles told the World War II veterans:

"When I speak of those 'in authority,' I have in mind not only the handful of conspicious men at the top, but also the hundreds of thousands of government servants in all branches of public service. When government is so big that it

Hempstead Melons for Hospital Veterans

WATERMELONS FOR FT. ROOTS-VET. HOSP. DONATED BY V.F.W. POST 4511 HOPE ARK.

War veterans at Ft. Roots Hospital near Little Rock, Sunday enjoyed some 200 choice Hempstead watermelons which were taken to them by the local Ramsey-Cargile VFW post. Each year the VFW takes a load of melons to the hospitalized veterans.

Most of the melons were donated by Hempstead growers — Ervin Jones, O. D. Middlebrooks, W. H. Light, J. W. Hairston, Albert Smith, John Lloyd and Claud O'Steen. Trucks to haul them were furnished by Midwest Dairy Co. and Standard Auto Co. of Hope.

Melon Season on Last Legs, Yield Fair

The watermelon season in this section is on its last legs and only a few late ones are being sold locally. Truck loads, so prominent only a few days ago, are a thing of the past now.

Despite weather conditions — the driest season in years — production in this county was about 75 per cent normal. Larger acreage was offset by the reduction in yield.

Growers who normally produced 15,000 pounds of melons last year got only 7,000 to 10,000 pounds this season.

Over 1,200 acres of melons for market were planted in Hempstead this season — a majority of them being moved by truck. Only 27 rail carloads were shopped by Monts Seed Store from this city and shipping lasted only a couple of weeks.

Competition from trucks is gradually cutting into the rail shipping. Many truckers buy melons on the vine and deals of this type save the producer expense of pulling and hauling to market. The big trucks simply drive to the field and load direct. Some growers estimate that at least 95 per cent of the melon crop is moved by trucks.

Growers grossed from $75 to $100 per acre on marketable melons with the production and harvesting costs running about $25 per acre. But Hempstead producers run more as a rule because melons produced here always sell at top price.

Also many growers raise larger melons for special shipping. These are sent by individuals to persons and organizations all over the United States and weights range from 50 to 195 pounds — a 130-pounder was the largest produced this year.

It was grown by O. D. Middlebrooks of near Hope who in 1935 raised one that weighed 195 pound —the largest on record.

War Widow, Children Sleep in Car

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y. —(AP)— A young Arkansas war widow and her three small sons who were found sleeping in a car here yesterday are being cared for by the White Plains Shelter of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to children.

The 30-year--old World War II widow, Mrs. Rose Buffington, told police she and her children had driven here from Conway, Ark. in search of living quarters in New York.

Mrs. Buffington said that she decided to stay in the car when she saw how crowded living conditions were here. She said her only income was from government death benefit checks and that she was trying to save enough money to return to Arkansas.

Police said Mrs. Buffington and her sons, Lionel, 11; Daniel, 9, and James, 7, had been sleeping in the car for several nights. The mother said she had "a few dollars" in her purse.

It is believed theat we are using the same water that existed on earth when the world began, although it has been turned from liquid to vapor or ice and back again many, many times.

D. M. Floyd Takes Over Hotel at Jonesboro, Ark.

D. M. Floyd of Hope has acquired a lease on the Hotel Nobel, largest hotel in Jonesboro, Ark.

Mr. Floyd, who five years ago took over the Hotel Barlow in Hope, will assume full charge of the Jonesboro Hotel on September 1, from R. H. Halbert who has operated the hotel for the past eight years.

Floyd has been manager of hotels in Salem, Ill., and Henderson, N. C. before coming to Hope. He was also associated with hotels in Tennessee, Alabama and Maine.

Mobster Settles Income Tax Debt

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The government, peeling the "secrecy" label from compromise tax settlement cases, says it accepted $100,000 from Jack "Greasy Thumb" Guzik as full payment for $900,000 it had claimed he owed in taxes and penalites.

The eleven - cents - on - the dollar settlement by Guzik, once connected with Al Capone's organization in Chicago, was one of several disclosed yesterday by the Bureau of Internal Revenue as it put into effect a new "open book" policy.

Under the new policy, all cases settled on or after Aug. 20 with taxpayers for less than the amount of taxes assessed will be made public. Those before that date will be disclosed upon specific requests naming the taxpayers involved.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue said Guzik was granted a compromise for three reasons: doubt as to whether he owed the full amount; inability of investigators to determine what he was worth; and "reduced earning power."

Asks Legality of Highway Purchases

LITTLE ROCK —(AP)— Rep. Jim Coates Jr. of Pulaski County requested a ruling by Atty. Gen. Ike Murry yesterday on the legality of "brand name purchasing" by the Arkansas Highway Department.

Murry, who previously refused to rule on the question, said he expected to have his answer ready "soon".

In connection with the ruling, Deputy Auditor B. E. Friday said that if the attorney general finds the method of inviting bids of "brand" name invalid, the state auditor's office will not issue a warrant to pay successful bidders.

The controversy concerns an invitation by the department on motor graders specifying three brand names; Austin-Western, Galion and Warco equipment.

Bids invited by the department were opened yesterday, plus bids from three suppliers handling other brands of motor graders. Prices listed by the "non-brand-name" dealers generally were lower than listings by suppliers complying with the Highway Department invitation.

Cherry Beat McMath by 98,396 Votes

LITTLE ROCK, (AP) — The official tally of the Aug. 12th Democratic run-off primary shows that Chancellor Francis Cherry defeated Gov. Sid McMath by 98,396 votes.

Frank Newell, secretary of the Democratic State Committee, said that of the official 376,500 votes cast, Cherry received 237,448; McMath 139,052.

Famous Ponies Coming to Hope

Grumpy and Dopey, the lead ponies of the famed Curtis Candy Six Pony Hitch stand ready and waiting for action at the Third District Livestock Show here September 22-27.

These fiery little animals and their four buddies have recently performed at many of the largest rodeos in Texas, thrilling thousands of people with their fast stepping exhibition of intricate and percision turns, pulling their gleaming white wagon behind them.

The ponies will be housed in a large tent on the showgrounds throughout the day and will perform each night of the rodeo. There is no admission to see the ponies.

Hurricane Is Moving Toward Three States

MIAMI, Fla., (UP)— An Atlantic hurricane aimed its 75 mile an hour winds today at upper Florida Georgia and South Carolina coasts.

The hurricane, increasing in intensity, was located at 11 a.m. only 280 miles east of Melbourne, about midway up the Florida peninsula.

Storm warnings were ordered hoisted from Vero Beach, Fla., to Wilmington, N. C., and the weather bureau warned coast residents to stand by for possible hurricane warnings this afternoon and tonight.

Hurricane "able," the first of the year, was bowling alone at an 18 mile an hour clip— rather fast for the doughnut shaped tropical storm.

"Further intensification may occur during passage over the Gulf stream," the Weather Bureau predicted. "It had shown a slight increase in strength and has a more definite center today."

It was moving in a westnorthwestward direction but a more northerly course is forecast after the howler approaches the coast.

"All interests are advised to stand by for further advices and possibly hurricane warnings," the advisory warned.

The storm, spawned north of the Leeward Islands in the Atlantic five days ago, caught residents along the North Florida coast by surprise. Only 12 hours ago it was far out at sea and had wind of only 55 miles an hour.

"I don't think people are aware yet that the storm is this close," Bill Morrison of Jacksonville beach said.

In the path of the blow lay huge navy ship bases and shipbuilding yards at Jacksonville. Also warnings were up along Georgia's golden isles— the tourist and wealthy folk mecca of St. Simons and sea island.

India Has Troubles But Is Sincere

By C. E. PALMER

ABOARD R.M.S. QUEEN ELIZABETH, — (Via Air Mail From London) — I was fortunate in meeting onboard Max C. Elliott, formerly manager of the American Express Company in Bombay, India, and now being transferred to Frankfurt, West Germany, where the company handles banking and finance for U.S. occupation forces.

Mr. Elliott has spent 24 years in the Far East and during that time has learned a great deal about Asiatics. He spent three and a half years as a prisoner of war and was one of 50,000 POWs who built the Burma railroad. About 29,000 of them died, Mr. Elliott estimating this at about one death for every tie that was laid. Surprisingly, the larger percentage of death was among the younger prisoners to most of whom of course, the Far East was new. Their guards were mostly Koreans who were brutal and cruel. When the war was over the POWs imprisoned their guards, most of whom were later executed for their atrocities.

Mr. Elliott thinks the Indian government is honest and sincere and has made very satisfactory progress considering the difficulties which face it. Nehru has feasible plans for hydro-electric development for power and irrigation, both badly needed, but because Indian capital is so limited these will have to be financed largely by foreign capital which will be welcomed and fairy treated. The English are more popular than ever, largely because they can no longer be blamed for everything that goes wrong, and there is more appreciation for what they have done in the past. Americans and American capital are also welcome and American engineering skill and money are now engaged in building oil refineries in India.

Illiteracy and poverty are appalling, and millions spend their lives in the grasp of money lenders whose interest rates often reach 100 per cent per annum.

India ardently desires to remain neutral in the struggle between East and West, but there is little doubt that in the final showdown she will line up wholeheartedly with the West. Mr. Elliott be-

Department Store Sales Still Gaining

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Department store sales in the Eighth Federal Reserve Bank District continued to gain for the third consecutive week over a like period for a year ago.

The gain was not general. Sales in Memphis and small cities were down but elsewhere they were up, including Little Rock which showed an eight per cent gain for the week ending Aug. 23.

The eighth district, as a whole, was up 5 per cent for the week and 2 per cent for the comparable four week period in 1952. Little Rock was up 10 per cent for the four week period.

Food Prices Highest in U. S. History

WASHINGTON, (AP) — Mid-August retail food prices, the governments Bureau of Labor Statistic reports, were the highest in U. S. history.

During the first half of this month the bureau's index went up almost 1 per cent to 235.6 per cent of the 1935-39 average.

On the basis of figures collected in eight cities, the bureau said foods now are about 16 per cent higher than when the Korean War began in June, 1950.

In another economic development, the government yesterday suspended price controls on radios, television sets, record players, carpets and bedding. The latter includes studio couches, davenports, mattresses, springs and pillows.

Price controls were abolished on vitrified chinaware, silverware and jewelry, and hand-made household glassware.

Retiring Price Stabilizer Ellis Arnall said relaxations "do not mean abandonment of controls in any area where controls are needed."

OPS made clear that if the prices of items on which controls have been suspended rise to a point where they threaten to pierce the old price ceilings, controls will be reimposed.

Higher prices for pork and chicken were the main factors in the latest rise in the food index. Pork rose nearly 5 per cent during early August; chickens more than 4 per cent.

1,403 Sorties Heaviest Raid of Entire War

By WARREN FRANKLIN

SEOUL, Korea, (UP)— Allied war planes of four nations, striking from land and sea, pounded huge sections of the North Korean capital of Pyongyang into flaming shambles today in the heaviest air assault of the Korean war.

Fighter-bombers in three waves totaling 1,403 sorties lashed the Communist nerve center with bombs, bullets, rockets and napalm (jellied gasoline).

They hit 40 carefully-selected military targets in daylight after warning the civilian population by radio that the attack was coming.

Communist MIG-15 jet fighters tried desperately to halt the assault. Protecting U. S. Sabrejets and Australian meteor jets drove back the Russianbuilt MIGS destroying one and damaging two.

Previous record attack came on July 11 when the United Nations hit Pyongyang with 1,200 sorties. (A Sortie is one flight by one plane).

Today's strike also was the Fifth Air Force's greatest effort of the war. Planes of the fifth and attached units flew 1,103 missions over the target area, surpassing their 1,063 record of July 11.

In addition carrier planes of the U. S. S. Essex, Princeton and Boxer struck with an estimated 210 sorties.

The third and final assault today sent 278 fighters and fighter-bombers of the 5th Air Force and about 70 planes from carriers against Pyongyang.

The combined land and [illegible] mada dropped more than [illegible] tons of bombs and fired more than [illegible] 000 rounds of ammunition.

The planes dropped tanks with 4,000 gallons of flaming napalm ignoring Communist radio protests of last week that use of napalm was a "barbarism."

Towering plumes of smoke prevented full estimates of damage.

Incomplete claims of pilots returning from the third wave included five buildings destroyed and [illegible] damaged, two gun positions, [illegible] stroyed and one damaged, one warehouse destroyed and 32 hits on a concrete bridge.

The first mercy plane landed successfully on the water near the transport but collided with a life boat lowered from the ship to secure a line between the 2 craft. The plane's propellor was damaged.

Slots, Bookies Found at Spa

HOT SPRINGS, (AP) — County and city police yesterday, raided a downtown establishment, arrested three men and confiscated two slot machines and book-making equipment.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Sam Richards and Police Chief John Ermey said the gambling house was in a second— story room at 813½ Central Avenue. Charges of operating a gambling house was filed against James T. Barker, A. B. Abbott and C. F. Mahoney, all of Hot Springs.

The three were released on bonds of $250 each pending preliminary hearing in Municipal Court Saturday.

The officers said between 25 and 40 persons were found in the establishment.

Richards said the afternoon raid was instituted on a search warrant signed by Cicuit Judge C. Floyd Hull.

William Ransome Gall Baker is said to be the only to have a television station named for him. It's N. Y.

Uncle Charged in Death of Girl

RIVERSIDE, Calif., — Acting Dist. Atty. Elwood Rich says he will file first degree murder charges today against John Chauncey of Lawrence 37, held in the slaying of Kathryn Knodel, 16, Lawrence's niece.

Rich said yesterday he will seek a grand jury indictment against Lawrence in about two weeks.

Funeral services for the battered and ravished girl were held yesterday at Redlands, but burial was delayed to make sure officials have all the medical information they need.

The girl's body was found near Palm Springs early last Wednesday. Lawrence has admitted hitting Kathryn on the head with a rock but insists she was already dead and he was trying to make it look as if she had been run over by a car. She was killed accidentally, Lawrence says, when struck by a jack handle as she helped to fix a tire.

Fair Enough

The American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations have had the effrontery to invite the two candidates for the presidency of this socialist republic to come, hat-in-hand, to their autumn consistories and seek their favor. These are organizations operating under special political license from the Roosevelt-Truman administration. Both candidates know this to be the fact but neither of them will have the honor and courage to express the proper resentment and both will treat these invitations as commands. Both nominees are afraid to declare that these bad bums are outlaws against the American state and its people and to promise the nation and the people deliverance from their ruthless power.

The AF of L executive council or cabinet recently received with a straight face a report from a special committee revealing the fact that racketeers had managed to obtain charters in a few unimportant locals and had been extorting money from workers and employers. Our press treated this as hot news and played it straight without reference to the sordid record established in the last 15 years proving beyond denial that the AF of L was a licensing authority for criminals of the lowest types.

The executive council of the AF of L is a band of political highbinders which in many proven cases has taken aggressive action against rank-and-file workers who were driven to the folly of opposing the rule of gangsters put over them by the authority of the AF of L.

For many years its attorney-general, so to speak, was Joe Padway, a greedy and thoroughly corrupt ambulance chaser from Milwaukee who ran up an enormous practice as defender of such rogues as Browne and Bioff and George Scalise, known to him to be agents of the Capone mob. Padway brazenly showed himself at a convention of the Browne-Bioff underworld chapter of the AF of L in Louisville and sang rapturous praises of these two vermin. He had his price and they paid it, and the AF of L endorsed his conduct.

Browne was a member of the executive council or cabinet and Dan Tobin, of the teamsters, frankly admitting his own knowledge that Browne was an underworld criminal, explained that he would not think of denouncing him because protocol in this gang which now commands the nominees, forbade one racketeer to embarrass another lest reprisals lead to general embarrassment. If he had called Browne a crook and tried to liberate Browne's subjects from persecution, Browne and other crooks would holler up the fact that Tobin had thrown a whole council of locals of the teamsters' union in Cincinnati into permanent receivership under a loathesome old thief named Brocky Farrell with plenipotentiary powers from Tobin, himself.

Farrell's reign lasted 25 years, during which his subjects had no voice in the affairs of their unions and fell steadily lower in the scale of wages and living.

Farrell was responsible only to Tobin and he became notorious as the official spendthrift at the drunken galas of the heirarchy, squandering with the lavish hand of a bush-league Paul Hoffman money wrung from the hearts and marrow of degraded Cincinnati truckmen and their wives and children.

When, at last, his reign was ended by a court order, that order, with sweet consideration for the political might of the boss racketeers of unionism, quietly dissolved the situation without awarding damages to the victims. And Padway, as Tobin's counsel, was included in the order for a fee of $5,000.

For more than 15 years I have been pounding the scoundrels of unionism in both of the great gangs, AF of L and CIO. It is not quite to the point to say, as some do, that if I had not been right I should have been jailed away long ago for abusing virtuous men. It is straight to the point, however, to say that extortion, persecution and degradation of millions of union subjects, many of them unwilling captives, are inherent in the very nature of these evil societies and are brazenly defended as just powers of unions by the very men whom Eisenhower and Stevenson will gladly truckle to.

The "committee" which reported, as though in shocked astonisnment, the presence of a few racketeers newly "discovered" in the AF of L included William L. McFetridge, president of the building service employees' union. This mealy faker succeeded George Scalise when Scalise was deposed by the official diligence of Tom Dewey in his old, conscientious phase.

McFetridge, was, until then, a subordinate official in this foul underworld crew. He now enjoys a spurious reputation as a brave man who fought the mob at great risk. The truth is that he kept his mouth shut and took no action to clean the gangsters out. He had a soft job and was content.

Inquiring about old thieves in Chicago recently I remarked to a case-hardened cop who had specialized in union criminality the where-abouts of Umbrella Mike Boyle, long ago denounced by the federal courts as a betrayer of labor and a grafter and all-around crook. His union was the electrical brotherhood of the AF of L. Surely. I thought, this incredible rogue must have been eliminated by now.

"Oh, no," the policeman said. "Mike is down in Washington in the grand headquarters."

This union, incidentally, has established scholarships in the electricians' trade for deserving young men in the saintly name of William E. Hogan, who was sent to Sing Sing prison for robbing the widows' and orphans' fund, paroled and promptly reinstated for life in the same fiduciary jobs.

This commentary is a practice swing in preparation for my report to the Vatican for the information of the pope on the true, foul nature of an Amercian phenomenon as requested by the holy father's chief advisor on labor.

HOMETOWN, U. S. A., (AP) — e Peebles, like many an Ameri- n family today, are a house vided. Wilbur, the country's most erage citizen, and his wife, Trel- Mae, used to quarrell over only e thing — her ambition to own a ink coat.

But that was before Wilbur went the Republican convention and me home in favor of Gen. Eisenhower, and Trellis Mae attended e Democratic convention and re- rned an ardent rooter for Gov. evenson.

Now they are separated by a ew yawning chasm— party politics.

Wilbur awoke the other morning a cramped position on the living room sofa, to which he had een exiled by Trellis Mae after e referred slightingly to Stevenson as "a Truman in short pants." His wife, her hair still in metal urlers, sat in his favorite chair udying the newspaper.

"How about breakfast, honey" aid Wilbur. "I'm starving."

"Make it yourself, you Republican— you believe in individual nterprise," replied Trellis Mae. And don't burn the toast. I have catch up on the political news."

Wilbur meekly got up, showered, haved, dressed, and fixed breakfast for two. Trellis Mae joined m at the table, put down the ewspaper, and said:

"Well, he's done it again."

er husband went on morosely unching his toast.

"I say, he's done it again:" said rellis Mae more loudly.

"Who?" said Wilbur, unable to esist the bait.

"As if you didn't know, Ha, ha, al Stevenson— of course."

"Has he attacked that mess in Washington again?"

"Don't be so funny," said Trellis Mae. "He says your pal Ike is up to his knees in a bucket of eels. Ha, ha, ha! What's the matter with Ike's campaign anyway? It's stalled."

"Ike's just getting into gear," replied Wilbur stoutly. "He likes to plan his campaigns instead of going off half— cocked. When he really hits the Democrats it'll be another Normandy landing."

"All I can say," remarked Trellis Mae, "is that right now he is approaching victory with the speed of erosion."

"I really don't understand you," said Wilbur, trying dignity. "Your father was a Republican, your grandfather was a Republican, and you were a Republican until last month. You don't want to be a turncoat, do you?"

"Look who's talking," answered his wife. "Who voted for Roosevelt three times? You! Who said when he got out of the army he'd never vote for a man who wore a uniform? You!"

"That was before they nominated Ike," said Wilbur. "Can't a man change his mind?"

"Can't a woman?"

"Sure, but Ike is a new broom. He's got what the country needs. He is a real man of action. Stevenson is just a phrase-maker. Anybody can make a high-sounding phrase."

"Oh, can they?" demanded Trellis Mae. "All right, Wilbur. You make one. Right now. Quick."

Wilbur stard at her. His mouth opened and closed, opened and closed again.

"Uh-uh-uh," he spluttered. "Women have no darn business talking politics."

"That isn't a new phrase," said Trellis Mae. "That is a platitude, my love."

Wilbur made a final attempt to convert her.

"I ask you one thing— just one thing," he said. "What has Adlai Stevenson got that Ike doesn't have more of?"

"Me!" said Trellis Mae triumphantly.

Wilbur looked at his wife, shook his head, threw down his napkin, and trudged off to work. November— and peace— seemed a long way off.

Detroit Case Cited as One Smoothed Over

WASHINGTON, (AP) — House investigators today charged that the Justice Department has been "most dilatory" in some prosecutions and cited a Detroit war fraud case as a "typical example."

Counsel Robert A. Collier laid before a judiciary subcommittee a number of documents dealing with the Norman E. Miller and Associates, Inc. case which came up in 1944 and closed in 1951 without prosecution or recovery of government funds.

Collier said Miller was indicted July 14, 1944 on six counts alleging fruad in that he had "knowingly and fraudulently charged in direct time as direct time for his employes in performing under certain government contracts."

In addition to the indictment, Collier said a civil suit was filed by the government seeking recovery of $36,000.

"Despite the fact that in its early phases the case was described by the justice attorneys as 'one of the best' that the department had." Collier said, "action was delayed through various devices for over six years at which time both suits were dropped."

Collier told the committee that its staff, after a review of numerous cases in Justice Department files, decided "it is to the best interests" that it demonstrate publicly how dilatory the department has been.

Plane Brings Soldier to His Stricken Family

By HENRY SUPPLE

SALEM, Mass., (AP) — A grim-faced Nebraska soldier stepped from a Coast Guard mercy plane today in a relay race home to his tragedy stricken family

Tech. Sgt. Charles R. Buggy, of Winnebago, Neb., stepped off the mercy plane at 9:23 a.m., (CST), a little more than three hours after he was plucked from the troop transport Gen. Alexander Patch 500 miles at sea in the Atlantic ocean.

The Patch was New York bound from Bremerhaven, Germany.

The husky, moustached soldier, a veteran of World War II who re-enlisted, already has lost one of his two children to polio.

His other child is ill of the same disease.

His wife faces critical surgery for a spinal ailment.

"I appreciate it an awful lot," Buggy told the Coast Guard crew which flew so far to sea to pick him up.

He blinked as he added:

"I hope everything is all right at home."

Buggy said he first learned of the illness at his midwestern home yesterday noon.

A first mercy plane from Westover Air Force Base, Mass., alighted on the water near the transport last night, but was disabled when it collided with a life boat lowered from the ship.

The second mercy flight left Salem in the middle of the night, and contacted the transport at dawn.

Buggy was whisked immediately by automobile to the Beverly airport eight miles away where he was taken in a small plane to the Westover Air Force Base for transfer to a Nebraska bound military plane.

Rayburn and Johnson Rally for Stevenson

DALLAS, Tex., (AP) —Speaker Sam Rayburn and U. S. Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson rallied around the Democratic banner of Adlai Stevenson today. Others of their fellow Texans did too.

But the cry to put Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower's name on the Texas Democratic ticket continued.

Johnson and Rayburn announced yesterday their advocacy of Stevenson's Democratic presidential bid in the face of opposing stands by Gov. Allan Shivers and Atty. Gen. Price Daniel, Democratic nominee for U.S. senator to succeed Tom Connally.

oth Shivers and Daniel have expressed personal opposition to Stevenson's candidacy because the Illinois governor said he agreed with President Truman in advocating federal ownership of the supposedly oilrich off-shore tide lands. Shivers also stand refelcted opinions that would likely lead him to follow the doctrines of what Shivers called "Trumanism."

Johnson said that while he did not agree with Stevenson's stand for federal ownership of the tie lands he would back the nominee of the National Democratic party. Rayburn at his home in Bonham said, "I indorse Sen. Johnson's statement fully."

Two other veteran Democrats, Rep. Lindley Beckworth of Gladewater and John C. Calhoun, former state Democratic Executive Committee chairman, also came out for Stevenson.

Dulles Attacks 'Termites' in Government

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP)John Foster Dulles today attacked "termites" in government and declared a greater measure of patriotism is needed among all in authority as "we look into the awful abyss of atomic and hydrogen war."

In a speech prepared for the National convention of Amvets, the tional convention of Amvets, the viser declared:

"Termites can destroy the noble edifice that our forebearers built. They must be rooted out, and the loyalty which qualified their successors must be something more positive than the negative virtue of not being a known member of the Communist party."

Dulles told the World War II veterans:

"When I speak of those 'in authority,' I have in mind not only the handful of conspicuous men at the top, but also the hundreds of thousands of government servants in all branches of public service. When government is so big that it

Hempstead Melons for Hospital Veterans

WATERMELONS FOR FT. ROOTS-VET. HOSP. DONATED BY V.F.W. POST 4511 HOPE ARK.

War veterans at Ft. Roots Hospital near Little Rock, Sunday enjoyed some 200 choice Hempstead watermelons which were taken to them by the local Ramsey-Cargile VFW post. Each year the VFW takes a load of melons to the hospitalized veterans.

Most of the melons were donated by Hempstead growers — Ervin Jones, O. D. Middlebrooks, W. H. Light, J. W. Hairston, Albert Smith, John Lloyd and Claud O'Steen. Trucks to haul them were furnished by Midwest Dairy Co. and Standard Auto Co. of Hope.

Melon Season on Last Legs, Yield Fair

The watermelon season in this section is on its last legs and only a few late ones are being sold locally. Truck loads, so prominent only a few days ago, are a thing of the past now.

Despite weather conditions — the driest season in years — production in this county was about 75 per cent normal. Larger acreage was offset by the reduction in yield.

Growers who normally produced 15,000 pounds of melons last year got only 7,000 to 10,000 pounds this season.

Over 1,200 acres of melons for market were planted in Hempstead this season — a majority of them being moved by truck. Only 27 rail carloads were shopped by Monts Seed Store from this city and shipping lasted only a couple of weeks.

Competition from trucks is gradually cutting into the rail shipping. Many truckers buy melons on the vine and deals of this type save the producer expense of pulling and hauling to market. The big trucks simply drive to the field and load direct. Some growers estimate that at least 95 per cent of the melon crop is moved by trucks.

Growers grossed from $75 to $100 per acre on marketable melons with the production and harvesting costs running about $25 per acre. But Hempstead producers run more as a rule because melons produced here always sell at top price.

Also many growers raise larger melons for special shipping. These are sent by individuals to persons and organizations all over the United States and weights range from 50 to 195 pounds — a 130-pounder was the largest produced this year.

It was grown by O. D. Middlebrooks of near Hope who in 1935 raised one that weighed 195 pound —the largest on record.

War Widow, Children Sleep in Car

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y. —(AP)— A young Arkansas war widow and her three small sons who were found sleeping in a car here yesterday are being cared for by the White Plains Shelter of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to children.

The 30-year-old World War II widow, Mrs. Rose Buffington, told police she and her children had driven here from Conway, Ark. in search of living quarters in New York.

Mrs. Buffington said that she decided to stay in the car when she saw how crowded living conditions were here. She said her only income was from government death benefit checks and that she was trying to save enough money to return to Arkansas.

Police said Mrs. Buffington and her sons, Lionel, 11; Daniel, 9, and James, 7, had been sleeping in the car for several nights. The mother said she had "a few dollars" in her purse.

It is believed theat we are using the same water that existed on earth when the world began, although it has been turned from liquid to vapor or ice and back again many, many times.

D. M. Floyd Takes Over Hotel at Jonesboro, Ark.

D. M. Floyd of Hope has acquired a lease on the Hotel Nobel, largest hotel in Jonesboro, Ark.

Mr. Floyd, who five years ago took over the Hotel Barlow in Hope, will assume full charge of the Jonesboro Hotel on September 1, from R. H. Halbert who has operated the hotel for the past eight years.

Floyd has been manager of hotels in Salem, Ill., and Henderson, N. C. before coming to Hope. He was also associated with hotels in Tennessee, Alabama and Maine.

Mobster Settles Income Tax Debt

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The government, peeling the "secrecy" label from compromise tax settlement cases, says it accepted $100,000 from Jack "Greasy Thumb" Guzik as full payment for $900,000 it had claimed he owed in taxes and penalites.

The eleven - cents - on - the dollar settlement by Guzik, once connected with Al Capone's organization in Chicago, was one of several disclosed yesterday by the Bureau of Internal Reveune as it put into effect a new "open book" policy.

Under the new policy, all cases settled on or after Aug. 20 with taxpayers for less than the amount of taxes assessed will be made public. Those before that date will be disclosed upon specific requests naming the taxpayers involved.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue said Guzik was granted a compromise for three reasons: doubt as to whether he owed the full amount; inability of investigators to determine what he was worth; and "reduced earning power."

Asks Legality of Highway Purchases

LITTLE ROCK —(AP)— Rep. Jim Coates Jr. of Pulaski County requested a ruling by Atty. Gen. Ike Murry yesterday on the legality of "brand name purchasing" by the Arkansas Highway Department.

Murry, who previously refused to rule on the question, said he expected to have his answer ready "soon".

In connection with the ruling, Deputy Auditor B. E. Friday said that if the attorney general finds the method of inviting bids of "brand" name invalid, the state auditor's office will not issue a warrant to pay successful bidders.

The controversy concerns an invitation by the department on motor graders specifying three brand names; Austin-Western, Galion and Warco equipment.

Bids invited by the department were opened yesterday, plus bids from three suppliers handling other brands of motor graders. Prices listed by the "non-brand-name" dealers generally were lower than listings by suppliers complying with the Highway Department invitation.

Cherry Beat McMath by 98,396 Votes

LITTLE ROCK, (AP) — The official tally of the Aug. 12th Democratic run-off primary shows that Chancellor Francis Cherry defeated Gov. Sid McMath by 98,396 votes.

Frank Newell, secretary of the Democratic State Committee, said that of the official 376,500 votes cast, Cherry received 237,448; McMath 139,052.

Famous Ponies Coming to Hope

Grumpy and Dopey, the lead ponies of the famed Curtis Candy Six Pony Hitch stand ready and waiting for action at the Third District Livestock Show here September 22-27.

These fiery little animals and their four buddies have recently performed at many of the largest rodeos in Texas, thrilling thousands of people with their fast stepping exhibition of intricate and percision turns, pulling their gleaming white wagon behind them.

The ponies will be housed in a large tent on the showgrounds throughout the day and will perform each night of the rodeo. There is no admission to see the ponies.

U.N. Planes Pound Big Sections of N. Korean Capital Into Shambles

Hurricane Is Moving Toward Three States

MIAMI, Fla., (UP)— An Atlantic hurricane aimed its 75 mile an hour winds today at upper Florida Georgia and South Carolina coasts.

The hurricane, increasing in intensity, was located at 11 a.m. only 280 miles east of Melbourne, about midway up the Florida peninsula.

Storm warnings were ordered hoisted from Vero Beach, Fla., to Wilmington, N. C., and the weather bureau warned coast residents to stand by for possible hurricane warnings this afternoon and tonight.

Hurricane "able," the first of the year, was bowling alone at an 18 mile an hour clip— rather fast for the doughnut shaped tropical storm.

"Further intensification may occur during passage over the Gulf stream," the Weather Bureau predicted. "It had shown a slight increase in strength and has a more definite center today."

It was moving in a westnorthwestward direction but a more northerly course is forecast after the howler approaches the coast.

"All interests are advised to stand by for further advices and possibly hurricane warnings," the advisory warned.

The storm, spawned north of the Leeward Islands in the Atlantic five days ago, caught residents along the North Florida coast by surprise. Only 12 hours ago it was far out at sea and had wind of only 65 miles an hour.

"I don't think people are aware yet that the storm is this close," Bill Morrison of Jacksonville beach said.

In the path of the blow lay huge navy ship bases and shipbuilding yards at Jacksonville. Also warnings were up along Georgia's golden isles— the tourist and wealthy folk mecca of St. Simons and sea island.

India Has Troubles But Is Sincere

By C. E. PALMER

ABOARD R.M.S. QUEEN ELIZABETH, — (Via Air Mail From London) — I was fortunate in meeting onboard Max C. Elliott, formerly manager of the American Express Company in Bombay, India, and now being transferred to Frankfurt, West Germany, where the company handles banking and finance for U.S. occupation forces.

Mr. Elliott has spent 24 years in the Far East and during that time has learned a great deal about Asiatics. He spent three and a half years as a prisoner of war and was one of 50,000 POWs who built the Burma railroad. About 29,000 of them died, Mr. Elliott estimating this at about one death for every tie that was laid. Surprisingly, the larger percentage of death was among the younger prisoners to most of whom of course, the Far East was new. Their guards were mostly Koreans who were brutal and cruel. When the war was over the POWs imprisoned their guards, most of whom were later executed for their atrocities.

Mr. Elliott thinks the Indian government is honest and sincere and has made very satisfactory progress considering the difficulties which face it. Nehru has feasible plans for hydro-electric development for power and irrigation, both badly needed, but because Indian capital is so limited these will have to be financed largely by foreign capital which will be welcomed and fairy treated. The English are more popular than ever, largely because they can no longer be blamed for everything that goes wrong, and there is more appreciation for what they have done in the past. Americans and American capital are also welcome and American engineering skill and money are now engaged in building oil refineries in India.

Illiteracy and poverty are appalling, and millions spend their lives in the grasp of money lenders whose interest rates often reach 100 per cent per annum.

India ardently desires to remain neutral in the struggle between East and West, but there is little doubt that in the final showdown she will line up wholeheartedly with the West. Mr. Elliott be

Department Store Sales Still Gaining

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Department store sales in the Eighth Federal Reserve Bank District continued to gain for the third consecutive week over a like period for a year ago.

The gain was not general. Sales in Memphis and small cities were down but elsewhere they were up, including Little Rock which showed an eight per cent gain for the week ending Aug. 23.

The eighth district, as a whole, was up 5 per cent for the week and 2 per cent for the comparable four week period in 1952. Little Rock was up 10 per cent for the four week period.

Food Prices Highest in U. S. History

WASHINGTON, (AP) — Mid-August retail food prices, the governments Bureau of Labor Statistic reports, were the highest in U. S. history.

During the first half of this month the bureau's index went up almost 1 per cent to 235.6 per cent of the 1935-39 average.

On the basis of figures collected in eight cities, the bureau said foods now are about 16 per cent higher than when the Korean War began in June, 1950.

In another economic development, the government yesterday suspended price controls on radios, television sets, record players, carpets and bedding. The latter includes studio couches, davenports, mattresses, springs and pillows.

Price controls were abolished on vitrified chinaware, silverware and jewelry, and hand-made household glassware.

Retiring Price Stabilizer Ellis Arnall said relaxations "do not mean abandonment of controls in any area where controls are needed."

OPS made clear that if the prices of items on which controls have been suspended rise to a point where they threaten to pierce the old price ceilings, controls will be reimposed.

Higher prices for pork and chicken were the main factors in the latest rise in the food index. Pork rose nearly 5 per cent during early August; chickens more than 4 per cent.

Hempstead Club Women to Attend Annual Council

Nine Home Demonstration Club members and Lorraine Blackwood, Home Demonstration Agent will attend the 24th annual meeting of the Arkansas Council of Home Demonstration Clubs at Fayetteville September 2-5. The theme of the program will be "Forward to Peace with Freedom." Guest speakers will be Miss Mena Gannan, Field Agent, Southern States, who will speak on "Rural Life in other Lands" and C. A. Nigeria has

1,403 Sorties Heaviest Raid of Entire War

By WARREN FRANKLIN

SEOUL, Korea, (UP)— Allied war planes of four nations, striking from land and sea, pounded huge sections of the North Korean capital of Pyongyang into flaming shambles today in the heaviest air assault of the Korean war.

Fighter-bombers in three waves totaling 1,403 sorties lashed the Communist nerve center with bombs, bullets, rockets and napalm (jellied gasoline).

They hit 40 carefully-selected military targets in daylight after warning the civilian population by radio that the attack was coming.

Communist MIG-15 jet fighters tried desperately to halt the assault. Protecting U. S. Sabrejets and Australian meteor jets drove back the Russianbuilt MIGS destroying one and damaging two.

Previous record attack came on July 11 when the United Nations hit Pyongyang with 1,200 sorties. (A Sortie is one flight by one plane).

Today's strike also was the Fifth Air Force's greatest effort of the war. Planes of the fifth and attached units flew 1,103 missions over the target area, surpassing their 1,063 record of July 11.

In addition carrier planes of the U. S. S. Essex, Princeton and Boxer struck with an estimated 310 sorties.

The third and final assault today sent 278 fighters and fighter-bombers of the 5th Air Force and about 70 planes from carriers against Pyongyang.

The combined land and air armada dropped more than 697 tons of bombs and fired more than 6 000 rounds of ammunition.

The planes dropped tanks with 4,000 gallons of flaming napalm ignoring Communist radio protests of last week that use of napalm was a "barbarism."

Towering plumes of smoke prevented full estimates of damage.

Incomplete claims of pilots returning from the third wave included five buildings destroyed and damaged, two gun positions, destroyed and one damaged, one warehouse destroyed and 32 on a concrete bridge.

The first mercy plane landed successfully on the water near the transport but collided with a life boat lowered from the ship to secure a line between the 2 craft. The plane's propellor was damaged.

Buggy, a World War II veteran who enlisted in the Army early this year, has been stationed in Germany.

His 4yearold son Charles died two days ago at a Sioux City, Ia., hospital.

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft has made his first contribution to Dwight D. Eisenhower's presidential campaign—a sizzling [illegible] plan linking Democrats in "unholy alliance" with crime and [illegible] "scandalous" incompetence [illegible] disclosed today. The document raps the Democrats on many other issues:

Korea—The war resulted from military and political blunders of the Democratic party from 1933 [illegible] A war which uses the minimum of Soviet resources and the maximum of American resources.

National defense—"Since [illegible] 1945, [illegible] Pearl Harbors have been in the making. American forces were rapidly demobilized and American [illegible] allowed to decay. American forces have been strung out thinly across the globe."

China policy—"China was delivered into the hands of the Communists. Harry Truman made this certain by the (Gen. George C.) Marshall mission which compelled Nationalist China to accept the Communists in 1947."

Civil Rights—"The basis for the Democratic claim of devotion to Negro interests is simply the fact that there was no way to exclude Negro citizens from relief during the time of the world depression. . . Negroes (in government office) were advisers on Negro affairs. . . The real meaning of this practice by Democrats is an indirect assertion that Negroes were a depressed class and would be treated as such and not as citizens seeking consideration on individual merit. Republicans never indulged in such insincerities."

Government finances—has there ever been such outrageous taxation, such a staggering national debt, such waste of public money and such dangerous inflation of prices everyone has to pay?"

Top Prep Stars Play Tonight

MEMPHIS (AP)—The nation's top prep stars go on display here tonight when East meets West in the fourth annual All-America high school football game.

Clear skies are predicted for the game which is expected to draw about 15,000 fans into Crump Stadium. East teams have won all three of the previous games, sponsored by the Wigwam Wisemen of America, a fraternal organization.

The West, coached by Bill Glassford of Nebraska, will strike from a spread formation, indicating its attack will revolve around a potentially explosive passing game. Buddy Benson, classy ballhandler and passer from De Queen, Ark., will be the tailback in Glassford's No. 1 offensive alignment.

The East, under Coach Red Drew of Alabama, will use the split-T. Bart Starr of Montgomery, Ala., a fine runner and accurate passer, will direct the East attack.

The only tropical rain forest on land controlled by the United States is located in Puerto Rico.

Sparkman Just Skips Civil Rights Issue

By KEITH FULLER

MINDENHALL, Miss. —(AP)—Sen. John Sparkman skipped the touchy civil rights issue in opening his vice presidential campaign before a deep South audience last night.

The Alabama senator's blanket defense of the Democratic platform was the nearest he came to the subject.

The party platform that has caused strife among many Southern Democrats contains a proposed Fair Employment Practice Commission, anti-lynch and anti-poll tax planks.

"I realize there may be things in the Democratic platform that all of us cannot agree upon," he told an audience estimated at between 3,000 and 5,000 in the Mendenhall High School football stadium.

"But remember that this party of ours is made up of free people from all walks of life with many divergent beliefs."

Sparkman recently was called "a traitor to the South" for his support of the platform. His critics, dissatisfied Mississippi Democrats, formed a Democrats-for-Eisenhower movement and bolted the regular party.

Sparkman devoted most of his speech to "what the Democratic party has done for the people of this nation." But he took the time for a few swings at the Republicans.

"About the only issue the Republicans can raise is their cry that it's time for a change," he said.

"But you people can ask them—you will ask them — a change from what to what?"

The senator then listed benefits he said the Democratic party has given the country.

Sparkman also defended the United Nations in Korea.

"Gen. Douglas MacArthur and even Gen. Eisenhower, who certainly could not be considered supporters of our party, have said that we could not have upheld our honor and stayed out of Korea," he asserted.

"Despite gloomy reports you hear, our foreign policy is making progress," declared the Alabama senator.

He called it a bipartisan policy and named Dwight Eisenhower, the GOP presidential nominee, as one of many Republicans who have contributed to it.

spends 80 billion dollars a year, a few men at the top cannot keep track of all that goes on. Often it is the inconspicious persons who exert the greatest influence upon policy and, above all, upon performance."

"I shall not give you my ideas as to the responsibility for the past," Dulles told the veterans.

"If I did, I might sound partisan. For a Democratic administration has had the responsibility to conduct our foreign affairs during the years that led into World War I, into World War II, into the Korean War, and that have led us into what President Truman this year calls 'deadly peril,' and what Gen. Eisenhower this week identified as the greatest peril in our nation's history."

Dulles made no further reference to the Republican presidential nominee, whom he advises on foreign policy.

"We must abandon the negative, futile and immoral policy of 'containment,' and adopt a positive program which actively seeks the peaceful liberation of the captive nations from the yoke of Moscow."

He said, "I do not know whether it is still possible to prevent World War II," but "we must never allow ourselves fatalisticaly to accept, in advance, the inevitabiity of a third world war."

To win the cold war, Dulles called for a greater measure of patriotism, vision, boldness, strength and dynamism.

Stevenson, Ike to Talk at Plow Meet

KASSON-DODGE CITY, Minn. (AP)—They're going to be doing some plowing, too, at the National Plowing Contest Sept. 6.

The site of the big farm event already has shaped up as a major political areana when Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson will mount a plank platform and expound farm views.

But officials of the contest, formally known as National Soil Conservation Day and Plow Matches stress that all the political hoopla won't deter them in their efforts to put on an event aimed at improving farming practices.

Harold Severson, chairman of the publicity committee, said today "the forgotten men of the soil conservation demonstration and plowing matches are stolidly going ahead with their work and their plans."

The affair is sponsored by a corporation made up of seven Southeastern Minnesota soil conservation districts. It will be held on six farms between Kasson and Dodge Center. Rochester, home of the famed Mayo Clinic, is about 17 miles to the east

There will be two divisions to the plow matches-contour on hilly land and level-land. Plowmen from about 15 states have already entered and tractors, plows and other farm machinery have begun to arrive on the scene.

Among the entrants is 80-year-old J. H. Thomas of Reserve, Kan. who won the England Wales plowing contest with horses when he was 21.

At the same time as the matches, soil conservation demonstrations will be going on. These include terracing on hillsides, planting of windbreaks and other practices to slow costly soil erosion. Another demonstration using 23,000 feet of cylindrical tile sections, will show how a marshy area can be drained and put in shape for crops.

The center of interest for many of the expected 150,000 spectators will be a 30-acre "headquarters area." Fifty tents, the biggest [illegible] feet, were pitched Thursday. The Dodge County Red Cross chapter is rolling bandages and getting other equipment for a first aid station.

One Kasson grocer has five tons of weiners on order. The American Legion post has made arrangements for two tons of coffee.

Eighteen of the 30 acres have been set aside as a natural amphitheater for the program which will include the Eisenhower and Stevenson speeches.

Director of operations for the farm event is W. M. Roberts, a district conservationist for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

He said he would just as soon have neither presidential candidate nor any politics injected into the big day, but the sentiment generally seems to be that everyone is welcome. A big sign saying just that was stretched across the main street of Kasson Thursday.

Legion Head Urges Military Training

NEW YORK (AP)—Lewis Ketchan Gough, newly elected national commander of the American Legion, urges national security military training legislation to keep the nation in a state of preparedness.

The 44-year-old Gough, a World War II veteran now living in Pasadena, Calif., was elected yesterday as head of the legion in the closing session of its 34th annual convention.

Gough, who sewed in the Navy with the rank of commander, overwhelmingly defeated his only rival, Walter E. Alessandroni, 36, of Philadelphia.

Gough is an inheritance tax appraiser employed by the state of California. His legion office pays $15,000 annually. Election is for the ensuing year.

At ceremonies in Madison Square Garden, Gough had the red cap of legion commander placed on his head by his predecessor, Donald R. Wilson of Clarksburg, W. Va.

In his acceptance address, Gough urged "intelligence, firmness and courage" in combatting communism, and pleaded for a decisive military program for the nation's youth.

"For 34 years the legion has had the answer," he said, "A national security training that is universal, economical, effective and safeguarded by civilian control.

"As your commander, I shall ask for your all out effort for such legislation. . ."

As the convention neared its close, the delegate surged as investigation of national Selective Service headquarters.

leves. There is little danger of India going Communist, although three Communists have recently been elected to parliament from southern districts where monsoons left misery and discontent in their wake.

While the disagreement between India and Pakistan probably will not be settled for a long time, there is little danger of it eventuating into war, as each needs the production of the other. Indians are not warlike in the first place. They are fatalistic, believing that what is to come is predestined and they accept it with equanimity.

Hours, wages and working conditions are set by the government: Employees, disciplined or discharged, can appeal and decisions often take a year or more. Vacations, sick leave, casual leave (where an employee decides he he wants to take a week or 10 days off), holidays and Sundays can take as many as 160 days out of the 365-day year. Older employees are reasonablly efficient and loyal, but the newer ones are frequently unstable, inefficient and disinterested. I have heard this same complaint at home.

Would Walk Bottom of English Channel

LOS ANGELES, (AP) — How comes Bill Abernathy whois anxious to do the English channel swimmers one better. Abernathy, 29, is looking for a sponsor to finance a walk across the bottom of the English channel.

Informed that such a walk would be mighty wet, Abernahy explained that he's a diver by trade. He said yesterday he has permission from England and tentative permission from France to start hoofing it across the channel, which is 186 feet deep at its deepest point.

Abernathy, a diver for six years with the Navy, estimates i t will cost $15,000 to install a series of buoys across the channel to chart his course. He would dive and install them. Then he'd walk the channel in his diving suit, with two boats supplying him oxygen.

Stevenson's Views Impress Negro Leader

By RELMAN MORIN

NEW YORK, (AP) — A prominent Negro leader, Channing Tobias, said today he was "very much impressed" with Gov. Adlai Stevenson's statements on civil rights, but evaded questions as to whether he would support the Democratic candidate for president.

Tobias had a long conversation with Stevenson today.

Tobias is a member of the United States delegation to the United Nations. He conferred with Stevenson along with Roy Wilkins, administrator of the National Assocition for te Advancement of Colored People.

Representatives of the NAACP held a similar conference with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican candidate, earlier this week. At that time Wilkins said the NAACP did not endorse political organizations but that he would report to his organization on his conversation with Eisenhower.

"I was very muhch impressed with the governor's remarks about civil rights, the filibuster, and allied subjects in his speeches here, Tobias said.

Correspondents asked Tobias if he would support Stevenson's candidacy. He replied:

"I may want to announce my position on that, one way or another, a little later."

Earlier Stevenson conferred with Elder Statesman Bernard Bauch who is currently out of favor with the Truman administration.

Emerging from Baruch's home after a breakfast conference lasting one hour and ten minutes, the Democratic presidential candidate told newsmen:

"There was no discussion of politics at all. We talked mainly about inflation and some other economic matters. It was a good breakfast and a very interesting talk."

Asked whether he and Baruch agreed on the matters discussed, Stevenson smiled and replied:

"We didn't argue."

Baruch, a financier who became a weighty unofficial adviser to the late President Roosevelt, has not yet stated whether he favors Stevenson or his Republican opponent, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Stevenson plans to return to his office in Springfield, Ill., this after noon.

This ends the first skirmish between Stevenson and his Republican opponent for the presidency, Gen. Dwight D. Eisehower. Next week, Stevenson heads westward while Eisenhower makes a campaign swing through the South.

Stevenson-possibly with an eye on Eisenhower's first trip— emphasized civil rights and the allied issue of the Senate filibuster in his last New York speeches

This is what he said:

"The federal government has a direct responsibility to maintain progress by helping to secure equal rights for all our pepole I have been impressed by the recent bill reported by Sen. Humphrey on behalf of the Senate Labor Committed."

This bill sets up anti-discrimination standards on employment in the individual states— with provison for the federal government to step in if an individual state does not act.

On the question of the filibuster, Stevenson said:

"The precise nature of the changes that should be made in the present rules of Congress is, of course, a problem for the Congress itself. . As President, I could not make the decision, but I could and would use whatever influence I may have to encourage the congress to shake off its shackles."

He pinpointed his position with the words:

"In these perilous times, we cannot risk submerging our national purpose in a sea of interminable conversation."

Eisenhower told a delegation from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People several days ago that he is opposed to compulsory enforcement of civil rights legislation.

Roy Wilkins, administrator of the NAACP. quoted the general as saying he was opposed to the compulsory clauses.

He just couldn't come to the conclusion tha tthat's the way to solve the problem," Wilkins ad-ded.

THE BRIDE WORE SPOTS—Stricken by measles a few hours before her scheduled wedding, Leta Teneyck, of Bloomington, Ind., did not let that little catastrophe hold up the ceremony. Though quarantined, she voiced her vows over a microphone through her bedroom window to the bridegroom, Jerome K. Denzer, and the rest of the wedding party on the lawn below.

IT AIN'T HAY—But it IS straw. This German miss in Hanau points to the face of a clock made out of straws which took 18 years to build. It was started in 1889 by Otto Wegener, a shoemaker and amateur clockmaker and completed in 1907. Although it stands five and a half feet high, it weighs only about a pound. It runs about eight hours. Everything in it, down to the smallest [illegible] balance wheel is made of straw.

Magic is Fragile

"Sick people aren't reasonable, Nance."

"I know. . . . And that's why you're going to be a good doctor, Jeremy. Because you're ready to give so much of yourself without complaining."

"Good lord, don't make me a paragon! All doctors do."

"Perhaps. Only don't ask me to see you as just another run-of-the-mill doctor. You're special! You've got a halo. Maybe I'm the only one who see it, but that doesn't matter. I'll always see the halo, Jeremy."

"Will you put down that pencil a minute so it can't stab me while I kiss you?"

The pencil clattered to the floor. With her cheek flattened against him, she said, "It really has happened to us, hasn't it? The touch of magic."

"I'm afraid it has."

"Afraid?"

"Only the rashest of mortals tinker with magic, Nance, or try to hold it. It's fragile."

"We're brave! And we shan't break it, Jeremy, or lose it."

"Even," wryly, "if my halo gets knocked off?"

"I'll pick it up for you!"

"Or broken?"

"I've a deft touch with paste!"

"Nance," he said, with humility and love.

When Nance and Jeremy went down for dinner, Eleanor laced her needle through the canvas of her needlepoint and set it aside.

"There's a call for you, Jeremy. The number is on the pad." She said to Nance, crossing her fingers in a frail countercharm against an emergency which might take Jeremy to the hospital before dinner, "I do hope you know exactly what you're letting yourself in for, dear, as a doctor's wife."

"Shouldn't I, after being a doctor's sister all this time?"

Eleanor smiled.

"We were discussing it upstairs," Nance went on. "I've decided that any wailing and gnashing of teeth to be done shall be done in a soundproof room behind locked doors."

"Sam?" Eleanor called as the front door opened. "Is that you?"

"No, Bing Crosby," Sam Ireland hummed the [illegible] theme as he came into the living room.

[illegible] Nance thought, [illegible] them, it will be a fine marriage.

Eleanor's raised brows asked a question of Jeremy as he came back into the room, and he answered, "Nothing that can't wait an hour, Mother."

"Nance," Eleanor said, "Miss Hinkley asked me today when you were coming for a fitting. She has your wedding dress at the stage where she can't remove a pin or rip out a basting thread without a try-on."

"I'll make an appointment tomorrow," Nance murmured.

"I believe you said that yesterday . . . Nance, something came for you today. From New York. It's on the hall table."

"New York," Nance said, as Jeremy went for the package. "That will be Aunt Kit."

"Automatic toaster?" Jeremy guessed, going through elaborate gestures of squeezing, weighing, shaking. He'd done this with all the wedding gifts, so far. "Electric iron?"

"Nothing so practical," Nance laughed, unfolding layers of wrapping paper, "if I know Kit! It's more likely some precious relic from an auction, with a pedigree half a page long, utterly beautiful and quite useless . . . Oh," she gasped, lifting it carefully from its excelsior nest. "Look!"

Jeremy cupped his chin in his palms and looked. "What is it?" he asked dubiously.

"A tea kettle," Nance said. "And on the little stand underneath, a spirit lamp."

"Genii?" Jeremy inquired hopefully.

"Silly! You put methylated spirits in the little lamp and light the wick."

"Amazing," Jeremy murmured, "in this age of ohms and watts and volts."

With a small squeal of delight Eleanor discovered the Victorian hallmark. "Look, Nance—London, 1832."

"How could she bear to part with it?" Nance sighed.

Jeremy's spread palms and Sam's shrug were amused and indulgent, as Hattie came in to announce dinner.

I shall miss this, Nance thought, when Jeremy and I have our own home. The table, the four of us in the candlelight, Mother's flowers and Hattie's cooking spiced generously with her love for us. I'll miss it.

Truman Budget to Be Size of Big Phone Book

By FRANCIS J. KELLY

WASHINGTON, (AP) — President Truman's goodbye gift to Congress will be a government budget the size of a big city phone book, important sections of which are likely to become waste paper within three days.

It isn't Truman's idea. A 1950 law requires him to give Congress a detailed estimate of federal income and outgo within 15 days after the opening of a regular sion.

The new 83rd Congress, most of whose membership will be determined in the November elections, convenes next Jan. 3. The budget message must be at the Capitol by Jan. 17. At high noon on Jan. 20 a new President takes his oath and Truman becomes a private citizen.

At the same moment, the odds are heavy that key sections of the Truman budget will start heading for the congressional waste baskets. Regardless of who wins the presidency, it is unlikely he will agree 100 per cent with his predecessor's fiscal plan for the government accounting year which starts next July 1.

Nor is there time between election and inauguration day to do much about it. The President-elect, after recovering some of the energy spent in his campaign, presumably will want to start putting together the inaugural address which will sound the keynote for the beginning of his administration

The budget, more over, is no simple document a man can spread out before him and say, we'll cut so much here, and add so much to this program. This particular financial estimate has been under preparation by the Budget Bureau since last May. Long before that, each department was instructed by the White House to state its needs for the fiscal 1954, as the next accounting period is known.

It contains literally hundreds of thousands of items. By no means all of these are likely to be, or even could be revised by the new tenant of the White House. A vast number of them represent continuing appropriations for such items as the public debt and statutory programs approved by previous Congresses.

However, it's big appropriations and authorizations for such matters as defense, foreign aid and veterans benefits that add on the top billions and prompt the inkiest headlines. Obviously it is there and in similar fields that the incoming chief executive would find the most fertile ground for revision.

There is nothing— except possible political differences— to prevent the new man from sitting down with Truman and discussing the need for this appropriation or the reason behind that estimate. But it seems far more likely that the President-elect will want to feel his way more slowly and discuss the problems with his own advisers.

This appears to point the way to a series of supplemental budget requests later on. That was the way the matter was handled when Franklin D. Roosevelt took over in 1933 from Herbert Hoover. Congress can be asked to consider either upward or downward revisions in the estimates.

While the budget message must and will be sent to Congress, there is considerable doubt that Truman will choose to deliver the usual State of the Union address although he could if he so desired.

There has been no commitment from the White House on this point. It seems more probable now that the gray-haired Missourian will not attempt to lay down a program for his successor.

New Yorker Buys Bentonville Bank

BENTONVILLE, (AP) — A former New York Department store manager has purchased controlling interest of the Bank of Bentonville because he believes "Northwest Arkansas has a great future."

Arthur P. Smith. president of the bank, announced sale of the stock yesterday to H. Cornell Smith, former assistant managing director and active head of Gimbel Brothers in New York.

The purchase price was not disclosed but the bank has resources totalling $3.5 million. Transfer of control will be effective "on or before Sept. 12."

Aged Woman Sees First Light Burn

By NORBERT OLSHEFSKI

CAVE CITY, —(AP)— A 97-year-old woman who hasn't left her North Arkansas mountain home for 26 years finally has seen an electric light burn.

Not only that, she now is weighted down with modern electric gadgets including an electric blanket, a fan and subdued lighting.

Mrs. Betty Stoner lives in the rugged Ozarks about four miles from here and 18 miles from Batesville. Early in August the Arkansas Power and Light Company built a line to a small cluster of houses called Hilltop Community, where she lives.

The last time Mrs. Stoner, or Aunt Mary as she is called in the community, left her house was in 1926 when she took a trip to Batesville. The farthest trip she has ever taken was 30 miles to another county.

Asked if she hadn't seen electric lights burn in Batesville, she replied:

"It was daytime and they were not turned on."

"Aunt Mary" was just a young girl when the civil war was going on but she remembers the Confederate soldiers marching down the road, beating drums and playing fifes.

Although she is a strong member of the GOP she professes loyalty for the Confederacy.

Asked what she thought about GOP president nominee Dwight D. Eisenhower, she said, "Ike's a good man" and if she could get to the polls in November she plans to vote Republican.

The modern electric gadgets were given to her as gifts by the light company crew which installed her electric system.

When she first saw the light she said, "It burns so bright that it hurts my eyes a little." So the crew bought her some diffused lighting fixtures.

Mrs. Stoner lives with her son-in-law in a four-room log house covered with willow board on the outside.

She was born Feb. 20, 1855 in Independence County and has seven living children, 26 great-grandchildren and 9 great-great-grandchildren.

When the little ceremony of giving the gifts was over she invited the men back for her 100th birth day.

"Come back," she said, "We'll have a dance, too."

Oil Companies Ignore Chance for Defense

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Small Business Committee said today none of seven big oil firms accused of monopoly practices has accepted an offer to appear before the committee and dispute the charge.

The monopoly accusations were detailed in a long-suppressed report written by Federal Trade Commission staff members. The report was made public by the Senate committee Monday after President Truman acceded to senators' demands that it be released.

Blake O'Conor, directing the committee's professional staff, said the group will decide now whether to order public hearings of its own on the matter, write a report based on the FTC findings or simply let the report stand.

Sen. John Sparkman of Alabama, the committee chairman and Democratic nominee for vice president, announced in making the report public he was reserving yesterday and today for public hearings if any of the seven companies wanted to reply.

"We have had no request for a hearing from any of the seven," O'Connor told a reporter. "There have been no takers, so Dr. Walter Adams, the staff member who would have conducted the hearings, is returning to his post as a member of the faculty of Michigan State College at East Lansing, Mich."

The report named the seven companies as Standard Oil of New Jersey, Standard of California, the Texas Co., Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., and Gulf Oil Corp., all incorporated in this country, the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., largely owned by the British government, and Royal Dutch Shell, owned mainly by Dutch and British interests. In press statements at the time, the companies generally denied any wrongdoing.

The Justice Department is investigating the group, and has filed damage suits totaling 67 million dollars against the two Standard companies, the Texas Co. and Socony-Vacuum.

O'Connor said he considers it "perfectly understandable" that the companies declined an opportunity to answer the FTC while the grand jury inquiry and the law suits are pending.

Sen. James E. Murray, Montana Democrat, announced, meanwhile, he expects the FTC report will be used widely as campaign material in support of Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee. Murray said it "shows Stevenson made the correct and courageous stand" on the campaign issue of state or federal control of the rich offshore oil reserves in this country.

Stevenson said he was against any "blanket cession" of these national assets to individual states.

DOROTHY DIX

Helpful Sister

Dear Miss Dix: Ten weeks ago my brother's wife had a baby. My brother works hard but when he comes home his wife, who has had a day of leisure, expects him to make dinner, giving the baby as an excuse. My brother is also working for his Ph. D. and, since he is so worried at home, his marks have been getting lower. How can I tell his wife to organize her home better? I am willing to help her.

CAROL D.

Answer: Judging from your writing, you are a very young miss, and should be highly commended for your concern over your brother's welfare. Are you sure you are judging the situation fairly? The mother of a 10-weeks-old baby really doesn't have much time for leisure, although she should be able to prepare dinner for two without much difficulty.

I'm sure she would appreciate your offer of assistance. Why not go over and see what you can do for her? The experience will be helpful to you, and will aid your brother's family over a period of adjustment to the new baby that is sometimes quite difficult.

An infant and a Ph. D. aspirant in the same household are quite a handful, and I'm sure your efforts will be very useful in smoothing the domestic machinery.

Let Mother Decide

Dear Miss Dix: The man I go with is 21, and I am 17. He is divorced. We like the same things and get along well except that he doesn't believe me when I tell him certain things. He claims that he has been lied to so much that he can't believe anyone. I don't think that's fair. My family objects to him because he has been married before and I don't think that has anything to do with our present or future.

S. M.

Answer: First of all, whether you approve of your mother's decisions or not, she is the one to be consulted on your problems, since at 17 you haven't the experience to figure everything out for yourself. A single boy, closer to you in age, would be a much more suitable companion than a divorced man.

Dear Miss Dix: We are two girls of 13. Another friend, Vera, who is 12, has dates, uses lipstick and thinks we are cowards because we don't do the same. We don't believe in things like that until we're 16. Who is right?

A. F.

Answer: You are right. You have a code of conduct entirely in keeping with your age, and don't let anyone tease, or ridicule, you out of it. Vera does not seem to be a good friend for you, and I agree with your mother that the less you see of her the better.

Dear Miss Dix: For five years I have been going with a boy who has said he was in love with me. We planned to marry when I finish college. Lately, however, he hasn't come out with me and has told several people he doesn't go with me anymore. What must I do?

P. Q.

Answer: You have been given a cue to make a graceful exit. The boy hasn't the courage to tell you frankly that he doesn't want to go with you, so has taken the ungentlemanly course of getting the information to you via third parties. Make sure your information comes from reliable source and, if possible, verify it directly with the boy. The chances are that his attentions have wandered, and I advise yours to do likewise.

Dear Miss Dix: All the relations of my husband's side call me skinny. My husband says I am pretty close to average Miss America figure and. though I think I'm just about right, I feel so self-conscious around his relations.

LOU

Answer From the measurements you give, Lou, I, too, would say you're about right. Perhaps hubby's family is inclined to avoirdupois and are envious. Take their remarks good naturedly and stop being selfconscious.

Dear Miss Dix: I would love to have a dog but my mother and father say that the city is no place for one. I am 12 years old.

RONNIE

Answer: A dog is a wonderful companion for a boy, and I wish you could find someone who would persuade your parents to get one. Of course, a large dog is out of place in the city, but the smaller breeds do very nicely, even in a small place. But remember, Ronnie, if mom and dad do finally agree to the dog, it's your job to take care of him. One reason why parents don't like the idea is that dad usually gets the job of walking the dog, while mom has all the feeding and house care to do.

Officers Will Try to Starve Out Badman

PACIFIC, Mo., (AP) — Police, convinced they have a cordon around William Merle Martin, 42, one of the FBI's 10 most-wanted fugitives adopted a starve-him-out attitude today.

"We can't possibly get enough men to comb those woods thoroughly," Capt. Lewis Howard of the Missouri Highway Patrol said. "Our men could go within three feet of him in some sections and not know it. We'll just have to wait until he gets hungry enough to make a break."

A driver of a car, stolen in Brimingham, Ala., several days ago, fled into a rugged section of Western St. Louis County, about 40 miles west of St. Louis after highway troopers forced the vehicle into a ditch.

They said the man, believed answered Martin's description.

Around dusk last night two armed farmers, part of a large group of civilians who have joined county, state and federal authorities in the area, saw a man who appeared to be Martin walk from the woods.

The man spotted them and fled. They fired shotguns but apparently didn't hit him.

Martin, who began a crime career in 1929, got on the FBI list after the slaying of Deputy Sheriff Bob. Carver near Olathe, Kan., June 23.

Shoots Landlord, Gets Five Years

POWHATTAN, (AP) — A 70-year old man is to serve 5 years in prison for the fatal shooting of his landlord.

Joe Ulith, was found guilty of second degree murder in the death of 53-year-old Cecil McDuffee by a Lawrence County Cicuit Jury here.

Ulith pleaded self defense in the July 3 shooting, claiming that McDuffee previously had tried to kill him.

Bus Company Offers Wage Increase

LITTLE ROCK, (AP)— A 3-man arbitration board yesterday granted a 4-cent-an-hour wage increase to union bus drivers of the Capitol Transportation Company— a penny lower than the firm's offer prior to arbitration.

The union, Division 704 of the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor-Coach Employes' of America AFL, had asked a 20-cent-an-hour boost.

In the decision handed down by the board, 15 of 18 union proposals were rejected; one was settled during arbitration; one was granted and one— the wage provision — was modified.

Of the company's 18 proposals, 12 were granted; three were refused, and three were modified.

Not only were union officials disappointed at the decision, the local president B. Beryl Bland, said he doubted that the Board had legal authoity to change the effective date of the contract.

The company had asked for a 2-year contract, while the union wanted the agreement to run for only a year.

The Board rejected the company's proposal, but it set Sept. 1 as the effective date of the new contract instead of June 1 — the former expiration date. This, in effect gave Capitol a 15-month contract.

Under the decision, the new wage scale for top operators drivers will be $1.41 per hour. Top maintainance men will get $1.50 per hour.

ANDA Group to Name New Head

LITTLE ROCK, (AP) — [illegible] year-old president of the Arkansas Negro Democratic Association says he will not seek re-election to the post at the group's meeting here today.

Dr. J. M. Robinson, who [illegible] was elected president of the ANDA when the group organized in [illegible] said last night:

"I'm tired. Twenty-five years in the harness is enough for anyone."

Robinson said he thought possible candidates for his post would be Wiley Branton of Pine Bluff and G. C. McKey of Texarkana.

He repeated the claim that his refusal to seek re-election was not connected with his support of Jack Holt for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Prior to the July 29th preferential primary at which Holt was defeated Robinson said he would resign as ANDA president if Gov. McMath were re-elected governor.

Robinson said that loyalty to state and national Democratic nominees would be stressed at today's meeting.

Taft to Give Ike Pointers on Campaign

Editor's note: [illegible] Sen. Robert A. Taft's views [illegible] his role in the Republican presidential campaign have [illegible] a matter of wide speculation since he lost the nomination to Dwight D. Eisenhower. [illegible] dispatch reveals the ideas [illegible] Taft will recommend to Eisenhower when the [illegible] shortly.

By [illegible] L. STEELE

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft has made his first contribution to Dwight D. Eisenhower's presidential campaign—a sizzling [illegible] plan linking Democrats in "unholy alliance" with crime and [illegible] "scandalous" incompetence, it was disclosed today.

The suggested plan was drafted by the Senate Republican policy committee, of which Taft is chairman. Eisenhower and Taft will discuss it when they confer in the [illegible] future on campaign strategy.

The 11 pages of political gun[illegible] Taft's desire for a [illegible] GOP campaign—[illegible], he has told associates [illegible] he would be willing to [illegible].

[illegible] outlines a campaign for the White House based on attacks on every public issue from the [illegible] to the Korea war.

[illegible] Adlai E. Stevenson comes [illegible] attack on grounds that [illegible] victory would mean [illegible] a new coat of paint over [illegible] boards of an old house."

[illegible] the document says, [illegible] elected without the support of grabbing pressure groups" [illegible] of entrenched bureaucracy [illegible] marked by "official incompetence, corruption, secrecy, [illegible] and arbitrary actions."

The document names President Truman as the person responsible for the "low moral tone which has [illegible] his administration." It [illegible] at some of the president's [illegible] associates: Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, Mrs. Truman's [illegible] for being "involved in the five percenters scandal;" [illegible] Gen. Wallace Graham, White House physician, "caught speculating in grain" and presidential assistant Donald Dawson, "found guilty of influencing RFC loans."

The document raps the Democrats on many other issues:

Korea—"The war resulted from military and political blunders of the Democratic party from 1933 to [illegible]. . . A war which uses the minimum of Soviet resources and the maximum of American resources."

National defense—"Since 1945, [illegible] Pearl Harbors have been in [illegible] American forces were [illegible] demobilized and American [illegible] allowed to decay. . . American forces have been strung out [illegible] across the globe."

China policy—"China was delivered into the hands of the Communists. Harry Truman made this certain by the (Gen. George C.) Marshall mission which compelled Nationalist China to accept the Communists in 1947."

Civil Rights—"The basis for the Democratic claim of devotion to Negro interests is simply the fact that there was no way to exclude Negro citizens from relief during the time of the world depression. . . Negroes (in government office) were advisers on Negro affairs. . The real meaning of this practice by Democrats is an indirect assertion that Negroes were a depressed class and would be treated as such and not as citizens seeking consideration on individual merit. Republicans never indulged in such insincerities."

Government finances—"has there ever been such outrageous taxation, such a staggering national debt, such waste of public money and such dangerous inflation of prices everyone has to pay?"

Top Prep Stars Play Tonight

MEMPHIS (AP)—The nation's top prep stars go on display here tonight when East meets West in the fourth annual All-America high school football game.

Clear skies are predicted for the game which is expected to draw about 15,000 fans into Crump Stadium. East teams have won all three of the previous games, sponsored by the Wigwam Wisemen of America, a fraternal organization.

The West, coached by Bill Glassford of Nebraska, will strike from a spread formation, indicating its attack will revolve around a potentially explosive passing game. Buddy Benson, classy ballhandler and passer from De Queen, Ark., will be the tailback in Glassford's No. 1 offensive alignment.

The East, under Coach Red Drew of Alabama, will use the split-T. Bart Starr of Montgomery, Ala., a fine runner and accurate passer, will direct the East attack.

The only tropical rain forest on land controlled by the United States is located in Puerto Rico.

Sparkman Just Skips Civil Rights Issue

By KEITH FULLER

MINDENHALL, Miss. (AP)—Sen. John Sparkman skipped the touchy civil rights issue in opening his vice presidential campaign before a deep South audience last night.

The Alabama senator's blanket defense of the Democratic platform was the nearest he came to the subject.

The party platform that has caused strife among many Southern Democrats contains a proposed Fair Employment Practice Commission, anti-lynch and anti-poll tax planks.

"I realize there may be things in the Democratic platform that all of us cannot agree upon," he told an audience estimated at between 3,000 and 5,000 in the Mendenhall High School football stadium.

"But remember that this party of ours is made up of free people from all walks of life with many divergent beliefs."

Sparkman recently was called "a traitor to the South" for his support of the platform. His critics, dissatisfied Mississippi Democrats, formed a Democrats-for-Eisenhower movement and bolted the regular party.

Sparkman devoted most of his speech to "what the Democratic party has done for the people of this nation." But he took the time for a few swings at the Republicans.

"About the only issue the Republicans can raise is their cry that it's time for a change," he said.

"But you people can ask them—you will ask them — a change from what to what?"

The senator then listed benefits he said the Democratic party has given the country.

Sparkman also defended the United Nations in Korea.

"Gen. Douglas MacArthur and even Gen. Eisenhower, who certainly could not be considered supporters of our party, have said that we could not have upheld our honor and stayed out of Korea," he asserted.

"Despite gloomy reports you hear, our foreign policy is making progress," declared the Alabama senator.

He called it a bipartisan policy and named Dwight Eisenhower, the GOP presidential nominee, as one of many Republicans who have contributed to it.

SYNOPSIS [illegible]

CHAPTER FIVE [illegible]

[illegible]

"Sick people aren't reasonable, Nance."

"I know. . . . And that's why you're going to be a good doctor, Jeremy. Because you're ready to give so much of yourself without complaining."

"Good lord, don't make me a paragon! All doctors do."

"Perhaps. Only don't ask me to see you as just another run-of-the-mill doctor. You're special! You've got a halo. Maybe I'm the only one who see it, but that doesn't matter. I'll always see the halo, Jeremy."

"Will you put down that pencil a minute so it can't stab me while I kiss you?"

The pencil clattered to the floor. With her cheek flattened against him, she said, "It really has happened to us, hasn't it? The touch of magic."

"I'm afraid it has."

"Afraid!"

"Only the rashest of mortals tinker with magic, Nance, or try to hold it. It's fragile."

"We're brave! And we shan't break it, Jeremy, or lose it."

"Even," wryly, "if my halo gets knocked off?"

"I'll pick it up for you!"

"Or broken?"

"I've a deft touch with paste!"

"Nance," he said, with humility and love.

When Nance and Jeremy went down for dinner, Eleanor laced her needle through the canvas of her needlepoint and set it aside.

"There's a call for you, Jeremy. The number is on the pad." She said to Nance, crossing her fingers in a frail countercharm against an emergency which might take Jeremy to the hospital before dinner, "I do hope you know exactly what you're letting yourself in for, dear, as a doctor's wife."

"Shouldn't I, after being a doctor's sister all this time?"

Eleanor smiled.

"We were discussing it upstairs," Nance went on. "I've decided that any wailing and gnashing of teeth to be done shall be done in a soundproof room behind locked doors."

"Sam!" Eleanor called as the front door opened. "Is that you?"

"No, Bing Crosby," Sam Ireland hummed the familiar theme as he came into the living room.

[illegible] flushed and lifted her [illegible]

[illegible] Nance thought, [illegible] them, it will be a fine marriage.

Eleanor's raised brows asked a question of Jeremy as he came back into the room, and he answered, "Nothing that can't wait an hour, Mother."

"Nance," Eleanor said, "Miss Hinkley asked me today when you were coming for a fitting. She has your wedding dress at the stage where she can't remove a pin or rip out a basting thread without a try-on."

"I'll make an appointment tomorrow," Nance murmured.

"I believe you said that yesterday. . . . Nance, something came for you today. From New York. It's on the hall table."

"New York," Nance said, as Jeremy went for the package. "That will be Aunt Kit."

"Automatic toaster?" Jeremy guessed, going through elaborate gestures of squeezing, weighing, shaking. He'd done this with all the wedding gifts, so far. "Electric iron?"

"Nothing so practical," Nance laughed, unfolding layers of wrapping paper. "If I know Kit! It's more likely some precious relic from an auction, with a pedigree half a page long, utterly beautiful and quite useless . . . Oh," she gasped, lifting it carefully from its excelsior nest. "Look!"

Jeremy cupped his chin in his palms and looked. "What is it?" he asked dubiously.

"A tea kettle," Nance said. "And on the little stand underneath, a spirit lamp."

"Genii?" Jeremy inquired hopefully.

"Silly! You put methylated spirits in the little lamp and light the wick."

"Amazing," Jeremy murmured, "in this age of ohms and watts and volts."

With a small squeal of delight Eleanor discovered the Victorian hallmark. "Look, Nance—London, 1852."

"How could she bear to part with it?" Nance sighed.

Jeremy's spread palms and Sam's shrug were amused and indulgent, as Hattie came in to announce dinner.

I shall miss this, Nance thought, when Jeremy and I have our own home. The table, the four of us in the candlelight, Mother's flowers and Hattie's cooking spiced generously with her love for us. I'll miss it.

"I shall not give you my ideas as to the responsibility for the past," Dulles told the veterans.

"If I did, I might sound partisan. For a Democratic administration has had the responsibility to conduct our foreign affairs during the years that led into World War I, into World War II, into the Korean War, and that have led us into what President Truman this year calls 'deadly peril,' and what Gen. Eisenhower this week identified as the greatest peril in our nation's history."

Dulles made no further reference to the Republican presidential nominee, whom he advises on foreign policy.

"We must abandon the negative, futile and immoral policy of 'containment,' and adopt a positive program which actively seeks the peaceful liberation of the captive nations from the yoke of Moscow."

He said, "I do not know whether it is still possible to prevent World War II," but "we must never allow ourselves fatalisticaly to accept, in advance, the inevitabiity of a third world war."

To win the cold war, Dulles called for a greater measure of patriotism, vision, boldness, strength and dynamism.

Stevenson, Ike to Talk at Plow Meet

KASSON-DODGE CITY, Minn. (AP)—They're going to be doing some plowing, too, at the National Plowing Contest Sept. 6.

The site of the big farm event already has shaped up as a major political areana when Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson will mount a plank platform and expound farm views.

But officials of the contest, formally known as National Soil Conservation Day and Plow Matches stress that all the political hoopla won't deter them in their efforts to put on an event aimed at improving farming practices.

Harold Severson, chairman of the publicity committee, said today "the forgotten men of the soil conservation demonstration and plowing matches are stolidly going ahead with their work and their plans."

The affair is sponsored by a corporation made up of seven Southeastern Minnesota soil conservation districts. It will be held on six farms between Kasson and Dodge Center. Rochester, home of the famed Mayo Clinic, is about 17 miles to the east

There will be two divisions to the plow matches-contour on hilly land and level-land. Plowmen from about 15 states have already entered and tractors, plows and other farm machinery have begun to arrive on the scene.

Among the entrants is 80-year-old J. H. Thomas of Reserve, Kan. who won the England Wales plowing contest with horses when he was 21.

At the same time as the matches, soil conservation demonstrations will be going on. These include terracing on hillsides, planting of windbreaks and other practices to slow costly soil erosion. Another demonstration. using 23,000 feet of cylindrical tile sections, will show how a marshy area can be drained and put in shape for crops.

The center of interest for many of the expected 150,000 spectators will be a 30-acre "headquarters area." Fifty tents, the biggest 80 feet, were pitched Thursday. The Dodge County Red Cross chapter is rolling bandages and getting other equipment for a first aid station.

One Kasson grocer has five tons of weiners on order. The American Legion post has made arrangements for two tons of coffee.

Eighteen of the 30 acres have been set aside as a natural amphitheater for the program which will include the Eisenhower and Stevenson speeches.

Director of operations for the farm event is W. M. Roberts, a district conservationist for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

He said he would just as soon have neither presidential candidate nor any politics injected into the big day, but the sentiment generally seems to be that everyone is welcome. A big sign saying just that was stretched across the main street of Kasson Thursday.

Legion Head Urges Military Training

NEW YORK (AP)—Lewis Ketchan Gough, newly elected national commander of the American Legion, urges national security military training legislation to keep the nation in a state of preparedness.

The 44-year-old Gough, a World War II veteran now living in Pasadena, Calif., was elected yesterday as head of the legion in the closing session of its 34th annual convention.

Gough, who served in the Navy with the rank of commander, overwhelmingly defeated his only rival, Walter E. Alessandroni, 36, of Philadelphia.

Gough is an inheritance tax appraiser employed by the state of California. His legion office pays $15,000 annually. Election is for the ensuing year.

At ceremonies in Madison Square Garden, Gough had the red cap of legion commander placed on his head by his predecessor, Donald R. Wilson of Clarksburg, W. Va.

In his acceptance address, Gough urged "intelligence, firmness and courage" in combatting communism, and pleaded for a decisive military program for the nation's youth.

"For 34 years the legion has had the answer," he said, "A national security training that is universal, economical, effective and safeguarded by civilian control.

"As your commander, I shall ask for your all out effort for such legislation. . ."

As the convention neared its close, the delegate surged as investigation of national Selective Service headquarters.

leves. There is little danger of India going Communist, although three Communists have recently been elected to parliament from southern districts where monsoons left misery and discontent in their wake.

While the disagreement between India and Pakistan probably will not be settled for a long time, there is little danger of it eventuating into war, as each needs the production of the other. Indians are not warlike in the first place. They are fatalistic, believing that what is to come is predestined and they accept it with equanimity.

Hours, wages and working conditions are set by the government: Employees, disciplined or discharged, can appeal and decisions often take a year or more. Vacations, sick leave, casual leave (where an employee decides he he wants to take a week or 10 days off), holidays and Sundays can take as many as 160 days out of the 365-day year. Older employees are reasonablly efficient and loyal, but the newer ones are frequently unstable, inefficient and disinterested. I have heard this same complaint at home.

Would Walk Bottom of English Channel

LOS ANGELES, (AP) —How comes Bill Abernathy whois anxious to do the English channel swimmers one better. Abernathy, 29, is looking for a sponsor to finance a walk across the bottom of the English channel.

Informed that such a walk would be mighty wet, Abernahy explained that he's a diver by trade. He said yesterday he has permission from England and tentative permission from France to start hoofing it across the channel, which is 186 feet deep at its deepest point.

Abernathy, a diver for six years with the Navy, estimates it will cost $15,000 to install a series of buoys across the channel to chart his course. He would dive and install them. Then he'd walk the channel in his diving suit, with two boats supplying him oxygen.

Stevenson's Views Impress Negro Leader

By RELMAN MORIN

NEW YORK, (AP) — A prominent Negro leader, Channing Tobias, said today he was "very much impressed" with Gov. Adlai Stevenson's statements on civil rights, but evaded questions as to whether he would support the Democratic candidate for president.

Tobias had a long conversation with Stevenson today.

Tobias is a member of the United States delegation to the United Nations. He conferred with Stevenson along with Roy Wilkins, administrator of the National Association for te Advancement of Colored People.

Representatives of the NAACP held a similar conference with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican candidate, earlier this week. At that time Wilkins said the NAACP did not endorse political organizations but that he would report to his organization on his conversation with Eisenhower.

"I was very muhch impressed with the governor's remarks about civil rights, the filibuster, and allied subjects in his speeches here, Tobias said.

Correspondents asked Tobias if he would support Stevenson's candidacy. He replied:

"I may want to announce my position on that, one way or another, a little later."

Earlier Stevenson conferred with Elder Statesman Bernard Bauch who is currently out of favor with the Truman administration.

Emerging from Baruch's home after a breakfast conference lasting one hour and ten minutes, the Democratic presidential candidate told newsmen:

"There was no discussion of politics at all. We talked mainly about inflation and some other economic matters. It was a good breakfast and a very interesting talk."

Asked whether he and Baruch agreed on the matters discussed, Stevenson smiled and replied:

"We didn't argue."

Baruch, a financier who became a weighty unofficial adviser to the late President Roosevelt, has not yet stated whether he favors Stevenson or his Republican opponent, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Stevenson plans to return to his office in Springfield, Ill., this after noon.

This ends the first skirmish between Stevenson and his Republican opponent for the presidency, Gen. Dwight D. Eisehower. Next week, Stevenson heads westward while Eisenhower makes a campaign swing through the South.

Stevenson-possibly with an eye on Eisenhower's first trip— emphasized civil rights and the allied issue of the Senate filibuster in his last New York speeches

This is what he said:

"The federal government has a direct responsibility to maintain progress by helping to secure equal rights for all our pepole I have been impressed by the recent bill reported by Sen. Humphrey on behalf of the Senate Labor Committed."

This bill sets up anti-discrimination standards on employment in the individual states— with provison for the federal government to step in if an individual state does not act.

On the question of the filibuster, Stevenson said:

"The precise nature of the changes that should be made in the present rules of Congress is, of course, a problem for the Congress itself. . As President, I could not make the decision, but I could and would use whatever influence I may have to encourage the congress to shake off its shackles."

He pinpointed his position with the words:

"In these perilous times, we cannot risk submerging our national purpose in a sea of interminable conversation."

Eisenhower told a delegation from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People several days ago that he is opposed to compulsory enforcement of civil rights legislation.

Roy Wilkins, administrator of the NAACP. quoted the general as saying he was opposed to the compulsory clauses.

He just couldn't come to the conclusion tha tthat's the way solve the problem," Wilkins added.

A surface temperature of 700 degress Fahrenheit is capable it quickly igniting most combustible materials.

THE BRIDE WORE SPOTS—Stricken by measles a few hours before her scheduled wedding, Leta Teneyck, of Bloomington, Ind., did not let that little catastrophe hold up the ceremony. Though quarantined, she voiced her vows over a microphone through her bedroom window to the bridegroom, Jerome K. Denzer, and the rest of the wedding party on the lawn below.

IT AIN'T HAY—But it IS straw. This German miss in Hanau points to the face of a clock made out of straws which took 18 years to build. It was started in 1889 by Otto Wegener, a shoemaker and amateur clockmaker and completed in 1907. Although it stands five and a half feet high, it weighs only about a pound. It runs about eight hours. Everything in it, down to the smallest [illegible] balance wheel is made of straw.

Truman Budget to Be Size of Big Phone Book

By FRANCIS J. KELLY

WASHINGTON, (AP) — President Truman's goodbye gift to Congress will be a government budget the size of a big city phone book, important sections of which are likely to become waste paper within three days.

It isn't Truman's idea. A 1950 law requires him to give Congress a detailed estimate of federal income and outgo within 15 days after the opening of a regular sion.

The new 83rd Congress, most of whose membership will be determined in the November elections, convenes next Jan. 3. The budget message must be at the Capitol by Jan. 17. At high noon on Jan. 20 a new President takes his oath and Truman becomes a private citizen.

At the same moment, the odds are heavy that key sections of the Truman budget will start heading for the congressional waste baskets. Regardless of who wins the presidency, it is unlikely he will agree 100 per cent with his predecessor's fiscal plan for the government accounting year which starts next July 1.

Nor is there time between election and inauguration day to do much about it. The President-elect, after recovering some of the energy spent in his campaign, presumably will want to start putting together the inaugural address which will sound the keynote for the beginning of his administration

The budget, more over, is no simple document a man can spread out before him and say, we'll cut so much here, and add so much to this program. This particular financial estimate has been under preparation by the Budget Bureau since last May. Long before that, each department was instructed by the White House to state its needs for the fiscal 1954, as the next accounting period is known.

It contains literally hundreds of thousands of items. By no means all of these are likely to be or even could be revised by the new tenant of the White House. A vast number of them represent continuing appropriations for such items as the public debt and statutory programs approved by previous Congresses.

However, it's big appropriations and authorizations for such matters as defense, foreign aid and veterans benefits that add on the top billions and prompt the inkiest headlines. Obviously it is there and in similar fields that the incoming chief executive would find the most fertile ground for revision.

There is nothing— except possible political differences— to prevent the new man from sitting down with Truman and discussing the need for this appropriation or the reason behind that estimate. But it seems far more likely that the President-elect will want to feel his way more slowly and discuss the problems with his own advisers.

This appears to point the way to a series of supplemental budget requests later on. That was the way the matter was handled when Franklin D. Roosevelt took over in 1933 from Herbert Hoover. Congress can be asked to consider either upward or downward revisions in the estimates.

While the budget message must and will be sent to Congress, there is considerable doubt that Truman will choose to deliver the usual State of the Union address although he could if he so desired.

There has been no commitment from the White House on this point. It seems more probable now that the gray-haired Missourian will not attempt to lay down a program for his successor.

New Yorker Buys Bentonville Bank

BENTONVILLE, (AP) — A former New York Department store manager has purchased controlling interest of the Bank of Bentonville because he believes "Northwest Arkansas has a great future."

Arthur P. Smith. president of the bank, announced sale of the stock yesterday to H. Cornell Smith, former assistant managing director and active head of Gimbel Brothers in New York.

The purchase price was not disclosed but the bank has resources totalling $3.5 million. Transfer of control will be effective "on or before Sept. 12."

Aged Woman Sees First Light Burn

By NORBERT OLSHEFSKI

CAVE CITY, —(AP)— A 97-year-old woman who hasn't left her North Arkansas mountain home for 26 years finally has seen an electric light burn.

Not only that, she now is weighted down with modern electric gadgets including an electric blanket, a fan and subdued lighting.

Mrs. Betty Stoner lives in the rugged Ozarks about four miles from here and 18 miles from Batesville. Early in August the Arkansas Power and Light Company built a line to a small cluster of houses called Hilltop Community, where she lives.

The last time Mrs. Stoner, or Aunt Mary as she is called in the community, left her house was in 1926 when she took a trip to Batesville. The farthest trip she has ever taken was 30 miles to another county.

Asked if she hadn't seen electric lights burn in Batesville, she replied:

"It was daytime and they were not turned on."

"Aunt Mary" was just a young girl when the civil war was going on but she remembers the Confederate soldiers marching down the road, beating drums and playing fifes.

Although she is a strong member of the GOP she professes loyalty for the Confederacy.

Asked what she thought about GOP president nominee Dwight D. Eisenhower, she said, "Ike's a good man" and if she could get to the polls in November she plans to vote Republican.

The modern electric gadgets were given to her as gifts by the light company crew which installed her electric system.

When she first saw the light she said, "It burns so bright that it hurts my eyes a little." So the crew bought her some diffused lighting fixtures.

Mrs. Stoner lives with her son-in-law in a four-room log house covered with willow board on the outside.

She was born Feb. 20, 1855 in Independence County and has seven living children, 26 great-grandchildren and 9 great-great-grandchildren.

When the little ceremony of giving the gifts was over she invited the men back for her 100th birthday.

"Come back," she said, "We'll have a dance, too."

Oil Companies Ignore Chance for Defense

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Small Business Committee said today none of seven big oil firms accused of monopoly practices has accepted an offer to appear before the committee and dispute the charge.

The monopoly accusations were detailed in a long-suppressed report written by Federal Trade Commission staff members. The report was made public by the Senate committee Monday after President Truman acceded to senators' demands that it be released.

Blake O'Conor, directing the committee's professional staff, said the group will decide now whether to order public hearings of its own on the matter, write a report based on the FTC findings or simply let the report stand.

Sen. John Sparkman of Alabama, the committee chairman and Democratic nominee for vice president, announced in making the report public he was reserving yesterday and today for public hearings if any of the seven companies wanted to reply.

"We have had no request for a hearing from any of the seven," O'Connor told a reporter. "There have been no takers, so Dr. Walter Adams, the staff member who would have conducted the hearings, is returning to his post as a member of the faculty of Michigan State College at East Lansing, Mich."

The report named the seven companies as Standard Oil of New Jersey, Standard of California, the Texas Co., Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., and Gulf Oil Corp., all incorporated in this country, the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., largely owned by the British government, and Royal Dutch Shell, owned mainly by Dutch and British interests. In press statements at the time, the companies generally denied any wrongdoing.

The Justice Department is investigating the group, and has filed damage suits totaling 67 million dollars against the two Standard companies, the Texas Co. and Socony-Vacuum.

O'Connor said he considers it "perfectly understandable" that the companies declined an opportunity to answer the FTC while the grand jury inquiry and the law suits are pending.

Sen. James E. Murray, Montana Democrat, announced, meanwhile, he expects the FTC report will be used widely as campaign material in support of Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee. Murray said it "shows Stevenson made the correct and courageous stand" on the campaign issue of state or federal control of the rich offshore oil reserves in this country.

Stevenson said he was against any "blanket cession" of these national assets to individual states.

DOROTHY DIX

Helpful Sister

Dear Miss Dix: Ten weeks ago my brother's wife had a baby. My brother works hard but when he comes home his wife, who has had a day of leisure, expects him to make dinner, giving the baby as an excuse. My brother is also working for his Ph. D. and, since he is so worried at home, his marks have been getting lower. How can I tell his wife to organize her home better? I am willing to help her.

CAROL D.

Answer: Judging from your writing, you are a very young miss, and should be highly commended for your concern over your brother's welfare. Are you sure you are judging the situation fairly? The mother of a 10-weeks-old baby really doesn't have much time for leisure, although she should be able to prepare dinner for two without much difficulty.

I'm sure she would appreciate your offer of assistance. Why not go over and see what you can do for her? The experience will be helpful to you, and will aid your brother's family over a period of adjustment to the new baby that is sometimes quite difficult.

An infant and a Ph. D. aspirant in the same household are quite a handful, and I'm sure your efforts will be very useful in smoothing the domestic machinery.

Let Mother Decide

Dear Miss Dix: The man I go with is 21, and I am 17. He is divorced. We like the same things and get along well except that he doesn't believe me when I tell him certain things. He claims that he has been lied to so much that he can't believe anyone. I don't think that's fair. My family objects to him because he has been married before and I don't think that has anything to do with our present or future.

S. M.

Answer: First of all, whether you approve of your mother's decisions or not, she is the one to be consulted on your problems, since at 17 you haven't the experience to figure everything out for yourself. A single boy, closer to you in age, would be a much more suitable companion than a divorced man.

Dear Miss Dix: We are two girls of 13. Another friend, Vera, who is 12, has dates, uses lipstick and thinks we are cowards because we don't do the same. We don't believe in things like that until we're 16. Who is right?

A. F.

Answer: You are right. You have a code of conduct entirely in keeping with your age, and don't let anyone tease, or ridicule, you out of it. Vera does not seem to be a good friend for you, and I agree with your mother that the less you see of her the better.

Dear Miss Dix: For five years I have been going with a boy who has said he was in love with me. We planned to marry when I finish college. Lately, however, he hasn't come out with me and has told several people he doesn't go with me anymore. What must I do?

P. Q.

Answer: You have been given a cue to make a graceful exit. The boy hasn't the courage to tell you frankly that he doesn't want to go with you, so has taken the ungentlemanly course of getting the information to you via third parties. Make sure your information comes from reliable source and, if possible, verify it directly with the boy. The chances are that his attentions have wandered, and I advise yours to do likewise.

Dear Miss Dix: All the relations of my husband's side call me skinny. My husband says I am pretty close to average Miss America figure and. though I think I'm just about right, I feel so self-conscious around his relations.

LOU

Answer From the measurements you give, Lou, I, too, would say you're about right. Perhaps hubby's family is inclined to avoirdupois and are envious. Take their remarks good naturedly and stop being selfconscious.

Dear Miss Dix: I would love to have a dog but my mother and father say that the city is no place for one. I am 12 years old.

RONNIE

Answer: A dog is a wonderful companion for a boy, and I wish you could find someone who would persuade your parents to get one. Of course, a large dog is out of place in the city, but the smaller breeds do very nicely, even in a small place. But remember, Ronnie, if mom and dad do finally agree to the dog, it's your job to take care of him. One reason why parents don't like the idea is that dad usually gets the job of walking the dog, while mom has all the feeding and house care to do.

Officers Will Try to Starve Out Badman

PACIFIC, Mo., (AP) — Police, convinced they have a cordon around William Merle Martin, 42, one of the FBI's 10 most-wanted fugitives adopted a starve-him-out attitude today.

"We can't possibly get enough men to comb those woods thoroughly," Capt. Lewis Howard of the Missouri Highway Patrol said. "Our men could go within three feet of him in some sections and not know it. We'll just have to wait until he gets hungry enough to make a break."

A driver of a car, stolen in Brimingham, Ala., several days ago, fled into a rugged section of Western St. Louis County, about 40 miles west of St. Louis after highway troopers forced the vehicle into a ditch.

They said the man, believed answered Martin's description.

Around dusk last night two armed farmers, part of a large group of civilians who have joined county, state and federal authorities in the area, saw a man who appeared to be Martin walk from the woods.

The man spotted them and fled. They fired shotguns but apparently didn't hit him.

Martin, who began a crime career in 1929, got on the FBI list after the slaying of Deputy Sheriff Bob. Carver near Olathe, Kan., June 23.

Bus Company Offers Wage Increase

LITTLE ROCK, (AP)— A 3-man arbitration board yesterday granted a 4-cent-an-hour wage increase to union bus drivers of the Capitol Transportation Company— a penny lower than the firm's offer prior to arbitration.

The union, Division 704 of the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes' of America AFL, had asked a 20-cent-an-hour boost.

In the decision handed down by the board, 15 of 18 union proposals were rejected; one was settled during arbitration; one was granted and one— the wage provision — was modified.

Of the company's 18 proposals, 12 were granted; three were refused, and three were modified.

Not only were union officials disappointed at the decision, the local president B. Beryl Bland, said he doubted that the Board had legal autholty to change the effective date of the contract.

The company had asked for a 2-year contract, while the union wanted the agreement to run for only a year.

The Board rejected the company's proposal, but it set Sept. 1 as the effective date of the new contract instead of June 1 — the former expiration date. This, in effect gave Capitol a 15-month contract.

Under the decision, the new wage scale for top operators drivers will be $1.41 per hour. Top maintainance men will get $1.56 per hour.

ANDA Group to Name New Head

LITTLE ROCK, (AP) — [illegible] year-old president of the Arkansas Negro Democratic Association says he will not seek re-election to the post at the group's meeting here today.

Dr. J. M. Robinson, who first was elected president of the ANDA when the group organized in [illegible], said last night:

"I'm tired. Twenty-five years in the harness is enough for any one."

Robinson said he thought possible candidates for his post would be Wiley Branton of Pine Bluff and G. C. McKey of Texarkana.

Prior to the July 29th preferential primary at which Holt was defeated Robinson said he would resign as ANDA president if Gov. McMath were re-elected governor.

Robinson said that loyalty to state and national Democratic nominees would be stressed at today's meeting.

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Sen. Rob[illegible] has made his first con[illegible] Dwight D. Eisenhower's [illegible] campaign—a sizzling [illegible] plan linking Democrats in [illegible] alliance" with crime and [illegible] "scandals" incompe[illegible] was disclosed today.

[illegible] suggested plan was drafted by the Senate Republican policy committee, of which Taft is chairman. Eisenhower and Taft will discuss it when they confer in [illegible] future on campaign strategy.

[illegible] pages of political gunpowder [illegible] Taft's desire for a [illegible] GOP campaign—[illegible] he has told associates [illegible] he would be willing [illegible]

[illegible] a campaign for the White House based on attacks [illegible] public issue from the [illegible] to the Korea war. [illegible] Adlai E. Stevenson comes [illegible] attack on grounds that [illegible] victory would mean [illegible] new coat of paint over [illegible] boards of an old house."

[illegible] the document says, [illegible] elected without the support [illegible] grabbing pressure groups" [illegible] of entrenched bureau[illegible] marked by "official incompetence, corruption, secrecy, [illegible] and arbitrary actions."

The document names President Truman as the person responsible [illegible] moral tone which has [illegible] his administration." It [illegible] some of the president's [illegible] associates: Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, Mrs. Truman's [illegible] for being "involved [illegible] five percenters scandal;" [illegible] Gen. Wallace Graham, White House physician, "caught speculating in grain" and presidential assistant Donald Dawson, "found guilty of influencing RFC loans."

The document raps the Democrats on many other issues:

Korea—The war resulted from military and political blunders of the Democratic party from 1933 [illegible] . . . A war which uses the minimum of Soviet resources and the maximum of American resources.

National defense—Since . . . 1945, [illegible] Pearl Harbors have been in [illegible] American forces were [illegible] demobilized and American [illegible] allowed to decay . . . American forces have been strung out [illegible] across the globe."

[illegible] China policy—China was delivered into the hands of the Communists. Harry Truman made this certain by the (Gen. George C.) Marshall mission which compelled Nationalist China to accept the Communists in 1947."

Civil Rights—"The basis for the Democratic claim of devotion to Negro interests is simply the fact that there was no way to exclude Negro citizens from relief during the time of the world depression. . . Negroes (in government office) were advisers on Negro affairs. . . The real meaning of this practice by Democrats is an indirect assertion that Negroes were a depressed class and would be treated as such and not as citizens seeking consideration on individual merit. Republicans never indulged in such insincerities."

Government finances—has there ever been such outrageous taxation, such a staggering national debt, such waste of public money and such dangerous inflation of prices everyone has to pay?"

Top Prep Stars Play Tonight

MEMPHIS (AP)—The nation's top prep stars go on display here tonight when East meets West in the fourth annual All-American high school football game.

Clear skies are predicted for the game which is expected to draw about 15,000 fans into Crump Stadium. East teams have won all three of the previous games, sponsored by the Wigwam Wisemen of America, a fraternal organization.

The West, coached by Bill Glassford of Nebraska, will strike from a spread formation, indicating its attack will revolve around a potentially explosive passing game. Buddy Benson, classy ballhandler and passer from De Queen, Ark., will be the tailback in Glassford's No. 1 offensive alignment.

The East, under Coach Red Drew of Alabama, will use the split-T. Bart Starr of Montgomery, Ala., a fine runner and accurate passer, will direct the East attack.

The only tropical rain forest on land controlled by the United States is located in Puerto Rico.

Sparkman Just Skips Civil Rights Issue

By KEITH FULLER

MINDENHALL, Miss. —(AP)—Sen. John Sparkman skipped the touchy civil rights issue in opening his vice presidential campaign before a deep South audience last night.

The Alabama senator's blanket defense of the Democratic platform was the nearest he came to the subject.

The party platform that has caused strife among many Southern Democrats contains a proposed Fair Employment Practice Commission, anti-lynch and anti-poll tax planks.

"I realize there may be things in the Democratic platform that all of us cannot agree upon," he told an audience estimated at between 3,000 and 5,000 in the Mendenhall High School football stadium.

"But remember that this party of ours is made up of free people from all walks of life with many divergent beliefs."

Sparkman recently was called "a traitor to the South" for his support of the platform. His critics, dissatisfied Mississippi Democrats, formed a Democrats-for-Eisenhower movement and bolted the regular party.

Sparkman devoted most of his speech to "what the Democratic party has done for the people of this nation." But he took the time for a few swings at the Republicans.

"About the only issue the Republicans can raise is their cry that it's time for a change," he said.

"But you people can ask them—you will ask them — a change from what to what?"

The senator then listed benefits he said the Democratic party has given the country.

Sparkman also defended the United Nations in Korea.

"Gen. Douglas MacArthur and even Gen. Eisenhower, who certainly could not be considered supporters of our party, have said that we could not have upheld our honor and stayed out of Korea," he asserted.

"Despite gloomy reports you hear, our foreign policy is making progress," declared the Alabama senator.

He called it a bipartisan policy and named Dwight Eisenhower, the GOP presidential nominee, as one of many Republicans who have contributed to it.

spends 80 billion dollars a year, a few men at the top cannot keep track of all that goes on. Often it is the inconspicious persons who exert the greatest influence upon policy and, above all, upon performance."

"I shall not give you my ideas as to the responsibility for the past," Dulles told the veterans.

"If I did, I might sound partisan. For a Democratic administration has had the responsibility to conduct our foreign affairs during the years that led into World War I, into World War II, into the Korean War, and that have led us into what President Truman this year calls 'deadly peril,' and what Gen. Eisenhower this week identified as the greatest peril in our nation's history."

Dulles made no further reference to the Republican presidential nominee, whom he advises on foreign policy.

"We must abandon the negative, futile and immoral policy of 'containment,' and adopt a positive program which actively seeks the peaceful liberation of the captive nations from the yoke of Moscow."

He said, "I do not know whether it is still possible to prevent World War II," but "we must never allow ourselves fatalisticaly to accept, in advance, the inevitabiity of a third world war."

To win the cold war, Dulles called for a greater measure of patriotism, vision, boldness, strength and dynamism.

Stevenson, Ike to Talk at Plow Meet

KASSON-DODGE CITY, Minn. (AP)—They're going to be doing some plowing, too, at the National Plowing Contest Sept. 6.

The site of the big farm event already has shaped up as a major political areana when Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson will mount a plank platform and expound farm views.

But officials of the contest, formally known as National Soil Conservation Day and Plow Matches stress that all the political hoopla won't deter them in their efforts to put on an event aimed at improving farming practices.

Harold Severson, chairman of the publicity committee, said today "the forgotten men of the soil conservation demonstration and plowing matches are stolidly going ahead with their work and their plans."

The affair is sponsored by a corporation made up of seven Southeastern Minnesota soil conservation districts. It will be held on six farms between Kasson and Dodge Center. Rochester, home of the famed Mayo Clinic, is about 17 miles to the east.

There will be two divisions to the plow matches-contour on hilly land and level-land. Plowmen from about 15 states have already entered and tractors, plows and other farm machinery have begun to arrive on the scene.

Among the entrants is 80-year-old J. H. Thomas of Reserve, Kan. who won the England Wales plowing contest with horses when he was 21.

At the same time as the matches, soil conservation demonstrations will be going on. These include terracing on hillsides, planting of windbreaks and other practices to slow costly soil erosion. Another demonstration, using 23,000 feet of cylindrical tile sections, will show how a marshy area can be drained and put in shape for crops.

The center of interest for many of the expected 150,000 spectators will be a 30-acre "headquarters area." Fifty tents, the biggest 80x80 feet, were pitched Thursday. The Dodge County Red Cross chapter is rolling bandages and getting other equipment for a first aid station.

One Kasson grocer has five tons of weiners on order. The American Legion post has made arrangements for two tons of coffee.

Eighteen of the 30 acres have been set aside as a natural amphitheater for the program which will include the Eisenhower and Stevenson speeches.

Director of operations for the farm event is W. M. Roberts, a district conservationist for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

He said he would just as soon have neither presidential candidate nor any politics injected into the big day, but the sentiment generally seems to be that everyone is welcome. A big sign saying just that was stretched across the main street of Kasson Thursday.

Legion Head Urges Military Training

NEW YORK (AP)—Lewis Ketchan Gough, newly elected national commander of the American Legion, urges national security military training legislation to keep the nation in a state of preparedness.

The 44-year-old Gough, a World War II veteran now living in Pasadena, Calif., was elected yesterday as head of the legion in the closing session of its 34th annual convention.

Gough, who served in the Navy with the rank of commander, overwhelmingly defeated his only rival, Walter E. Alessandroni, 36, of Philadelphia.

Gough is an inheritance tax appraiser employed by the state of California. His legion office pays $15,000 annually. Election is for the ensuing year.

At ceremonies in Madison Square Garden, Gough had the red cap of legion commander placed on his head by his predecessor, Donald R. Wilson of Clarksburg, W. Va.

In his acceptance address, Gough urged "intelligence, firmness and courage" in combatting communism, and pleaded for a decisive military program for the nation's youth.

"For 34 years the legion has had the answer," he said, "A national security training that is universal, economical, effective and safeguarded by civilian control.

"As your commander, I shall ask for your all out effort for such legislation. . ."

As the convention neared its close, the delegate surged as in vestigation of national Selective Service headquarters.

lieves. There is little danger of India going Communist, although three Communists have recently been elected to parliament from southern districts where monsoons left misery and discontent in their wake.

While the disagreement between India and Pakistan probably will not be settled for a long time, there is little danger of it eventuating into war, as each needs the production of the other. Indians are not warlike in the first place. They are fatalistic, believing that what is to come is predestined and they accept it with equanimity.

Hours, wages and working conditions are set by the government: Employees, disciplined or discharged, can appeal and decisions often take a year or more. Vacations, sick leave, casual leave (where an employee decides he he wants to take a week or 10 days off), holidays and Sundays can take as many as 160 days out of the 365-day year. Older employees are reasonablly efficient and loyal, but the newer ones are frequently unstable, inefficient and disinterested. I have heard this same complaint at home.

Would Walk Bottom of English Channel

LOS ANGELES, (AP) —How comes Bill Abernathy who is anxious to do the English channel swimmers one better. Abernathy, 29, is looking for a sponsor to finance a walk across the bottom of the English channel.

Informed that such a walk would be mighty wet, Abernahy explained that he's a diver by trade. He said yesterday he has permission from England and tentative permission from France to start hoofing it across the channel, which is 186 feet deep at its deepest point.

Abernathy, a diver for six years with the Navy, estimates it will cost $15,000 to install a series of buoys across the channel to chart his course. He would dive and install them. Then he'd walk the channel in his diving suit, with two boats supplying him oxygen.

Stevenson's Views Impress Negro Leader

By RELMAN MORIN

NEW YORK, (AP) — A prominent Negro leader, Channing Tobias, said today he was "very much impressed" with Gov. Adlai Stevenson's statements on civil rights, but evaded questions as to whether he would support the Democratic candidate for president.

Tobias had a long conversation with Stevenson today.

Tobias is a member of the United States delegation to the United Nations. He conferred with Stevenson along with Roy Wilkins, administrator of the National Assocation for te Advancement of Colored People.

Representatives of the NAACP held a similar conference with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican candidate, earlier this week. At that time Wilkins said the NAACP did not endorse political organizations but that he would report to his organization on his conversation with Eisenhower.

"I was very muhch impressed with the governor's remarks about civil rights, the filibuster, and allied subjects in his speeches here, Tobias said.

Correspondents asked Tobias if he would support Stevenson's candidacy. He replied:

"I may want to announce my position on that, one way or another, a little later."

Earlier Stevenson conferred with Elder Statesman Bernard Bauch who is currently out of favor with the Truman administration.

Emerging from Baruch's home after a breakfast conference lasting one hour and ten minutes, the Democratic presidential candidate told newsmen:

"There was no discussion of politics at all. We talked mainly about inflation and some other economic matters. It was a good breakfast and a very interesting talk."

Asked whether he and Baruch agreed on the matters discussed, Stevenson smiled and replied:

"We didn't argue."

Baruch, a financier who became a weighty unofficial adviser to the late President Roosevelt, has not yet stated whether he favors Stevenson or his Republican opponent, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Stevenson plans to return to his office in Springfield, Ill., this afternoon.

This ends the first skirmish between Stevenson and his Republican opponent for the presidency, Gen. Dwight D. Eisehower. Next week, Stevenson heads westward while Eisenhower makes a campaign swing through the South.

Stevenson-possibly with an eye on Eisenhower's first trip— emphasized civil rights and the allied issue of the Senate filibuster in his last New York speeches

This is what he said:

"The federal government has a direct responsibility to maintain progress by helping to secure equal rights for all our pepole I have been impressed by the recent bill reported by Sen. Humphrey on behalf of the Senate Labor Committee."

This bill sets up anti-discrimination standards on employment in the individual states— with provison for the federal government to step in if an individual state does not act.

On the question of the filibuster, Stevenson said:

"The precise nature of the changes that should be made in the present rules of Congress is, of course, a problem for the Congress itself. . . As President, I could not make the decision, but I could and would use whatever influence I may have to encourage the congress to shake off its shackles."

He pinpointed his position with the words:

"In these perilous times, we cannot risk submerging our national purpose in a sea of interminable conversation."

Eisenhower told a delegation from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People several days ago that he is opposed to compulsory enforcement of civil rights legislation.

Roy Wilkins, administrator of the NAACP, quoted the general as saying he was opposed to the compulsory clauses.

He just couldn't come to the conclusion tha tthat's the way to solve the problem," Wilkins added.

A surface temperature of 700 degress Fahrenheit is capable of quickly igniting most combustible materials.

THE BRIDE WORE SPOTS—Stricken by measles a few hours before her scheduled wedding, Leta Teneyck, of Bloomington, Ind., did not let that little catastrophe hold up the ceremony. Though quarantined, she voiced her vows over a microphone through her bedroom window to the bridegroom, Jerome K. Denzer, and the rest of the wedding party on the lawn below.

IT AIN'T HAY—But it IS straw. This German miss in Hanau points to the face of a clock made out of straws which took 15 years to build. It was started in 1883 by Otto Wegener, a shoemaker and amateur clockmaker and completed in 1907. Although it stands five and a half feet high, it weighs only about a pound. It runs about eight hours. Everything in it, down to the smallest balance wheel is made of straw.

Magic is Fragile

"Sick people aren't reasonable, Nance."

"I know. . . . And that's why you're going to be a good doctor, Jeremy. Because you're ready to give so much of yourself without complaining."

"Good lord, don't make me a paragon! All doctors do."

"Perhaps. Only don't ask me to see you as just another run-of-the-mill doctor. You're special! You've got a halo. Maybe I'm the only one who see it, but that doesn't matter. I'll always see the halo, Jeremy."

"Will you put down that pencil a minute so it can't stab me while I kiss you?"

The pencil clattered to the floor. With her cheek flattened against him, she said, "It really has happened to us, hasn't it? The touch of magic."

"I'm afraid it has."

"Afraid?"

"Only the rashest of mortals tinker with magic, Nance, or try to hold it. It's fragile."

"We're brave! And we shan't break it, Jeremy, or lose it."

"Even," wryly, "if my halo gets knocked off?"

"I'll pick it up for you!"

"Or broken?"

"I've a deft touch with paste!"

"Nance," he said, with humility and love.

When Nance and Jeremy went down for dinner, Eleanor laced her needle through the canvas of her needlepoint and set it aside.

"There's a call for you, Jeremy. The number is on the pad." She said to Nance, crossing her fingers in a frail countercharm against an emergency which might take Jeremy to the hospital before dinner, "I do hope you know exactly what you're letting yourself in for, dear, as a doctor's wife."

"Shouldn't I, after being a doctor's sister all this time?"

Eleanor smiled.

"We went discussing it upstairs," Nance went on. "I've decided that any wailing and gnashing of teeth to be done shall be done in a soundproof room behind locked doors."

"Sam?" Eleanor called as the front door opened. "Is that you?"

"No, Bing Crosby." Sam Ireland hummed the familiar theme as he came into the front room.

[illegible] Nance thought, [illegible] them, it will be a fine marriage.

Eleanor's raised brows asked a question of Jeremy as he came back into the room, and he answered, "Nothing that can't wait an hour, Mother."

"Nance," Eleanor said, "Miss Hinkley asked me today when you were coming for a fitting. She has your wedding dress at the stage where she can't remove a pin or rip out a basting thread without a try-on."

"I'll make an appointment tomorrow," Nance murmured.

"I believe you said that yesterday . . . . Nance, something came for you today. From New York. It's on the hall table."

"New York," Nance said, as Jeremy went for the package. "That will be Aunt Kit."

"Automatic toaster?" Jeremy guessed, going through elaborate gestures of squeezing, weighing, shaking. He'd done this with all the wedding gifts, so far. "Electric iron?"

"Nothing so practical," Nance laughed, unfolding layers of wrapping paper, "if I know Kit! It's more likely some precious relic from an auction, with a pedigree half a page long, utterly beautiful and quite useless . . . Oh," she gasped, lifting it carefully from its excelsior nest. "Look!"

Jeremy cupped his chin in his palms and looked. "What is it?" he asked dubiously.

"A tea kettle," Nance said. "And on the little stand underneath, a spirit lamp."

"Genii?" Jeremy inquired hopefully.

"Silly! You put methylated spirits in the little lamp and light the wick."

"Amazing," Jeremy murmured, "in this age of ohms and watts and volts."

With a small squeal of delight Eleanor discovered the Victorian hallmark. "Look, Nance—London, 1832."

"How could she bear to part with it?" Nance sighed.

Jeremy's spread palms and Sam's shrug were amused and indulgent, as Hattie came in to announce dinner.

I shall miss this, Nance thought, when Jeremy and I have our own home. The table, the four of us in the candlelight, Mother's flowers and Hattie's cooking spiced generously with her love for us. I'll miss it.

Truman Budget to Be Size of Big Phone Book

By FRANCIS J. KELLY

WASHINGTON, (AP) — President Truman's goodbye gift to Congress will be a government budget the size of a big city phone book, important sections of which are likely to become waste paper within three days.

It isn't Truman's idea. A 1950 law requires him to give Congress a detailed estimate of federal income and outgo within 15 days after the opening of a regular sion.

The new 83rd Congress, most of whose membership will be determined in the November elections, convenes next Jan. 3. The budget message must be at the Capitol by Jan. 17. At high noon on Jan. 20 a new President takes his oath and Truman becomes a private citizen.

At the same moment, the odds are heavy that key sections of the Truman budget will start heading for the congressional waste baskets. Regardless of who wins the presidency, it is unlikely he will agree 100 per cent with his predecessor's fiscal plan for the government accounting year which starts next July 1.

Nor is there time between election and inauguration day to do much about it. The President-elect, after recovering some of the energy spent in his campaign, presumably will want to start putting together the inaugural address which will sound the keynote for the beginning of his administration

The budget, more over, is no simple document a man can spread out before him and say, we'll cut so much here, and add so much to this program. This particular financial estimate has been under preparation by the Budget Bureau since last May. Long before that, each department was instructed by the White House to state its needs for the fiscal 1954, as the next accounting period is known.

It contains literally hundreds of thousands of items. By no means all of these are likely to be, or even could be revised by the new tenant of the White House. A vast number of them represent continuing appropriations for such items as the public debt and statutory programs approved by previous Congresses.

However, it's big appropriations and authorizations for such matters as defense, foreign aid and veterans benefits that add on the top billions and prompt the inkiest headlines. Obviously it is there and in similar fields that the incoming chief executive would find the most fertile ground for revision.

There is nothing— except possible political differences— to prevent the new man from sitting down with Truman and discussing the need for this appropriation or the reason behind that estimate. But it seems far more likely that the President-elect will want to feel his way more slowly and discuss the problems with his own advisers.

This appears to point the way to a series of supplemental budget requests later on. That was the way the matter was handled when Franklin D. Roosevelt took over in 1933 from Herbert Hoover. Congress can be asked to consider either upward or downward revisions in the estimates.

While the budget message must and will be sent to Congress, there is considerable doubt that Truman will choose to deliver the usual State of the Union address although he could if he so desired.

There has been no commitment from the White House on this point. It seems more probable now that the gray-haired Missourian will not attempt to lay down a program for his successor.

New Yorker Buys Bentonville Bank

BENTONVILLE, (AP) — A former New York Department store manager has purchased controlling interest of the Bank of Bentonville because he believes "Northwest Arkansas has a great future."

Arthur P. Smith, president of the bank, announced sale of the stock yesterday to H. Cornell Smith, former assistant managing director and active head of Gimbel Brothers in New York.

The purchase price was not disclosed but the bank has resources totalling $3.5 million. Transfer of control will be effective "on or before Sept. 12."

Aged Woman Sees First Light Burn

By NORBERT OLSHEFSKI

CAVE CITY, —(AP)— A 97-year-old woman who hasn't left her North Arkansas mountain home for 26 years finally has seen an electric light burn.

Not only that, she now is weighted down with modern electric gadgets including an electric blanket, a fan and subdued lighting.

Mrs. Betty Stoner lives in the rugged Ozarks about four miles from here and 18 miles from Batesville. Early in August the Arkansas Power and Light Company built a line to a small cluster of houses called Hilltop Community, where she lives.

The last time Mrs. Stoner, or Aunt Mary as she is called in the community, left her house was in 1926 when she took a trip to Batesville. The farthest trip she has ever taken was 30 miles to another county.

Asked if she hadn't seen electric lights burn in Batesville, she replied:

"It was daytime and they were not turned on."

"Aunt Mary" was just a young girl when the civil war was going on but she remembers the Confederate soldiers marching down the road, beating drums and playing fifes.

Although she is a strong member of the GOP she professes loyalty for the Confederacy.

Asked what she thought about GOP president nominee Dwight D. Eisenhower, she said, "Ike's a good man" and if she could get to the polls in November she plans to vote Republican.

The modern electric gadgets were given to her as gifts by the light company crew which installed her electric system.

When she first saw the light she said, "It burns so bright that it hurts my eyes a little." So the crew bought her some diffused lighting fixtures.

Mrs. Stoner lives with her son-in-law in a four-room log house covered with willow board on the outside.

She was born Feb. 20, 1855 in Independence County and has seven living children, 26 great-grandchildren and 9 great-great-grandchildren.

When the little ceremony of giving the gifts was over she invited the men back for her 100th birthday.

"Come back," she said, "We'll have a dance, too."

Oil Companies Ignore Chance for Defense

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Small Business Committee said today none of seven big oil firms accused of monopoly practices has accepted an offer to appear before the committee and dispute the charge.

The monopoly accusations were detailed in a long-suppressed report written by Federal Trade Commission staff members. The report was made public by the Senate committee Monday after President Truman acceded to senators' demands that it be released.

Blake O'Conor, directing the committee's professional staff, said the group will decide now whether to order public hearings of its own on the matter, write a report based on the FTC findings or simply let the report stand.

Sen. John Sparkman of Alabama, the committee chairman and Democratic nominee for vice president, announced in making the report public he was reserving yesterday and today for public hearings if any of the seven companies wanted to reply.

"We have had no request for a hearing from any of the seven," O'Connor told a reporter. "There have been no takers, so Dr. Walter Adams, the staff member who would have conducted the hearings, is returning to his post as a member of the faculty of Michigan State College at East Lansing, Mich."

The report named the seven companies as Standard Oil of New Jersey, Standard of California, the Texas Co., Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., and Gulf Oil Corp., all incorporated in this country, the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., largely owned by the British government, and Royal Dutch Shell, owned mainly by Dutch and British interests. In press statements at the time, the companies generally denied any wrongdoing.

The Justice Department is investigating the group, and has filed damage suits totaling 67 million dollars against the two Standard companies, the Texas Co. and Socony-Vacuum.

O'Connor said he considers it "perfectly understandable" that the companies declined an opportunity to answer the FTC while the grand jury inquiry and the law suits are pending.

Sen. James E. Murray, Montana Democrat, announced, meanwhile, he expects the FTC report will be used widely as campaign material in support of Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee. Murray said it "shows Stevenson made the correct and courageous stand" on the campaign issue of state or federal control of the rich offshore oil reserves in this country.

Stevenson said he was against any "blanket cession" of these national assets to individual states.

DOROTHY DIX

Helpful Sister

Dear Miss Dix: Ten weeks ago my brother's wife had a baby. My brother works hard but when he comes home his wife, who has had a day of leisure, expects him to make dinner, giving the baby as an excuse. My brother is also working for his Ph. D. and, since he is so worried at home, his marks have been getting lower. How can I tell his wife to organize her home better? I am willing to help her.
CAROL D.

Answer: Judging from your writing, you are a very young miss, and should be highly commended for your concern over your brother's welfare. Are you sure you are judging the situation fairly? The mother of a 10-weeks-old baby really doesn't have much time for leisure, although she should be able to prepare dinner for two without much difficulty.

I'm sure she would appreciate your offer of assistance. Why not go over and see what you can do for her? The experience will be helpful to you, and will aid your brother's family over a period of adjustment to the new baby that is sometimes quite difficult.

An infant and a Ph. D. aspirant in the same household are quite a handful, and I'm sure your efforts will be very useful in smoothing the domestic machinery.

Let Mother Decide

Dear Miss Dix: The man I go with is 21, and I am 17. He is divorced. We like the same things and get along well except that he doesn't believe me when I tell him certain things. He claims that he has been lied to so much that he can't believe anyone. I don't think that's fair. My family objects to him because he has been married before and I don't think that has anything to do with our present or future.
S. M.

Answer: First of all, whether you approve of your mother's decisions or not, she is the one to be consulted on your problems, since at 17 you haven't the experience to figure everything out for yourself. A single boy, closer to you in age, would be a much more suitable companion than a divorced man.

Dear Miss Dix: We are two girls of 13. Another friend, Vera, who is 12, has dates, uses lipstick and thinks we are cowards because we don't do the same. We don't believe in things like that until we're 16. Who is right?
A. F.

Answer: You are right- You have a code of conduct entirely in keeping with your age, and don't let anyone tease, or ridicule, you out of it. Vera does not seem to be a good friend for you, and I agree with your mother that the less you see of her the better.

Dear Miss Dix: For five years I have been going with a boy who has said he was in love with me. We planned to marry when I finish college. Lately, however, he hasn't come out with me and has told several people he doesn't go with me anymore. What must I do?
P. Q.

Answer: You have been given a cue to make a graceful exit. The boy hasn't the courage to tell you frankly that he doesn't want to go with you, so has taken the ungentlemanly course of getting the information to you via third parties. Make sure your information comes from reliable source and, if possible, verify it directly with the boy. The chances are that his attentions have wandered, and I advise yours to do likewise.

Dear Miss Dix: All the relations of my husband's side call me skinny. My husband says I am pretty close to average Miss America figure and though I think I'm just about right, I feel so self-conscious around his relations.
LOU

Answer From the measurements you give, Lou, I, too, would say you're about right. Perhaps hubby's family is inclined to avoirdupois and are envious. Take their remarks good naturedly and stop being selfconscious.

Dear Miss Dix: I would love to have a dog but my mother and father say that the city is no place for one. I am 12 years old.
RONNIE

Answer: A dog is a wonderful companion for a boy, and I wish you could find someone who would persuade your parents to get one. Of course, a large dog is out of place in the city, but the smaller breeds do very nicely, even in a small place. But remember, Ronnie, if mom and dad do finally agree to the dog, it's your job to take care of him. One reason why parents don't like the idea is that dad usually gets the job of walking the dog, while mom has all the feeding and house care to do.

Officers Will Try to Starve Out Badman

PACIFIC, Mo., (AP) — Police, convinced they have a cordon around William Merle Martin, 42, one of the FBI's 10 most-wanted fugitives adopted a starve-him-out attitude today.

"We can't possibly get enough men to comb those woods thoroughly," Capt. Lewis Howard of the Missouri Highway Patrol said. "Our men could go within three feet of him in some sections and not know it. We'll just have to wait until he gets hungry enough to make a break."

A driver of a car, stolen in Brimingham, Ala., several days ago, fled into a rugged section of Western St. Louis County, about 40 miles west of St. Louis after highway troopers forced the vehicle into a ditch.

They said the man, believed answered Martin's description.

Around dusk last night two armed farmers, part of a large group of civilians who have joined county, state and federal authorities in the area, saw a man who appeared to be Martin walk from the woods.

The man spotted them and fled. They fired shotguns but apparently didn't hit him.

Martin, who began a crime career in 1929, got on the FBI list after the slaying of Deputy Sheriff Bob. Carver near Olathe, Kan., June 23.

Shoots Landlord, Gets Five Years

POWHATTAN, (AP) — A 70-year old man is to serve 5 years in prison for the fatal shooting of his landlord.

Joe Ulith, was found guilty of second degree murder in the death of 53-year-old Cecil McDuffee by a Lawrence County Cicuit Jury here.

Ulith pleaded self defense in the July 3 shooting, claiming that McDuffee previously had tried to kill him.

Bus Company Offers Wage Increase

LITTLE ROCK, (AP)— A 3-man arbitration board yesterday granted a 4-cent-an-hour wage increase to union bus drivers of the Capitol Transportation Company— a penny lower than the firm's offer prior to arbitration.

The union, Division 704 of the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes' of America AFL, had asked a 20-cent-an-hour boost.

In the decision handed down by the board, 15 of 18 union proposals were rejected; one was settled during arbitration; one was granted and one— the wage provision — was modified.

Of the company's 18 proposals, 12 were granted; three were refused, and three were modified.

Not only were union officials disappointed at the decision, the local president B. Beryl Bland, said he doubted that the Board had legal autholity to change the effective date of the contract.

The company had asked for a 2-year contract, while the union wanted the agreement to run for only a year.

The Board rejected the company's proposal, but it set Sept. 1 as the effective date of the new contract instead of June 1 — the former expiration date. This, in effect gave Capitol a 15-month contract.

Under the decision, the new wage scale for top operators drivers will be $1.41 per hour. Top maintainance men will get $1.50 per hour.

ANDA Group to Name New Head

LITTLE ROCK, (AP) — The [illegible] year-old president of the Arkansas Negro Democratic Association says he will not seek re-election to the post at the group's meeting here today.

Dr. J. M. Robinson, who first was elected president of the ANDA when the group organized in [illegible], said last night:

"I'm tired. Twenty-five years in the harness is enough for anyone."

Robinson said he thought possible candidates for his post would be Wiley Branton of Pine Bluff and G. C. McKey of Texarkana.

He repeated the claim that his refusal to seek re-election was not connected with his support of Jack Holt for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Prior to the July 29th preferential primary at which Holt was defeated Robinson said he would resign as ANDA president if Gov. McMath were re-elected governor.

Robinson said that loyalty to state and national Democratic nominees would be stressed at today's meeting.

Taft to Give Ike Pointers on Campaign

Editor's note: Sen. Robert A. Taft's views on his role in the Republican presidential campaign have been the subject of wide speculation since he lost the nomination to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. This dispatch reveals the ideas and strategy Taft will recommend to Eisenhower when the two confer shortly.

By JOHN L. STEELE

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft has made his first contribution to Dwight D. Eisenhower's presidential campaign—a sizzling battle plan linking Democrats in "unholy alliance" with crime and "scandals" incompetence, it was disclosed today.

The suggested plan was drafted by the Senate Republican policy committee, of which Taft is chairman. Eisenhower and Taft will discuss it when they confer in the near future on campaign strategy.

The [illegible] pages of political gunpowder [illegible] Taft's desire for a [illegible] GOP campaign—[illegible] he has told associates [illegible] he would be willing [illegible].

The document outlines a campaign for the White House based on attacks on every public issue from the [illegible] to the Korea war.

[illegible] Adlai E. Stevenson comes [illegible] attack on grounds that [illegible] victory would mean [illegible] new coat of paint over [illegible] boards of an old house."

[illegible] the document says, [illegible] elected without the support of [illegible] pressure groups" [illegible] of entrenched bureaucracy [illegible] marked by "official incompetence, corruption, secrecy, [illegible] and arbitrary actions."

The document names President Truman as the person responsible for the [illegible] moral tone which has [illegible] his administration." It [illegible] at some of the president's [illegible] associates: Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, Mrs. Truman's [illegible] for being "involved in the five percenters scandal;" [illegible] Gen. Wallace Graham, White House physician, "caught speculating in grain" and presidential assistant Donald Dawson, "found guilty of influencing RFC loans."

The document raps the Democrats on many other issues:

Korea—The war resulted from military and political blunders of the Democratic party from 1933 to [illegible]. . . A war which uses the minimum of Soviet resources and the maximum of American resources.

National defense—"Since [illegible] 1945, Pearl Harbors have been in the making. American forces were rapidly demobilized and American [illegible] allowed to decay. . . American forces have been strung out thinly across the globe."

China policy—"China was delivered into the hands of the Communists. Harry Truman made this certain by the (Gen. George C.) Marshall mission which compelled Nationalist China to accept the Communists in 1947."

Civil Rights—"The basis for the Democratic claim of devotion to Negro interests is simply the fact that there was no way to exclude Negro citizens from relief during the time of the world depression. . . Negroes (in government office) were advisers on Negro affairs. . . The real meaning of this practice by Democrats is an indirect assertion that Negroes were a depressed class and would be treated as such and not as citizens seeking consideration on individual merit. Republicans never indulged in such insincerities."

Government finances—has there ever been such outrageous taxation, such a staggering national debt, such waste of public money and such dangerous inflation of prices everyone has to pay?"

Top Prep Stars Play Tonight

MEMPHIS (AP)—The nation's top prep stars go on display here tonight when East meets West in the fourth annual All-America high school football game.

Clear skies are predicted for the game which is expected to draw about 15,000 fans into Crump Stadium. East teams have won all three of the previous games, sponsored by the Wigwam Wisemen of America, a fraternal organization.

The West, coached by Bill Glassford of Nebraska, will strike from a spread formation, indicating its attack will revolve around a potentially explosive passing game. Buddy Benson, classy ballhandler and passer from De Queen, Ark., will be the tailback in Glassford's No. 1 offensive alignment.

The East, under Coach Red Drew of Alabama, will use the split-T. Bart Starr of Montgomery, Ala., a fine runner and accurate passer, will direct the East attack.

The only tropical rain forest on land controlled by the United States is located in Puerto Rico.

Sparkman Just Skips Civil Rights Issue

By KEITH FULLER

MINDENHALL, Miss. (AP)—Sen. John Sparkman skipped the touchy civil rights issue in opening his vice presidential campaign before a deep South audience last night.

The Alabama senator's blanket defense of the Democratic platform was the nearest he came to the subject.

The party platform that has caused strife among many Southern Democrats contains a proposed Fair Employment Practice Commission, anti-lynch and anti-poll tax planks.

"I realize there may be things in the Democratic platform that all of us cannot agree upon," he told an audience estimated at between 3,000 and 5,000 in the Mendenhall High School football stadium.

"But remember that this party of ours is made up of free people from all walks of life with many divergent beliefs."

Sparkman recently was called "a traitor to the South" for his support of the platform. His critics, dissatisfied Mississippi Democrats, formed a Democrats-for-Eisenhower movement and bolted the regular party.

Sparkman devoted most of his speech to "what the Democratic party has done for the people of this nation." But he took the time for a few swings at the Republicans.

"About the only issue the Republicans can raise is their cry that it's time for a change," he said.

"But you people can ask them—you will ask them — a change from what to what?"

The senator then listed benefits he said the Democratic party has given the country.

Sparkman also defended the United Nations in Korea.

"Gen. Douglas MacArthur and even Gen. Eisenhower, who certainly could not be considered supporters of our party, have said that we could not have upheld our honor and stayed out of Korea," he asserted.

"Despite gloomy reports you hear, our foreign policy is making progress," declared the Alabama senator.

He called it a bipartisan policy and named Dwight Eisenhower, the GOP presidential nominee, as one of many Republicans who have contributed to it.

spends 80 billion dollars a year, a few men at the top cannot keep track of all that goes on. Often it is the inconspicious persons who exert the greatest influence upon policy and, above all, upon performance."

"I shall not give you my ideas as to the responsibility for the past," Dulles told the veterans.

"If I did, I might sound partisan. For a Democratic administration has had the responsibility to conduct our foreign affairs during the years that led into World War I, into World War II, into the Korean War, and that have led us into what President Truman this year calls 'deadly peril,' and what Gen. Eisenhower this week identified as the greatest peril in our nation's history."

Dulles made no further reference to the Republican presidential nominee, whom he advises on foreign policy.

"We must abandon the negative, futile and immoral policy of 'containment,' and adopt a positive program which actively seeks the peaceful liberation of the captive nations from the yoke of Moscow."

He said, "I do not know whether it is still possible to prevent World War II," but "we must never allow ourselves fatalisticaly to accept, in advance, the inevitabiity of a third world war."

To win the cold war, Dulles called for a greater measure of patriotism, vision, boldness, strength and dynamism.

Stevenson, Ike to Talk at Plow Meet

KASSON-DODGE CITY, Minn. (AP)—They're going to be doing some plowing, too, at the National Plowing Contest Sept. 6.

The site of the big farm event already has shaped up as a major political areana when Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson will mount a plank platform and expound farm views.

But officials of the contest, formally known as National Soil Conservation Day and Plow Matches stress that all the political hoopla won't deter them in their efforts to put on an event aimed at improving farming practices.

Harold Severson, chairman of the publicity committee, said today "the forgotten men of the soil conservation demonstration and plowing matches are stolidly going ahead with their work and their plans."

The affair is sponsored by a corporation made up of seven Southeastern Minnesota soil conservation districts. It will be held on six farms between Kasson and Dodge Center. Rochester, home of the famed Mayo Clinic, is about 17 miles to the east

There will be two divisions to the plow matches-contour on hilly land and level-land. Plowmen from about 15 states have already entered and tractors, plows and other farm machinery have begun to arrive on the scene.

Among the entrants is 80-year-old J. H. Thomas of Reserve, Kan. who won the England Wales plowing contest with horses when he was 21.

At the same time as the matches, soil conservation demonstrations will be going on. These include terracing on hillsides, planting of windbreaks and other practices to slow costly soil erosion. Another demonstration, using 23,000 feet of cylindrical tile sections, will show how a marshy area can be drained and put in shape for crops.

The center of interest for many of the expected 150,000 spectators will be a 30-acre "headquarters area." Fifty tents, the biggest 80x80 feet, were pitched Thursday. The Dodge County Red Cross chapter is rolling bandages and getting other equipment for a first aid station.

One Kasson grocer has five tons of weiners on order. The American Legion post has made arrangements for two tons of coffee.

Eighteen of the 30 acres have been set aside as a natural amphitheater for the program which will include the Eisenhower and Stevenson speeches.

Director of operations for the farm event is W. M. Roberts, a district conservationist for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

He said he would just as soon have neither presidential candidate nor any politics injected into the big day, but the sentiment generally seems to be that everyone is welcome. A big sign saying just that was stretched across the main street of Kasson Thursday.

Legion Head Urges Military Training

NEW YORK (AP)—Lewis Ketchan Gough, newly elected national commander of the American Legion, urges national security military training legislation to keep the nation in a state of preparedness.

The 44-year-old Gough, a World War II veteran now living in Pasadena, Calif., was elected yesterday as head of the legion in the closing session of its 34th annual convention.

Gough, who served in the Navy with the rank of commander, overwhelmingly defeated his only rival, Walter E. Alessandroni, 36, of Philadelphia.

Gough is an inheritance tax appraiser employed by the state of California. His legion office pays $15,000 annually. Election is for the ensuing year.

At ceremonies in Madison Square Garden, Gough had the red cap of legion commander placed on his head by his predecessor, Donald R. Wilson of Clarksburg, W. Va.

In his acceptance address, Gough urged "intelligence, firmness and courage" in combatting communism, and pleaded for a decisive military program for the nation's youth.

"For 34 years the legion has had the answer," he said, "A national security training that is universal, economical, effective and safeguarded by civilian control.

"As your commander, I shall ask for your all out effort for such legislation. . ."

As the convention neared its close, the delegate surged as investigation of national Selective Service headquarters.

leves. There is little danger of India going Communist, although three Communists have recently been elected to parliament from southern districts where monsoons left misery and discontent in their wake.

While the disagreement between India and Pakistan probably will not be settled for a long time, there is little danger of it eventuating into war, as each needs the production of the other. Indians are not warlike in the first place. They are fatalistic, believing that what is to come is predestined and they accept it with equanimity.

Hours, wages and working conditions are set by the government: Employees, disciplined or discharged, can appeal and decisions often take a year or more. Vacations, sick leave, casual leave (where an employee decides he he wants to take a week or 10 days off), holidays and Sundays can take as many as 160 days out of the 365-day year. Older employees are reasonablly efficient and loyal, but the newer ones are frequently unstable, inefficient and disinterested. I have heard this same complaint at home.

Would Walk Bottom of English Channel

LOS ANGELES, (AP) — How comes Bill Abernathy whois anxious to do the English channel swimmers one better. Abernathy, 29, is looking for a sponsor to finance a walk across the bottom of the English channel.

Informed that such a walk would be mighty wet, Abernahy explained that he's a diver by trade. He said yesterday he has permission from England and tentative permission from France to start hoofing it across the channel, which is 186 feet deep at its deepest point.

Abernathy, a diver for six years with the Navy, estimates it will cost $15,000 to install a series of buoys across the channel to chart his course. He would dive and install them. Then he'd walk the channel in his diving suit, with two boats supplying him oxygen.

"Perhaps. Only don't ask me to see you as just another run-of-the-mill doctor. You're special! You've got a halo. Maybe I'm the only one who see it, but that doesn't matter. I'll always see the halo, Jeremy."

"Will you put down that pencil a minute so it can't stab me while I kiss you?"

The pencil clattered to the floor. With her cheek flattened against him, she said, "It really has happened to us, hasn't it? The touch of magic."

"I'm afraid it has."

"Afraid?"

"Only the rashest of mortals tinker with magic, Nance, or try to hold it. It's fragile."

"We're brave! And we shan't break it, Jeremy, or lose it."

"Even," wryly, "if my halo gets knocked off?"

"I'll pick it up for you!"

"Or broken?"

"I've a deft touch with paste!"

"Nance," he said, with humility and love.

When Nance and Jeremy went down for dinner, Eleanor laced her needle through the canvas of her needlepoint and set it aside.

"There's a call for you, Jeremy. The number is on the pad." She said to Nance, crossing her fingers in a frail counter-charm against an emergency which might take Jeremy to the hospital before dinner, "I do hope you know exactly what you're letting yourself in for, dear, as a doctor's wife."

"Shouldn't I, after being a doctor's sister all this time?"

Eleanor smiled.

"We were discussing it upstairs," Nance went on. "I've decided that any wailing and gnashing of teeth to be done shall be done in a soundproof room behind locked doors."

"Sam!" Eleanor called as the front door opened. "Is that you?"

"No, Bing Crosby," Sam Ireland [illegible] as he came into the living room.

[illegible] Eleanor [illegible] and lifted her [illegible].

[illegible] Nance thought, [illegible] for them, it will be a fine marriage.

Eleanor's raised brows asked a question of Jeremy as he came back into the room, and he answered, "Nothing that can't wait an hour, Mother."

"Nance," Eleanor said, "Miss Hinkley asked me today when you were coming for a fitting. She has your wedding dress at the stage where she can't remove a pin or rip out a basting thread without a try-on."

"I'll make an appointment tomorrow," Nance murmured.

"I believe you said that yesterday . . . Nance, something came for you today. From New York. It's on the hall table."

"New York," Nance said, as Jeremy went for the package. "That will be Aunt Kit."

"Automatic toaster?" Jeremy guessed, going through elaborate gestures of squeezing, weighing, shaking. He'd done this with all the wedding gifts, so far. "Electric iron?"

"Nothing so practical," Nance laughed, unfolding layers of wrapping paper, "if I know Kit! It's more likely some precious relic from an auction, with a pedigree half a page long, utterly beautiful and quite useless . . . Oh," she gasped, lifting it carefully from its excelsior nest. "Look!"

Jeremy cupped his chin in his palms and looked. "What is it?" he asked dubiously.

"A tea kettle," Nance said. "And on the little stand underneath, a spirit lamp."

"Genii?" Jeremy inquired hopefully.

"Silly! You put methylated spirits in the little lamp and light the wick."

"Amazing," Jeremy murmured, "in this age of ohms and watts and volts."

With a small squeal of delight Eleanor discovered the Victorian hallmark. "Look, Nance—London, 1832."

"How could she bear to part with it?" Nance sighed.

Jeremy's spread palms and Sam's shrug were amused and indulgent, as Hattie came in to announce dinner.

I shall miss this, Nance thought, when Jeremy and I have our own home. The table, the four of us in the candlelight, Mother's flowers and Hattie's cooking spiced generously with her love for us. I'll miss it.

Stevenson's Views Impress Negro Leader

By RELMAN MORIN

NEW YORK, (AP) — A prominent Negro leader, Channing Tobias, said today he was "very much impressed" with Gov. Adlai Stevenson's statements on civil rights, but evaded questions as to whether he would support the Democratic candidate for president.

Tobias had a long conversation with Stevenson today.

Tobias is a member of the United States delegation to the United Nations. He conferred with Stevenson along with Roy Wilkins, administrator of the National Association for te Advancement of Colored People.

Representatives of the NAACP held a similar conference with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican candidate, earlier this week. At that time Wilkins said the NAACP did not endorse political organizations but that he would report to his organization on his conversation with Eisenhower.

"I was very muhch impressed with the governor's remarks about civil rights, the fillbuster, and allied subjects in his speeches here, Tobias said.

Correspondents asked Tobias if he would support Stevenson's candidacy. He replied:

"I may want to announce my position on that, one way or another, a little later."

Earlier Stevenson conferred with Elder Statesman Bernard Bauch who is currently out of favor with the Truman administration.

Emerging from Baruch's home after a breakfast conference lasting one hour and ten minutes, the Democratic presidential candidate told newsmen:

"There was no discussion of politics at all. We talked mainly about inflation and some other economic matters. It was a good breakfast and a very interesting talk."

Asked whether he and Baruch agreed on the matters discussed, Stevenson smiled and replied:

"We didn't argue."

Baruch, a financier who became a weighty unofficial adviser to the late President Roosevelt, has not yet stated whether he favors Stevenson or his Republican opponent, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Stevenson plans to return to his office in Springfield, Ill., this after noon.

This ends the first skirmish between Stevenson and his Republican opponent for the presidency, Gen. Dwight D. Eisehower. Next week, Stevenson heads westward while Eisenhower makes a campaign swing through the South.

Stevenson-possibly with an eye on Eisenhower's first trip— emphasized civil rights and the allied issue of the Senate filibuster in his last New York speeches

This is what he said:

"The federal government has a direct responsibility to maintain progress by helping to secure equal rights for all our pepole I have been impressed by the recent bill reported by Sen. Humphrey on behalf of the Senate Labor Committee."

This bill sets up anti-discrimination standards on employment in the individual states— with provison for the federal government to step in if an individual state does not act.

On the question of the fillibuster, Stevenson said:

"The precise nature of the changes that should be made in the present rules of Congress is, of course, a problem for the Congress itself. . . As President, I could not make the decision, but I could and would use whatever influence I may have to encourage the congress to shake off its shackles."

He pinpointed his position with the words:

"In these perilous times, we cannot risk submerging our national purpose in a sea of interminable conversation."

Eisenhower told a delegation from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People several days ago that he is opposed to compulsory enforcement of civil rights legislation.

Roy Wilkins, administrator of the NAACP, quoted the general as saying he was opposed to the compulsory clauses.

He just couldn't come to the conclusion tha tthat's the way to solve the problem," Wilkins added.

A surface temperature of 700 degress Fahrenheit is capable of quickly igniting most combustible materials.

THE BRIDE WORE SPOTS—Stricken by measles a few hours before her scheduled wedding, Leta Teneyck, of Bloomington, Ind., did not let that little catastrophe hold up the ceremony. Though quarantined, she voiced her vows over a microphone through her bedroom window to the bridegroom, Jerome K. Denzer, and the rest of the wedding party on the lawn below.

IT AIN'T HAY—But it IS straw. This German miss in Hanau points to the face of a clock made out of straws which took 15 years to build. It was started in 1893 by Otto Wegener, a shoemaker and amateur clockmaker and completed in 1907. Although it stands five and a half feet high, it weighs only about a pound. It runs about eight hours. Everything in it, down to the smallest balance wheel is made of straw.

Truman Budget to Be Size of Big Phone Book

By FRANCIS J. KELLY

WASHINGTON, (AP) — President Truman's goodbye gift to Congress will be a government budget the size of a big city phone book, important sections of which are likely to become waste paper within three days.

It isn't Truman's idea. A 1950 law requires him to give Congress a detailed estimate of federal income and outgo within 15 days after the opening of a regular sion.

The new 83rd Congress, most of whose membership will be determined in the November elections, convenes next Jan. 3. The budget message must be at the Capitol by Jan. 17. At high noon on Jan. 20 a new President takes his oath and Truman becomes a private citizen.

At the same moment, the odds are heavy that key sections of the Truman budget will start heading for the congressional waste baskets. Regardless of who wins the presidency, it is unlikely he will agree 100 per cent with his predecessor's fiscal plan for the government accounting year which starts next July 1.

Nor is there time between election and inauguration day to do much about it. The President-elect, after recovering some of the energy spent in his campaign, presumably will want to start putting together the inaugural address which will sound the keynote for the beginning of his administration

The budget, more over, is no simple document a man can spread out before him and say, we'll cut so much here, and add so much to this program. This particular financial estimate has been under preparation by the Budget Bureau since last May. Long before that, each department was instructed by the White House to state its needs for the fiscal 1954, as the next accounting period is known.

It contains literally hundreds of thousands of items. By no means all of these are likely to be, or even could be revised by the new tenant of the White House. A vast number of them represent continuing appropriations for such items as the public debt and statutory programs approved by previous Congresses.

However, it's big appropriations and authorizations for such matters as defense, foreign aid and veterans benefits that add on the top billions and prompt the inkiest headlines. Obviously it is there and in similar fields that the incoming chief executive would find the most fertile ground for revision.

There is nothing— except possible political differences— to prevent the new man from sitting down with Truman and discussing the need for this appropriation or the reason behind that estimate. But it seems far more likely that the President-elect will want to feel his way more slowly and discuss the problems with his own advisers.

This appears to point the way to a series of supplemental budget requests later on. That was the way the matter was handled when Franklin D. Roosevelt took over in 1933 from Herbert Hoover. Congress can be asked to consider either upward or downward revisions in the estimates.

While the budget message must and will be sent to Congress, there is considerable doubt that Truman will choose to deliver the usual State of the Union address although he could if he so desired.

There has been no commitment from the White House on this point. It seems more probable now that the gray-haired Missourian will not attempt to lay down a program for his successor.

New Yorker Buys Bentonville Bank

BENTONVILLE, (AP) — A former New York Department store manager has purchased controlling interest of the Bank of Bentonville because he believes "Northwest Arkansas has a great future."

Arthur P. Smith, president of the bank, announced sale of the stock yesterday to H. Cornell Smith, former assistant managing director and active head of Gimbel Brothers in New York.

The purchase price was not disclosed but the bank has resources totalling $3.5 million. Transfer of control will be effective "on or before Sept. 12."

Aged Woman Sees First Light Burn

By NORBERT OLSHEFSKI

CAVE CITY, (AP)— A 97-year-old woman who hasn't left her North Arkansas mountain home for 26 years finally has seen an electric light burn.

Not only that, she now is weighted down with modern electric gadgets including an electric blanket, a fan and subdued lighting.

Mrs. Betty Stoner lives in the rugged Ozarks about four miles from here and 18 miles from Batesville. Early in August the Arkansas Power and Light Company built a line to a small cluster of houses called Hilltop Community, where she lives.

The last time Mrs. Stoner, or Aunt Mary as she is called in the community, left her house was in 1926 when she took a trip to Batesville. The farthest trip she has ever taken was 30 miles to another county.

Asked if she hadn't seen electric lights burn in Batesville, she replied:

"It was daytime and they were not turned on."

"Aunt Mary" was just a young girl when the civil war was going on but she remembers the Confederate soldiers marching down the road, beating drums and playing fifes.

Although she is a strong member of the GOP she professes loyalty for the Confederacy.

Asked what she thought about GOP president nominee Dwight D. Eisenhower, she said, "Ike's a good man" and if she could get to the polls in November she plans to vote Republican.

The modern electric gadgets were given to her as gifts by the light company crew which installed her electric system.

When she first saw the light she said, "It burns so bright that it hurts my eyes a little." So the crew bought her some diffused lighting fixtures.

Mrs. Stoner lives with her son-in-law in a four-room log house covered with willow board on the outside.

She was born Feb. 20, 1855 in Independence County and has seven living children, 26 great-grandchildren and 9 great-great-grandchildren.

When the little ceremony of giving the gifts was over she invited the men back for her 100th birth day.

"Come back," she said, "We'll have a dance, too."

Oil Companies Ignore Chance for Defense

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Small Business Committee said today none of seven big oil firms accused of monopoly practices has accepted an offer to appear before the committee and dispute the charge.

The monopoly accusations were detailed in a long-suppressed report written by Federal Trade Commission staff members. The report was made public by the Senate committee Monday after President Truman acceded to senators' demands that it be released.

Blake O'Conor, directing the committee's professional staff, said the group will decide now whether to order public hearings of its own on the matter, write a report based on the FTC findings or simply let the report stand.

Sen. John Sparkman of Alabama, the committee chairman and Democratic nominee for vice president, announced in making the report public he was reserving yesterday and today for public hearings if any of the seven companies wanted to reply.

"We have had no request for a hearing from any of the seven," O'Connor told a reporter. "There have been no takers, so Dr. Walter Adams, the staff member who would have conducted the hearings, is returning to his post as a member of the faculty of Michigan State College at East Lansing, Mich."

The report named the seven companies as Standard Oil of New Jersey, Standard of California, the Texas Co., Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., and Gulf Oil Corp., all incorporated in this country, the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., largely owned by the British government, and Royal Dutch Shell, owned mainly by Dutch and British interests. In press statements at the time, the companies generally denied any wrongdoing.

The Justice Department is investigating the group, and has filed damage suits totaling 67 million dollars against the two Standard companies, the Texas Co. and Socony-Vacuum.

O'Connor said he considers it "perfectly understandable" that the companies declined an opportunity to answer the FTC while the grand jury inquiry and the law suits are pending.

Sen. James E. Murray, Montana Democrat, announced, meanwhile, he expects the FTC report will be used widely as campaign material in support of Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee. Murray said it "shows Stevenson made the correct and courageous stand" on the campaign issue of state or federal control of the rich offshore oil reserves in this country.

Stevenson said he was against any "blanket cession" of these national assets to individual states.

DOROTHY DIX

Helpful Sister

Dear Miss Dix: Ten weeks ago my brother's wife had a baby. My brother works hard but when he comes home his wife, who has had a day of leisure, expects him to make dinner, giving the baby as an excuse. My brother is also working for his Ph. D. and, since he is so worried at home, his marks have been getting lower. How can I tell his wife to organize her home better? I am willing to help her.
CAROL D.

Answer: Judging from your writing, you are a very young miss, and should be highly commended for your concern over your brother's welfare. Are you sure you are judging the situation fairly? The mother of a 10-weeks-old baby really doesn't have much time for leisure, although she should be able to prepare dinner for two without much difficulty.

I'm sure she would appreciate your offer of assistance. Why not go over and see what you can do for her? The experience will be helpful to you, and will aid your brother's family over a period of adjustment to the new baby that is sometimes quite difficult.

An infant and a Ph. D. aspirant in the same household are quite a handful, and I'm sure your efforts will be very useful in smoothing the domestic machinery.

Let Mother Decide

Dear Miss Dix: The man I go with is 21, and I am 17. He is divorced. We like the same things and get along well except that he doesn't believe me when I tell him certain things. He claims that he has been lied to so much that he can't believe anyone. I don't think that's fair. My family objects to him because he has been married before and I don't think that has anything to do with our present or future.
S. M.

Answer: First of all, whether you approve of your mother's decisions or not, she is the one to be consulted on your problems, since at 17 you haven't the experience to figure everything out for yourself. A single boy, closer to you in age, would be a much more suitable companion than a divorced man.

Dear Miss Dix: We are two girls of 13. Another friend, Vera, who is 12, has dates, uses lipstick and thinks we are cowards because we don't do the same. We don't believe in things like that until we're 16. Who is right?
A. F.

Answer: You are right. You have a code of conduct entirely in keeping with your age, and don't let anyone tease, or ridicule, you out of it. Vera does not seem to be a good friend for you, and I agree with your mother that the less you see of her the better.

Dear Miss Dix: For five years I have been going with a boy who has said he was in love with me. We planned to marry when I finish college. Lately, however, he hasn't come out with me and has told several people he doesn't go with me anymore. What must I do?
P. Q.

Answer: You have been given a cue to make a graceful exit. The boy hasn't the courage to tell you frankly that he doesn't want to go with you, so has taken the ungentlemanly course of getting the information to you via third parties. Make sure your information comes from reliable source and, if possible, verify it directly with the boy. The chances are that his attentions have wandered, and I advise yours to do likewise.

Dear Miss Dix: All the relations of my husband's side call me skinny. My husband says I am pretty close to average Miss America figure and, though I think I'm just about right, I feel so self-conscious around his relations.
LOU

Answer From the measurements you give, Lou, I, too, would say you're about right. Perhaps hubby's family is inclined to avoirdupois and are envious. Take their remarks good naturedly and stop being selfconscious.

Dear Miss Dix: I would love to have a dog but my mother and father say that the city is no place for one. I am 12 years old.
RONNIE

Answer: A dog is a wonderful companion for a boy, and I wish you could find someone who would persuade your parents to get one. Of course, a large dog is out of place in the city, but the smaller breeds do very nicely, even in a small place. But remember, Ronnie, if mom and dad do finally agree to the dog, it's your job to take care of him. One reason why parents don't like the idea is that dad usually gets the job of walking the dog, while mom has all the feeding and house care to do.

Officers Will Try to Starve Out Badman

PACIFIC, Mo., (AP) — Police, convinced they have a cordon around William Merle Martin, 42, one of the FBI's 10 most-wanted fugitives adopted a starve-him-out attitude today.

"We can't possibly get enough men to comb those woods thoroughly," Capt. Lewis Howard of the Missouri Highway Patrol said.

"Our men could go within three feet of him in some sections and not know it. We'll just have to wait until he gets hungry enough to make a break."

A driver of a car, stolen in Brimingham, Ala., several days ago, fled into a rugged section of Western St. Louis County, about 40 miles west of St. Louis after highway troopers forced the vehicle into a ditch.

They said the man, believed answered Martin's description.

Around dusk last night two armed farmers, part of a large group of civilians who have joined county, state and federal authorities in the area, saw a man who appeared to be Martin walk from the woods.

The man spotted them and fled. They fired shotguns but apparently didn't hit him.

Martin, who began a crime career in 1929, got on the FBI list after the slaying of Deputy Sheriff Bob. Carver near Olathe, Kan., June 23.

POWHATTAN, (AP) — A 70-year old man is to serve 5 years in prison for the fatal shooting of his landlord.

Joe Ulith, was found guilty of second degree murder in the death of 53-year-old Cecil McDuffee by a Lawrence County Cicuit Jury here.

Ulith pleaded self defense in the July 3 shooting, claiming that McDuffee previously had tried to kill him.

Bus Company Offers Wage Increase

LITTLE ROCK, (AP)— A 3-man arbitration board yesterday granted a 4-cent-an-hour wage increase to union bus drivers of the Capitol Transportation Company— a penny lower than the firm's offer prior to arbitration.

The union, Division 704 of the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America AFL, had asked a 20-cent-an-hour boost.

In the decision handed down by the board, 15 of 18 union proposals were rejected; one was settled during arbitration; one was granted and one— the wage provision — was modified.

Of the company's 18 proposals, 12 were granted; three were refused, and three were modified.

Not only were union officials disappointed at the decision, the local president B. Beryl Bland, said he doubted that the Board had legal authority to change the effective date of the contract.

The company had asked for a 2-year contract, while the union wanted the agreement to run for only a year.

The Board rejected the company's proposal, but it set Sept. 1 as the effective date of the new contract instead of June 1 — the former expiration date. This, in effect gave Capitol a 15-month contract.

Under the decision, the new wage scale for top operators drivers will be $1.41 per hour. Top maintainance men will get $1.56 per hour.

"I'm tired. Twenty-five years in the harness is enough for anyone."

Robinson said he thought possible candidates for his post would be Wiley Branton of Pine Bluff and G. C. McKey of Texarkana.

Prior to the July 29th preferential primary at which Holt was defeated Robinson said he would resign as ANDA president if Gov. McMath were re-elected governor.

Robinson said that loyalty to state and national Democratic nominees would be stressed at today's meeting.

Taft to Give Ike Pointers on Campaign

Editor's note: Sen. Robert A. Taft's views on his role in the Republican presidential campaign have been a matter of wide speculation since he lost the nomination to Dwight D. Eisenhower. This dispatch reveals the ideas and strategy Taft will recommend to Eisenhower when the two confer shortly.

By [illegible] L. STEELE

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft has made his first contribution to Dwight D. Eisenhower's presidential campaign—a sizzling battle plan linking Democrats in "unholy alliance" with crime and [illegible] "scandalous" incompetence, it was disclosed today.

The suggested plan was drafted by the Senate Republican policy committee, of which Taft is chairman. Eisenhower and Taft will discuss it when they confer in the [illegible] future on campaign strategy.

The [illegible] pages of political gunpowder [illegible] Taft's desire for a [illegible] GOP campaign—[illegible] he has told associates [illegible] he would be willing to [illegible].

The document outlines a campaign for the White House based on attacks on every "public" issue from the [illegible] to the Korea war. [illegible] Adlai E. Stevenson comes [illegible] attack on grounds that [illegible] victory would mean [illegible] new coat of paint over [illegible] boards of an old house."

[illegible], the document says, [illegible] elected without the support of [illegible] pressure groups" [illegible] of entrenched bureaucrats [illegible] marked by "official incompetence, corruption, secrecy, arrogance and arbitrary actions."

The document names President Truman as the person responsible for "the moral tone which has [illegible] his administration." It [illegible] at some of the president's [illegible] associates: Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, Mrs. Truman's [illegible], for being "involved in the five percenters scandal;" [illegible] Gen. Wallace Graham, White House physician, "caught speculating in grain" and presidential assistant Donald Dawson, "found guilty of influencing RFC loans."

The document raps the Democrats on many other issues:

Korea—"The war resulted from military and political blunders of the Democratic party from 1933 to [illegible]. . . A war which uses the minimum of Soviet resources and the maximum of American resources."

National defense—"Since . . . 1945, [illegible] Pearl Harbors have been in the making. American forces were [illegible] demobilized and American [illegible] allowed to decay. . . American forces have been strung out [illegible] across the globe."

China policy—"China was delivered into the hands of the Communists. Harry Truman made this certain by the (Gen. George C.) Marshall mission which compelled Nationalist China to accept the Communists in 1947."

Civil Rights—"The basis for the Democratic claim of devotion to Negro interests is simply the fact that there was no way to exclude Negro citizens from relief during the time of the world depression. . . Negroes (in government office) were advisers on Negro affairs. . . The real meaning of this practice by Democrats is an indirect assertion that Negroes were a depressed class and would be treated as such and not as citizens seeking consideration on individual merit. Republicans never indulged in such insincerities."

Government finances—"has there ever been such outrageous taxation, such a staggering national debt, such waste of public money and such dangerous inflation of prices everyone has to pay?"

Top Prep Stars Play Tonight

MEMPHIS (AP)—The nation's top prep stars go on display here tonight when East meets West in the fourth annual All-America high school football game.

Clear skies are predicted for the game which is expected to draw about 15,000 fans into Crump Stadium. East teams have won all three of the previous games, sponsored by the Wigwam Wisemen of America, a fraternal organization.

The West, coached by Bill Glassford of Nebraska, will strike from a spread formation, indicating its attack will revolve around a potentially explosive passing game. Buddy Benson, classy ballhandler and passer from De Queen, Ark., will be the tailback in Glassford's No. 1 offensive alignment.

The East, under Coach Red Drew of Alabama, will use the split-T. Bart Starr of Montgomery, Ala., a fine runner and accurate passer, will direct the East attack.

The only tropical rain forest on land controlled by the United States is located in Puerto Rico.

Sparkman Just Skips Civil Rights Issue

By KEITH FULLER

MINDENHALL, Miss. —(AP)—Sen. John Sparkman skipped the touchy civil rights issue in opening his vice presidential campaign before a deep South audience last night.

The Alabama senator's blanket defense of the Democratic platform was the nearest he came to the subject.

The party platform that has caused strife among many Southern Democrats contains a proposed Fair Employment Practice Commission, anti-lynch and anti-poll tax planks.

"I realize there may be things in the Democratic platform that all of us cannot agree upon," he told an audience estimated at between 3,000 and 5,000 in the Mendenhall High School football stadium.

"But remember that this party of ours is made up of free people from all walks of life with many divergent beliefs."

Sparkman recently was called "a traitor to the South" for his support of the platform. His critics, dissatisfied Mississippi Democrats, formed a Democrats-for-Eisenhower movement and bolted the regular party.

Sparkman devoted most of his speech to "what the Democratic party has done for the people of this nation." But he took the time for a few swings at the Republicans.

"About the only issue the Republicans can raise is their cry that it's time for a change," he said.

"But you people can ask them—you will ask them — a change from what to what?"

The senator then listed benefits he said the Democratic party has given the country.

Sparkman also defended the United Nations in Korea.

"Gen. Douglas MacArthur and even Gen. Eisenhower, who certainly could not be considered supporters of our party, have said that we could not have upheld our honor and stayed out of Korea," he asserted.

"Despite gloomy reports you hear, our foreign policy is making progress," declared the Alabama senator.

He called it a bipartisan policy and named Dwight Eisenhower, the GOP presidential nominee, as one of many Republicans who have contributed to it.

spends 80 billion dollars a year, a few men at the top cannot keep track of all that goes on. Often it is the inconspicious persons who exert the greatest influence upon policy and, above all, upon performance."

"I shall not give you my ideas as to the responsibility for the past," Dulles told the veterans.

"If I did, I might sound partisan. For a Democratic administration has had the responsibility to conduct our foreign affairs during the years that led into World War I, into World War II, into the Korean War, and that have led us into what President Truman this year calls 'deadly peril,' and what Gen. Eisenhower this week identified as the greatest peril in our nation's history."

Dulles made no further reference to the Republican presidential nominee, whom he advises on foreign policy.

"We must abandon the negative, futile and immoral policy of 'containment,' and adopt a positive program which actively seeks the peaceful liberation of the captive nations from the yoke of Moscow."

He said, "I do not know whether it is still possible to prevent World War II," but "we must never allow ourselves fatalisticaly to accept, in advance, the inevitabiity of a third world war."

To win the cold war, Dulles called for a greater measure of patriotism, vision, boldness, strength and dynamism.

Stevenson, Ike to Talk at Plow Meet

KASSON-DODGE CITY, Minn. (AP)—They're going to be doing some plowing, too, at the National Plowing Contest Sept. 6.

The site of the big farm event already has shaped up as a major political areana when Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson will mount a plank platform and expound farm views.

But officials of the contest, formally known as National Soil Conservation Day and Plow Matches stress that all the political hoopla won't deter them in their efforts to put on an event aimed at improving farming practices.

Harold Severson, chairman of the publicity committee, said today "the forgotten men of the soil conservation demonstration and plowing matches are stolidly going ahead with their work and their plans."

The affair is sponsored by a corporation made up of seven Southeastern Minnesota soil conservation districts. It will be held on six farms between Kasson and Dodge Center. Rochester, home of the famed Mayo Clinic, is about 17 miles to the east

There will be two divisions to the plow matches-contour on hilly land and level-land. Plowmen from about 15 states have already entered and tractors, plows and other farm machinery have begun to arrive on the scene.

Among the entrants is 80-year-old J. H. Thomas of Reserve, Kan. who won the England Wales plowing contest with horses when he was 21.

At the same time as the matches, soil conservation demonstrations will be going on. These include terracing on hillsides, planting of windbreaks and other practices to slow costly soil erosion. Another demonstration, using 23,000 feet of cylindrical tile sections, will show how a marshy area can be drained and put in shape for crops.

The center of interest for many of the expected 150,000 spectators will be a 30-acre "headquarters area." Fifty tents, the biggest 350 feet, were pitched Thursday. The Dodge County Red Cross chapter is rolling bandages and getting other equipment for a first aid station.

One Kasson grocer has five tons of weiners on order. The American Legion post has made arrangements for two tons of coffee.

Eighteen of the 30 acres have been set aside as a natural amphitheater for the program which will include the Eisenhower and Stevenson speeches.

Director of operations for the farm event is W. M. Roberts, a district conservationist for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

He said he would just as soon have neither presidential candidate nor any politics injected into the big day, but the sentiment generally seems to be that everyone is welcome. A big sign saying just that was stretched across the main street of Kasson Thursday.

Legion Head Urges Military Training

NEW YORK (AP)—Lewis Ketchan Gough, newly elected national commander of the American Legion, urges national security military training legislation to keep the nation in a state of preparedness.

The 44-year-old Gough, a World War II veteran now living in Pasadena, Calif., was elected yesterday as head of the legion in the closing session of its 34th annual convention.

Gough, who sewed in the Navy with the rank of commander, overwhelmingly defeated his only rival, Walter E. Alessandroni, 36, of Philadelphia.

Gough is an inheritance tax appraiser employed by the state of California. His legion office pays $15,000 annually. Election is for the ensuing year.

At ceremonies in Madison Square Garden, Gough had the red cap of legion commander placed on his head by his predecessor, Donald R. Wilson of Clarksburg, W. Va.

In his acceptance address, Gough urged "intelligence, firmness and courage" in combatting communism, and pleaded for a decisive military program for the nation's youth.

"For 34 years the legion has had the answer," he said, "A national security training that is universal, economical, effective and safeguarded by civilian control.

"As your commander, I shall ask for your all out effort for such legislation. . ."

As the convention neared its close, the delegate surged as in vestigation of national Selective Service headquarters.

ieves. There is little danger of India going Communist, although three Communists have recently been elected to parliament from southern districts where monsoons left misery and discontent in their wake.

While the disagreement between India and Pakistan probably will not be settled for a long time, there is little danger of it eventuating into war, as each needs the production of the other. Indians are not warlike in the first place. They are fatalistic, believing that what is to come is predestined and they accept it with equanimity.

Hours, wages and working conditions are set by the government: Employees, disciplined or discharged, can appeal and decisions often take a year or more. Vacations, sick leave, casual leave (where an employee decides he he wants to take a week or 10 days off), holidays and Sundays can take as many as 160 days out of the 365-day year. Older employees are reasonablly efficient and loyal, but the newer ones are frequently unstable, inefficient and disinterested. I have heard this same complaint at home.

Would Walk Bottom of English Channel

LOS ANGELES, (AP) — How comes Bill Abernathy whois anxious to do the English channel swimmers one better. Abernathy, 29, is looking for a sponsor to finance a walk across the bottom of the English channel.

Informed that such a walk would be mighty wet, Abernahy explained that he's a diver by trade. He said yesterday he has permission from England and tentative permission from France to start hoofing it across the channel, which is 186 feet deep at its deepest point.

Abernathy, a diver for six years with the Navy, estimates i t will cost $15,000 to install a series of buoys across the channel to chart his course. He would dive and install them. Then he'd walk the channel in his diving suit, with two boats supplying him oxygen.

Stevenson's Views Impress Negro Leader

By RELMAN MORIN

NEW YORK, (AP) — A prominent Negro leader, Channing Tobias, said today he was "very much impressed" with Gov. Adlai Stevenson's statements on civil rights, but evaded questions as to whether he would support the Democratic candidate for president.

Tobias had a long conversation with Stevenson today.

Tobias is a member of the United States delegation to the United Nations. He conferred with Stevenson along with Roy Wilkins, administrator of the National Association for te Advancement of Colored People.

Representatives of the NAACP held a similar conference with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican candidate, earlier this week. At that time Wilkins said the NAACP did not endorse political organizations but that he would report to his organization on his conversation with Eisenhower.

"I was very muhch impressed with the governor's remarks about civil rights, the filibuster, and allied subjects in his speeches here, Tobias said.

Correspondents asked Tobias if he would support Stevenson's candidacy. He replied:

"I may want to announce my position on that, one way or another, a little later."

Earlier Stevenson conferred with Elder Statesman Bernard Bauch who is currently out of favor with the Truman administration.

Emerging from Baruch's home after a breakfast conference lasting one hour and ten minutes, the Democratic presidential candidate told newsmen:

"There was no discussion of politics at all. We talked mainly about inflation and some other economic matters. It was a good breakfast and a very interesting talk."

Asked whether he and Baruch agreed on the matters discussed, Stevenson smiled and replied:

"We didn't argue."

Baruch, a financier who became a weighty unofficial adviser to the late President Roosevelt, has not yet stated whether he favors Stevenson or his Republican opponent, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Stevenson plans to return to his office in Springfield, Ill., this after noon.

This ends the first skirmish between Stevenson and his Republican opponent for the presidency, Gen. Dwight D. Eisehower. Next week, Stevenson heads westward while Eisenhower makes a campaign swing through the South.

Stevenson-possibly with an eye on Eisenhower's first trip— emphasized civil rights and the allied issue of the Senate filibuster in his last New York speeches

This is what he said:

"The federal government has a direct responsibility to maintain progress by helping to secure equal rights for all our pepole I have been impressed by the recent bill reported by Sen. Humphrey on behalf of the Senate Labor Committee."

This bill sets up anti-discrimination standards on employment in the individual states— with provison for the federal government to step in if an individual state does not act.

On the question of the filibuster, Stevenson said:

"The precise nature of the changes that should be made in the present rules of Congress is, of course, a problem for the Congress itself. . As President, I could not make the decision, but I could and would use whatever influence I may have to encourage the congress to shake off its shackles."

He pinpointed his position with the words:

"In these perilous times, we cannot risk submerging our national purpose in a sea of interminable conversation."

Eisenhower told a delegation from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People several days ago that he is opposed to compulsory enforcement of civil rights legislation.

Roy Wilkins, administrator of the NAACP. quoted the general as saying he was opposed to the compulsory clauses.

He just couldn't come to the conclusion tha tthat's the way to solve the problem," Wilkins added.

A surface temperature of 700 degrees Fahrenheit is capable it quickly igniting most combustible materials.

THE BRIDE WORE SPOTS—Stricken by measles a few hours before her scheduled wedding, Leta Teneyck, of Bloomington, Ind., did not let that little catastrophe hold up the ceremony. Though quarantined, she voiced her vows over a microphone through her bedroom window to the bridegroom, Jerome K. Denzer, and the rest of the wedding party on the lawn below.

IT AIN'T HAY—But it IS straw. This German miss in Hanau points to the face of a clock made out of straws which took 15 years to build. It was started in 1892 by Otto Wegener, a cigarmaker and amateur clockmaker and completed in 1907. Although it stands five and a half feet high, it weighs only about a pound. It runs about eight hours. Everything in it, down to the smallest balance wheel is made of straw.

[illegible] Jeremy said.

[illegible] she said [illegible] into his arms [illegible]

[illegible]

"Sick people aren't reasonable, Nance."

"I know. . . . And that's why you're going to be a good doctor, Jeremy. Because you're ready to give so much of yourself without complaining."

"Good lord, don't make me a paragon! All doctors do."

"Perhaps. Only don't ask me to see you as just another run-of-the-mill doctor. You're special! You've got a halo. Maybe I'm the only one who see it, but that doesn't matter. I'll always see the halo, Jeremy."

"Will you put down that pencil a minute so it can't stab me while I kiss you?"

The pencil clattered to the floor. With her cheek flattened against him, she said, "It really has happened to us, hasn't it? The touch of magic."

"I'm afraid it has."

"Afraid?"

"Only the rashest of mortals tinker with magic, Nance, or try to hold it. It's fragile."

"We're brave! And we shan't break it, Jeremy, or lose it."

"Even," wryly, "if my halo gets knocked off?"

"I'll pick it up for you!"

"Or broken?"

"I've a deft touch with paste!"

"Nance," he said, with humility and love.

When Nance and Jeremy went down for dinner, Eleanor laced her needle through the canvas of her needlepoint and set it aside.

"There's a call for you, Jeremy. The number is on the pad." She said to Nance, crossing her fingers in a frail counter-charm against an emergency which might take Jeremy to the hospital before dinner, "I do hope you know exactly what you're letting yourself in for, dear, as a doctor's wife."

"Shouldn't I, after being a doctor's sister all this time?"

Eleanor smiled.

"We were discussing it upstairs," Nance went on. "I've decided that any wailing and gnashing of teeth to be done shall be done in a soundproof room behind locked doors."

"Sam!" Eleanor called as the front door opened, "Is that you?"

"No, Bing Crosby," Sam Ireland hummed the [illegible] theme as he came into the living room.

[illegible] and lifted her [illegible]

Watching them, Nance thought, [illegible] as for them, it will be a fine marriage.

Eleanor's raised brows asked a question of Jeremy as he came back into the room, and he answered, "Nothing that can't wait an hour, Mother."

"Nance," Eleanor said, "Miss Hinkley asked me today when you were coming for a fitting. She has your wedding dress at the stage where she can't remove a pin or rip out a basting thread without a try-on."

"I'll make an appointment tomorrow," Nance murmured.

"I believe you said that yesterday . . . Nance, something came for you today. From New York. It's on the hall table."

"New York," Nance said, as Jeremy went for the package. "That will be Aunt Kit."

"Automatic toaster?" Jeremy guessed, going through elaborate gestures of squeezing, weighing, shaking. He'd done this with all the wedding gifts, so far. "Electric iron?"

"Nothing so practical," Nance laughed, unfolding layers of wrapping paper, "if I know Kit! It's more likely some precious relic from an auction, with a pedigree half a page long, utterly beautiful and quite useless . . . Oh," she gasped, lifting it carefully from its excelsior nest. "Look!"

Jeremy cupped his chin in his palms and looked. "What is it?" he asked dubiously.

"A tea kettle," Nance said. "And on the little stand underneath, a spirit lamp."

"Genii?" Jeremy inquired hopefully.

"Silly! You put methylated spirits in the little lamp and light the wick."

"Amazing," Jeremy murmured, "in this age of ohms and watts and volts."

With a small squeal of delight Eleanor discovered the Victorian hallmark. "Look, Nance—London, 1832."

"How could she bear to part with it?" Nance sighed.

Jeremy's spread palms and Sam's shrug were amused and indulgent, as Hattie came in to announce dinner.

I shall miss this, Nance thought, when Jeremy and I have our own home. The table, the four of us in the candlelight, Mother's flowers and Hattie's cooking spiced generously with her love for us. I'll miss it.

Truman Budget to Be Size of Big Phone Book

By FRANCIS J. KELLY

WASHINGTON, (AP) — President Truman's goodbye gift to Congress will be a government budget the size of a big city phone book, important sections of which are likely to become waste paper within three days.

It isn't Truman's idea. A 1950 law requires him to give Congress a detailed estimate of federal income and outgo within 15 days after the opening of a regular sion.

The new 83rd Congress, most of whose membership will be determined in the November elections, convenes next Jan. 3. The budget message must be at the Capitol by Jan. 17. At high noon on Jan. 20 a new President takes his oath and Truman becomes a private citizen.

At the same moment, the odds are heavy that key sections of the Truman budget will start heading for the congressional waste baskets. Regardless of who wins the presidency, it is unlikely he will agree 100 per cent with his predecessor's fiscal plan for the government accounting year which starts next July 1.

Nor is there time between election and inauguration day to do much about it. The President-elect, after recovering some of the energy spent in his campaign, presumably will want to start putting together the inaugural address which will sound the keynote for the beginning of his administration

The budget, more over, is no simple document a man can spread out before him and say, we'll cut so much here, and add so much to this program. This particular financial estimate has been under preparation by the Budget Bureau since last May. Long before that, each department was instructed by the White House to state its needs for the fiscal 1954, as the next accounting period is known.

It contains literally hundreds of thousands of items. By no means all of these are likely to be, or even could be revised by the new tenant of the White House. A vast number of them represent continuing appropriations for such items as the public debt and statutory programs approved by previous Congresses.

However, it's big appropriations and authorizations for such matters as defense, foreign aid and veterans benefits that add on the top billions and prompt the inkiest headlines. Obviously it is there and in similar fields that the incoming chief executive would find the most fertile ground for revision.

There is nothing— except possible political differences— to prevent the new man from sitting down with Truman and discussing the need for this appropriation or the reason behind that estimate. But it seems far more likely that the President-elect will want to feel his way more slowly and discuss the problems with his own advisers.

This appears to point the way to a series of supplemental budget requests later on. That was the way the matter was handled when Franklin D. Roosevelt took over in 1933 from Herbert Hoover. Congress can be asked to consider either upward or downward revisions in the estimates.

While the budget message must and will be sent to Congress, there is considerable doubt that Truman will choose to deliver the usual State of the Union address although he could if he so desired.

There has been no commitment from the White House on this point. It seems more probable now that the gray-haired Missourian will not attempt to lay down a program for his successor.

New Yorker Buys Bentonville Bank

BENTONVILLE, (AP) — A former New York Department store manager has purchased controlling interest of the Bank of Bentonville because he believes "Northwest Arkansas has a great future."

Arthur P. Smith, president of the bank, announced sale of the stock yesterday to H. Cornell Smith, former assistant managing director and active head of Gimbel Brothers in New York.

The purchase price was not disclosed but the bank has resources totalling $3.5 million. Transfer of control will be effective "on or before Sept. 12."

Aged Woman Sees First Light Burn

By NORBERT OLSHEFSKI

CAVE CITY, —(AP)— A 97-year-old woman who hasn't left her North Arkansas mountain home for 26 years finally has seen an electric light burn.

Not only that, she now is weighted down with modern electric gadgets including an electric blanket, a fan and subdued lighting.

Mrs. Betty Stoner lives in the rugged Ozarks about four miles from here and 18 miles from Batesville. Early in August the Arkansas Power and Light Company built a line to a small cluster of houses called Hilltop Community, where she lives.

The last time Mrs. Stoner, or Aunt Mary as she is called in the community, left her house was in 1926 when she took a trip to Batesville. The farthest trip she has ever taken was 30 miles to another county.

Asked if she hadn't seen electric lights burn in Batesville, she replied:

"It was daytime and they were not turned on."

"Aunt Mary" was just a young girl when the civil war was going on but she remembers the Confederate soldiers marching down the road, beating drums and playing fifes.

Although she is a strong member of the GOP she professes loyalty for the Confederacy.

Asked what she thought about GOP president nominee Dwight D. Eisenhower, she said, "Ike's a good man" and if she could get to the polls in November she plans to vote Republican.

The modern electric gadgets were given to her as gifts by the light company crew which installed her electric system.

When she first saw the light she said, "It burns so bright that it hurts my eyes a little." So the crew bought her some diffused lighting fixtures.

Mrs. Stoner lives with her son-in-law in a four-room log house covered with willow board on the outside.

She was born Feb. 20, 1855 in Independence County and has seven living children, 26 great-grandchildren and 9 great-great-grandchildren.

When the little ceremony of giving the gifts was over she invited the men back for her 100th birth day.

"Come back," she said, "We'll have a dance, too."

Oil Companies Ignore Chance for Defense

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Small Business Committee said today none of seven big oil firms accused of monopoly practices has accepted an offer to appear before the committee and dispute the charge.

The monopoly accusations were detailed in a long-suppressed report written by Federal Trade Commission staff members. The report was made public by the Senate committee Monday after President Truman acceded to senators' demands that it be released.

Blake O'Conor, directing the committee's professional staff, said the group will decide now whether to order public hearings of its own on the matter, write a report based on the FTC findings or simply let the report stand.

Sen. John Sparkman of Alabama, the committee chairman and Democratic nominee for vice president, announced in making the report public he was reserving yesterday and today for public hearings if any of the seven companies wanted to reply.

"We have had no request for a hearing from any of the seven," O'Connor told a reporter. "There have been no takers, so Dr. Walter Adams, the staff member who would have conducted the hearings, is returning to his post as a member of the faculty of Michigan State College at East Lansing, Mich."

The report named the seven companies as Standard Oil of New Jersey, Standard of California, the Texas Co., Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., and Gulf Oil Corp., all incorporated in this country, the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., largely owned by the British government, and Royal Dutch Shell, owned mainly by Dutch and British interests. In press statements at the time, the companies generally denied any wrongdoing.

The Justice Department is investigating the group, and has filed damage suits totaling 67 million dollars against the two Standard companies, the Texas Co. and Socony-Vacuum.

O'Connor said he considers it "perfectly understandable" that the companies declined an opportunity to answer the FTC while the grand jury inquiry and the law suits are pending.

Sen. James E. Murray, Montana Democrat, announced, meanwhile, he expects the FTC report will be used widely as campaign material in support of Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee. Murray said it "shows Stevenson made the correct and courageous stand" on the campaign issue of state or federal control of the rich offshore oil reserves in this country.

Stevenson said he was against any "blanket cession" of these national assets to individual states.

DOROTHY DIX

Helpful Sister

Dear Miss Dix: Ten weeks ago my brother's wife had a baby. My brother works hard but when he comes home his wife, who has had a day of leisure, expects him to make dinner, giving the baby as an excuse. My brother is also working for his Ph. D. and, since he is so worried at home, his marks have been getting lower. How can I tell his wife to organize her home better? I am willing to help her.

CAROL D.

Answer: Judging from your writing, you are a very young miss, and should be highly commended for your concern over your brother's welfare. Are you sure you are judging the situation fairly? The mother of a 10-weeks-old baby really doesn't have much time for leisure, although she should be able to prepare dinner for two without much difficulty.

I'm sure she would appreciate your offer of assistance. Why not go over and see what you can do for her? The experience will be helpful to you, and will aid your brother's family over a period of adjustment to the new baby that is sometimes quite difficult.

An infant and a Ph. D. aspirant in the same household are quite a handful, and I'm sure your efforts will be very useful in smoothing the domestic machinery.

Let Mother Decide

Dear Miss Dix: The man I go with is 21, and I am 17. He is divorced. We like the same things and get along well except that he doesn't believe me when I tell him certain things. He claims that he has been lied to so much that he can't believe anyone. I don't think that's fair. My family objects to him because he has been married before and I don't think that has anything to do with our present or future.

S. M.

Answer: First of all, whether you approve of your mother's decisions or not, she is the one to be consulted on your problems, since at 17 you haven't the experience to figure everything out for yourself. A single boy, closer to you in age, would be a much more suitable companion than a divorced man.

Dear Miss Dix: We are two girls of 13. Another friend, Vera, who is 12, has dates, uses lipstick and thinks we are cowards because we don't do the same. We don't believe in things like that until we're 16. Who is right?

A. F.

Answer: You are right. You have a code of conduct entirely in keeping with your age, and don't let anyone tease, or ridicule, you out of it. Vera does not seem to be a good friend for you, and I agree with your mother that the less you see of her the better.

Dear Miss Dix: For five years I have been going with a boy who has said he was in love with me. We planned to marry when I finish college. Lately, however, he hasn't come out with me and has told several people he doesn't go with me anymore. What must I do?

P. Q.

Answer: You have been given a cue to make a graceful exit. The boy hasn't the courage to tell you frankly that he doesn't want to go with you, so has taken the ungentlemanly course of getting the information to you via third parties. Make sure your information comes from reliable source and, if possible, verify it directly with the boy. The chances are that his attentions have wandered, and I advise yours to do likewise.

Dear Miss Dix: All the relations of my husband's side call me skinny. My husband says I am pretty close to average Miss America figure and. though I think I'm just about right, I feel so self-conscious around his relations.

LOU

Answer From the measurements you give, Lou, I, too, would say you're about right. Perhaps hubby's family is inclined to avoirdupois and are envious. Take their remarks good naturedly and stop being selfconscious.

Dear Miss Dix: I would love to have a dog but my mother and father say that the city is no place for one. I am 12 years old.

RONNIE

Answer: A dog is a wonderful companion for a boy, and I wish you could find someone who would persuade your parents to get one. Of course, a large dog is out of place in the city, but the smaller breeds do very nicely, even in a small place. But remember, Ronnie, if mom and dad do finally agree to the dog, it's your job to take care of him. One reason why parents don't like the idea is that dad usually gets the job of walking the dog, while mom has all the feeding and house care to do.

Officers Will Try to Starve Out Badman

PACIFIC, Mo., (AP) — Police, convinced they have a cordon around William Merle Martin, 42, one of the FBI's 10 most-wanted fugitives adopted a starve-him-out attitude today.

"We can't possibly get enough men to comb those woods thoroughly," Capt. Lewis Howard of the Missouri Highway Patrol said. "Our men could go within three feet of him in some sections and not know it. We'll just have to wait until he gets hungry enough to make a break."

A driver of a car, stolen in Brimingham, Ala., several days ago, fled into a rugged section of Western St. Louis County, about 40 miles west of St. Louis after highway troopers forced the vehicle into a ditch.

They said the man, believed answered Martin's description.

Around dusk last night two armed farmers, part of a large group of civilians who have joined county, state and federal authorities in the area, saw a man who appeared to be Martin walk from the woods.

The man spotted them and fled. They fired shotguns but apparently didn't hit him.

Martin, who began a crime career in 1929, got on the FBI list after the slaying of Deputy Sheriff Bob. Carver near Olathe, Kan., June 23.

Shoots Landlord, Gets Five Years

POWHATTAN, (AP) — A 70-year old man is to serve 5 years in prison for the fatal shooting of his landlord.

Joe Ulith, was found guilty of second degree murder in the death of 53-year-old Cecil McDuffee by a Lawrence County Cicuit Jury here.

Ulith pleaded self defense in the July 3 shooting, claiming that McDuffee previously had tried to kill him.

Bus Company Offers Wage Increase

LITTLE ROCK, (AP)— A 3-man arbitration board yesterday granted a 4-cent-an-hour wage increase to union bus drivers of the Capitol Transportation Company— a penny lower than the firm's offer prior to arbitration.

The union, Division 704 of the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes' of America AFL, had asked a 20-cent-an-hour boost.

In the decision handed down by the board, 15 of 18 union proposals were rejected; one was settled during arbitration; one was granted and one— the wage provision — was modified.

Of the company's 18 proposals, 12 were granted; three were refused, and three were modified.

Not only were union officials disappointed at the decision, the local president B. Beryl Bland, said he doubted that the Board had legal authoity to change the effective date of the contract.

The company had asked for a 2-year contract, while the union wanted the agreement to run for only a year.

The Board rejected the company's proposal, but it set Sept. 1 as the effective date of the new contract instead of June 1 — the former expiration date. This, in effect gave Capitol a 15-month contract.

Under the decision, the new wage scale for top operators drivers will be $1.41 per hour. Top maintainance men will get $1.56 per hour.

ANDA Group to Name New Head

LITTLE ROCK, (AP) — [illegible] year-old president of the Arkansas Negro Democratic Association says he will not seek re-election to the post at the group's meeting here today.

Dr. J. M. Robinson, who first was elected president of the ANDA when the group organized in [illegible], said last night:

"I'm tired. Twenty-five years in the harness is enough for anyone."

Robinson said he thought possible candidates for his post would be Wiley Branton of Pine Bluff and G. C. McKey of Texarkana.

He repeated the claim that his refusal to seek re-election was not connected with his support of Jack Holt for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Prior to the July 29th preferential primary at which Holt was defeated Robinson said he would resign as ANDA president if Gov. McMath were re-elected governor.

Robinson said that loyalty to state and national Democratic nominees would be stressed at today's meeting.

Taft to Give Ike Pointers on Campaign

[illegible] hotel: [illegible] Robert A. Taft's views [illegible] full role in the Republican presidential campaign have been a matter of wide speculation since he lost the nomination to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. [illegible] dispatch reveals the ideas [illegible] Taft will recommend to Eisenhower when the two men confer shortly.

By [illegible] L. STEELE

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft has made his first contribution to Dwight D. Eisenhower's [illegible] campaign—a sizzling battle plan linking Democrats in [illegible] with crime and [illegible] "scandals" incompetence, it was disclosed today.

The suggested plan was drafted by the Senate Republican policy committee, of which Taft is chairman. Eisenhower and Taft will discuss it when they confer in the near future on campaign strategy.

The 31 pages of political gunpowder portray Taft's desire for a [illegible] GOP campaign—[illegible] he has told associates [illegible] he would be willing to [illegible].

[illegible] outlines a campaign for the White House based on attacks on every public issue from the [illegible] to the Korea war. [illegible] Adlai E. [illegible] the document says, [illegible] elected without the support of grabbing pressure groups" [illegible] of entrenched bureaucracy marked by "official incompetence, corruption, secrecy, [illegible] and arbitrary actions."

It [illegible] at some of the president's [illegible] associates: Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, Mrs. Truman's [illegible] for being "involved in the five percenters scandal;" [illegible] Gen. Wallace Graham, White House physician, "caught speculating in grain" and presidential assistant Donald Dawson, "found guilty of influencing RFC loans."

The document raps the Democrats on many other issues:

Korea—The war resulted from military and political blunders of the Democratic party from 1933 on [illegible] "A war which uses the minimum of Soviet resources and the maximum of American resources."

National defense—"Since 1945, [illegible] Pearl Harbors have been in [illegible] American forces were [illegible] demobilized and American [illegible] allowed to decay. . . American forces have been strung out thinly across the globe."

China policy—"China was delivered into the hands of the Communists. Harry Truman made this certain by the (Gen. George C.) Marshall mission which compelled Nationalist China to accept the Communists in 1947."

Civil Rights—"The basis for the Democratic claim of devotion to Negro interests is simply the fact that there was no way to exclude Negro citizens from relief during the time of the world depression. . . Negroes (in government office) were advisers on Negro affairs. . . The real meaning of this practice by Democrats is an indirect assertion that Negroes were a depressed class and would be treated as such and not as citizens seeking consideration on individual merit. Republicans never indulged in such insincerities."

Government finances—has there ever been such outrageous taxation, such a staggering national debt, such waste of public money and such dangerous inflation of prices everyone has to pay?"

Top Prep Stars Play Tonight

MEMPHIS (AP)—The nation's top prep stars go on display here tonight when East meets West in the fourth annual All-American high school football game.

Clear skies are predicted for the game which is expected to draw about 15,000 fans into Crump Stadium. East teams have won all three of the previous games, sponsored by the Wigwam Wisemen of America, a fraternal organization.

The West, coached by Bill Glassford of Nebraska, will strike from a spread formation, indicating its attack will revolve around a potentially explosive passing game. Buddy Benson, classy ballhandler and passer from De Queen, Ark., will be the tailback in Glassford's No. 1 offensive alignment.

The East, under Coach Red Drew of Alabama, will use the split-T. Bart Starr of Montgomery, Ala., a fine runner and accurate passer, will direct the East attack.

The only tropical rain forest on land controlled by the United States is located in Puerto Rico.

Sparkman Just Skips Civil Rights Issue

By KEITH FULLER

MINDENHALL, Miss. (AP)—Sen. John Sparkman skipped the touchy civil rights issue in opening his vice presidential campaign before a deep South audience last night.

The Alabama senator's blanket defense of the Democratic platform was the nearest he came to the subject.

The party platform that has caused strife among many Southern Democrats contains a proposed Fair Employment Practice Commission, anti-lynch and anti-poll tax planks.

"I realize there may be things in the Democratic platform that all of us cannot agree upon," he told an audience estimated at between 3,000 and 5,000 in the Mendenhall High School football stadium.

"But remember that this party of ours is made up of free people from all walks of life with many divergent beliefs."

Sparkman recently was called "a traitor to the South" for his support of the platform. His critics, dissatisfied Mississippi Democrats, formed a Democrats-for-Eisenhower movement and bolted the regular party.

Sparkman devoted most of his speech to "what the Democratic party has done for the people of this nation." But he took the time for a few swings at the Republicans.

"About the only issue the Republicans can raise is their cry that it's time for a change," he said.

"But you people can ask them—you will ask them — a change from what to what?"

The senator then listed benefits he said the Democratic party has given the country.

Sparkman also defended the United Nations in Korea.

"Gen. Douglas MacArthur and even Gen. Eisenhower, who certainly could not be considered supporters of our party, have said that we could not have upheld our honor and stayed out of Korea," he asserted.

"Despite gloomy reports you hear, our foreign policy is making progress," declared the Alabama senator.

He called it a bipartisan policy and named Dwight Eisenhower, the GOP presidential nominee, as one of many Republicans who have contributed to it.

Dulles Attacks

spends 80 billion dollars a year, a few men at the top cannot keep track of all that goes on. Often it is the inconspicious persons who exert the greatest influence upon policy and, above all, upon performance."

"I shall not give you my ideas as to the responsibility for the past," Dulles told the veterans.

"If I did, I might sound partisan. For a Democratic administration has had the responsibility to conduct our foreign affairs during the years that led into World War I, into World War II, into the Korean War, and that have led us into what President Truman this year calls 'deadly peril,' and what Gen. Eisenhower this week identified as the greatest peril in our nation's history."

Dulles made no further reference to the Republican presidential nominee, whom he advises on foreign policy.

"We must abandon the negative, futile and immoral policy of 'containment,' and adopt a positive program which actively seeks the peaceful liberation of the captive nations from the yoke of Moscow."

He said, "I do not know whether it is still possible to prevent World War II," but "we must never allow ourselves fatalisticaly to accept, in advance, the inevitabity of a third world war."

To win the cold war, Dulles called for a greater measure of patriotism, vision, boldness, strength and dynamism.

Stevenson, Ike to Talk at Plow Meet

KASSON-DODGE CITY, Minn. (AP)—They're going to be doing some plowing, too, at the National Plowing Contest Sept. 6.

The site of the big farm event already has shaped up as a major political areana when Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson will mount a plank platform and expound farm views.

But officials of the contest, formally known as National Soil Conservation Day and Plow Matches stress that all the political hoopla won't deter them in their efforts to put on an event aimed at improving farming practices.

Harold Severson, chairman of the publicity committee, said today "the forgotten men of the soil conservation demonstration and plowing matches are stolidly going ahead with their work and their plans."

The affair is sponsored by a corporation made up of seven Southeastern Minnesota soil conservation districts. It will be held on six farms between Kasson and Dodge Center. Rochester, home of the famed Mayo Clinic, is about 17 miles to the east

There will be two divisions to the plow matches-contour on hilly land and level-land. Plowmen from about 15 states have already entered and tractors, plows and other farm machinery have begun to arrive on the scene.

Among the entrants is 80-year-old J. H. Thomas of Reserve, Kan. who won the England Wales plowing contest with horses when he was 21.

At the same time as the matches, soil conservation demonstrations will be going on. These include terracing on hillsides, planting of windbreaks and other practices to slow costly soil erosion. Another demonstration, using 23,000 feet of cylindrical tile sections, will show how a marshy area can be drained and put in shape for crops.

The center of interest for many of the expected 150,000 spectators will be a 30-acre "headquarters area." Fifty tents, the biggest [illegible] feet, were pitched Thursday. The Dodge County Red Cross chapter is rolling bandages and getting other equipment for a first aid station.

One Kasson grocer has five tons of weiners on order. The American Legion post has made arrangements for two tons of coffee.

Eighteen of the 30 acres have been set aside as a natural amphitheater for the program which will include the Eisenhower and Stevenson speeches.

Director of operations for the farm event is W. M. Robents, a district conservationist for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

He said he would just as soon have neither presidential candidate nor any politics injected into the big day, but the sentiment generally seems to be that everyone is welcome. A big sign saying just that was stretched across the main street of Kasson Thursday.

Legion Head Urges Military Training

NEW YORK (AP)—Lewis Ketchan Gough, newly elected national commander of the American Legion, urges national security military training legislation to keep the nation in a state of preparedness.

The 44-year-old Gough, a World War II veteran now living in Pasadena, Calif., was elected yesterday as head of the legion in the closing session of its 34th annual convention.

Gough, who served in the Navy with the rank of commander, overwhelmingly defeated his only rival, Walter E. Alessandroni, 36, of Philadelphia.

Gough is an inheritance tax appraiser employed by the state of California. His legion office pays $15,000 annually. Election is for the ensuing year.

At ceremonies in Madison Square Garden, Gough had the red cap of legion commander placed on his head by his predecessor, Donald R. Wilson of Clarksburg, W. Va.

In his acceptance address, Gough urged "intelligence, firmness and courage" in combatting communism, and pleaded for a decisive military program for the nation's youth.

"For 34 years the legion has had the answer," he said, "A national security training that is universal, economical, effective and safeguarded by civilian control.

"As your commander, I shall ask for your all out effort for such legislation. . ."

As the convention neared its close, the delegate surged as investigation of national Selective Service headquarters.

leves. There is little danger of India going Communist, although three Communists have recently been elected to parliament from southern districts where monsoons left misery and discontent in their wake.

While the disagreement between India and Pakistan probably will not be settled for a long time, there is little danger of it eventuating into war, as each needs the production of the other. Indians are not warlike in the first place. They are fatalistic, believing that what is to come is predestined and they accept it with equanimity.

Hours, wages and working conditions are set by the government: Employees, disciplined or discharged, can appeal and decisions often take a year or more. Vacations, sick leave, casual leave (where an employee decides he he wants to take a week or 10 days off), holidays and Sundays can take as many as 160 days out of the 365-day year. Older employees are reasonablly efficient and loyal, but the newer ones are frequently unstable, inefficient and disinterested. I have heard this same complaint at home.

Would Walk Bottom of English Channel

LOS ANGELES, (AP) — How comes Bill Abernathy whois anxious to do the English channel swimmers one better. Abernathy, 29, is looking for a sponsor to finance a walk across the bottom of the English channel.

Informed that such a walk would be mighty wet, Abernahy explained that he's a diver by trade. He said yesterday he has permission from England and tentative permission from France to start hoofing it across the channel, which is 186 feet deep at its deepest point.

Abernathy, a diver for six years with the Navy, estimates i t will cost $15,000 to install a series of buoys across the channel to chart his course. He would dive and install them. Then he'd walk the channel in his diving suit, with two boats supplying him oxygen.

Stevenson's Views Impress Negro Leader

By RELMAN MORIN

NEW YORK, (AP) — A prominent Negro leader, Channing Tobias, said today he was "very much impressed" with Gov. Adlai Stevenson's statements on civil rights, but evaded questions as to whether he would support the Democratic candidate for president.

Tobias had a long conversation with Stevenson today.

Tobias is a member of the United States delegation to the United Nations. He conferred with Stevenson along with Roy Wilkins, administrator of the National Assosiation for te Advancement of Colored People.

Representatives of the NAACP held a similar conference with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican candidate, earlier this week. At that time Wilkins said the NAACP did not endorse political organizations but that he would report to his organization on his conversation with Eisenhower.

"I was very muhch impressed with the governor's remarks about civil rights, the fillbuster, and allied subjects in his speeches here, Tobias said.

Correspondents asked Tobias if he would support Stevenson's candidacy. He replied:

"I may want to announce my position on that, one way or another, a little later."

Earlier Stevenson conferred with Elder Statesman Bernard Bauch who is currently out of favor with the Truman administration.

Emerging from Baruch's home after a breakfast conference lasting one hour and ten minutes, the Democratic presidential candidate told newsmen:

"There was no discussion of politics at all. We talked mainly about inflation and some other economic matters. It was a good breakfast and a very interesting talk."

Asked whether he and Baruch agreed on the matters discussed, Stevenson smiled and replied:

"We didn't argue."

Baruch, a financier who became a weighty unofficial adviser to the late President Roosevelt, has not yet stated whether he favors Stevenson or his Republican opponent, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Stevenson plans to return to his office in Springfield, Ill., this afternoon.

This ends the first skirmish between Stevenson and his Republican opponent for the presidency, Gen. Dwight D. Eisehower. Next week, Stevenson heads westward while Eisenhower makes a campaign swing through the South.

Stevenson-possibly with an eye on Eisenhower's first trip— emphasized civil rights and the allied issue of the Senate filibuster in his last New York speeches

This is what he said:

"The federal government has a direct responsibility to maintain progress by helping to secure equal rights for all our pepole I have been impressed by the recent bill reported by Sen. Humphrey on behalf of the Senate Labor Committed."

This bill sets up anti-discrimination standards on employment in the individual states— with provison for the federal government to step in if an individual state does not act.

On the question of the filibuster, Stevenson said:

"The precise nature of the changes that should be made in the present rules of Congress is, of course, a problem for the Congress itself. . .As President, I could not make the decision, but I could and would use whatever influence I may have to encourage the congress to shake off its shackles."

He pinpointed his position with the words:

"In these perilous times, we cannot risk submerging our national purpose in a sea of interminable conversation."

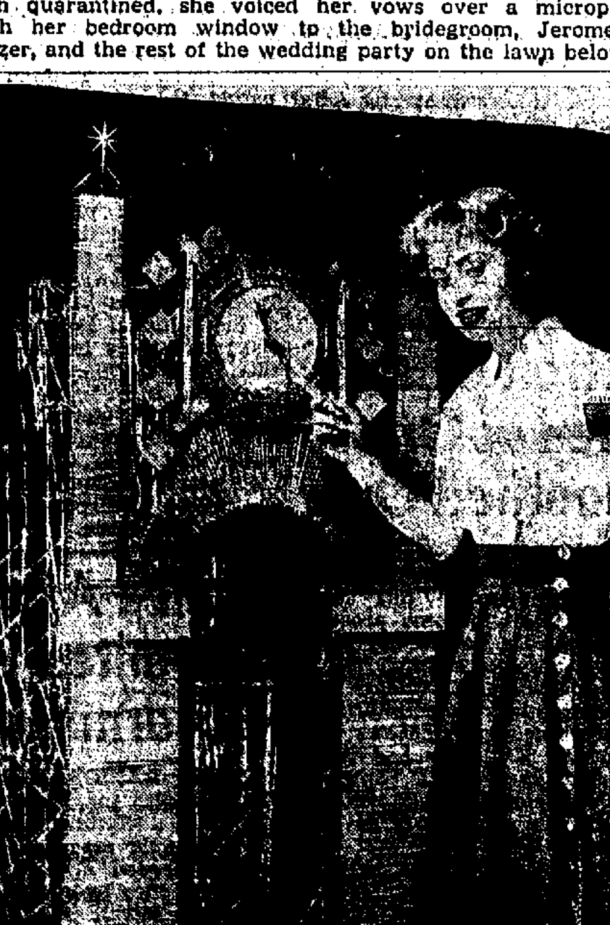
Eisenhower told a delegation from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People several days ago that he is opposed to compulsory enforcement of civil rights legislation.

Roy Wilkins, administrator of the NAACP. quoted the general as saying he was opposed to the compulsory clauses.

He just couldn't come to the conclusion tha tthat's the way to solve the problem," Wilkins added.

A surface temperature of 700 degress Fahrenheit is capable of quickly igniting most combustible materials.

THE BRIDE WORE SPOTS—Stricken by measles a few hours before her scheduled wedding, Leta Teneyck, of Bloomington, Ind., did not let that little catastrophe hold up the ceremony. Though quarantined, she voiced her vows over a microphone through her bedroom window to the bridegroom, Jerome K. Denzer, and the rest of the wedding party on the lawn below.



IT AIN'T HAY—But it IS straw. This German miss in Hanau points to the face of a clock made out of straws which took 15 years to build. It was started in 1892 by Otto Wegener, a shoemaker and amateur clockmaker and completed in 1907. Although it stands five and a half feet high, it weighs only about a pound. It runs about eight hours. Everything in it, down to the smallest [illegible] balance wheel is made of straw.

SYNOPSIS [illegible] Raymond [illegible]

[illegible]

YESTERDAY: [illegible]

[illegible] hearing footsteps [illegible] every other tread of [illegible] the little, Nance [illegible] back the hair [illegible] over her forehead.

[illegible] Jeremy said.

[illegible] she said [illegible] into his arms [illegible] wrinkled [illegible]

[illegible] your trade, [illegible] short. [illegible] "How [illegible] on the couch [illegible]

[illegible] she smiled. [illegible] Jeremy?" [illegible]

"Sick people aren't reasonable, Nance."

"I know. . . . And that's why you're going to be a good doctor, Jeremy. Because you're ready to give so much of yourself without complaining."

"Good lord, don't make me a paragon! All doctors do."

"Perhaps. Only don't ask me to see you as just another run-of-the-mill doctor. You're special! You've got a halo. Maybe I'm the only one who see it, but that doesn't matter. I'll always see the halo, Jeremy."

"Will you put down that pencil a minute so it can't stab me while I kiss you?"

The pencil clattered to the floor. With her cheek flattened against him, she said, "It really has happened to us, hasn't it? The touch of magic."

"I'm afraid it has."

"Afraid?"

"Only the rashest of mortals tinker with magic, Nance, or try to hold it. It's fragile."

"We're brave! And we shan't break it, Jeremy, or lose it."

"Even," wryly, "if my halo gets knocked off?"

"I'll pick it up for you!"

"Or broken?"

"I've a deft touch with paste!"

"Nance," he said, with humility and love.

When Nance and Jeremy went down for dinner, Eleanor laced her needle through the canvas of her needlepoint and set it aside.

"There's a call for you, Jeremy. The number is on the pad." She said to Nance, crossing her fingers in a frail countercharm against an emergency which might take Jeremy to the hospital before dinner, "I do hope you know exactly what you're letting yourself in for, dear, as a doctor's wife."

"Shouldn't I, after being a doctor's sister all this time?"

Eleanor smiled.

"We went discussing it upstairs," Nance went on. "I've decided that any wailing and gnashing of teeth to be done shall be done in a soundproof room behind locked doors."

"Sam!" Eleanor called as the front door opened. "Is that you?"

"No, Bing Crosby." Sam Ireland hummed the wedding theme as he came into the living room.

[illegible] laughed and lifted her [illegible]

Watching them, Nance thought, [illegible] as for them, it will be a fine marriage.

Eleanor's raised brows asked a question of Jeremy as he came back into the room, and he answered, "Nothing that can't wait an hour, Mother."

"Nance," Eleanor said, "Miss Hinkley asked me today when you were coming for a fitting. She has your wedding dress at the stage where she can't remove a pin or rip out a basting thread without a try-on."

"I'll make an appointment tomorrow," Nance murmured.

"I believe you said that yesterday . . . . Nance, something came for you today. From New York. It's on the hall table."

"New York," Nance said, as Jeremy went for the package. "That will be Aunt Kit."

"Automatic toaster?" Jeremy guessed, going through elaborate gestures of squeezing, weighing, shaking. He'd done this with all the wedding gifts, so far. "Electric iron?"

"Nothing so practical," Nance laughed, unfolding layers of wrapping paper, "if I know Kit! It's more likely some precious relic from an auction, with a pedigree half a page long, utterly beautiful and quite useless . . . Oh," she gasped, lifting it carefully from its excelsior nest. "Look!"

Jeremy cupped his chin in his palms and looked. "What is it?" he asked dubiously.

"A tea kettle," Nance said. "And on the little stand underneath, a spirit lamp."

"Genii?" Jeremy inquired hopefully.

"Silly! You put methylated spirits in the little lamp and light the wick."

"Amazing," Jeremy murmured, "in this age of ohms and watts and volts."

With a small squeal of delight Eleanor discovered the Victorian hallmark. "Look, Nance—London, 1838."

"How could she bear to part with it?" Nance sighed.

Jeremy's spread palms and Sam's shrug were amused and indulgent, as Hattie came in to announce dinner.

I shall miss this, Nance thought, when Jeremy and I have our own home. The table, the four of us in the candlelight, Mother's flowers and Hattie's cooking spiced generously with her love for us. I'll miss it.

Truman Budget to Be Size of Big Phone Book

By FRANCIS J. KELLY

WASHINGTON, (AP) — President Truman's goodbye gift to Congress will be a government budget the size of a big city phone book, important sections of which are likely to become waste paper within three days.

It isn't Truman's idea. A 1950 law requires him to give Congress a detailed estimate of federal income and outgo within 15 days after the opening of a regular sion.

The new 83rd Congress, most of whose membership will be determined in the November elections, convenes next Jan. 3. The budget message must be at the Capitol by Jan. 17. At high noon on Jan. 20 a new President takes his oath and Truman becomes a private citizen.

At the same moment, the odds are heavy that key sections of the Truman budget will start heading for the congressional waste baskets. Regardless of who wins the presidency, it is unlikely he will agree 100 per cent with his predecessor's fiscal plan for the government accounting year which starts next July 1.

Nor is there time between election and inauguration day to do much about it. The President-elect, after recovering some of the energy spent in his campaign, presumably will want to start putting together the inaugural address which will sound the keynote for the beginning of his administration

The budget, more over, is no simple document a man can spread out before him and say, we'll cut so much here, and add so much to this program. This particular financial estimate has been under preparation by the Budget Bureau since last May. Long before that, each department was instructed by the White House to state its needs for the fiscal 1954, as the next accounting period is known.

It contains literally hundreds of thousands of items. By no means all of these are likely to be, or even could be revised by the new tenant of the White House. A vast number of them represent continuing appropriations for such items as the public debt and statutory programs approved by previous Congresses.

However, it's big appropriations and authorizations for such matters as defense, foreign aid and veterans benefits that add on the top billions and prompt the inkiest headlines. Obviously it is there and in similar fields that the incoming chief executive would find the most fertile ground for revision.

There is nothing— except possible political differences— to prevent the new man from sitting down with Truman and discussing the need for this appropriation or the reason behind that estimate. But it seems far more likely that the President-elect will want to feel his way more slowly and discuss the problems with his own advisers.

This appears to point the way to a series of supplemental budget requests later on. That was the way the matter was handled when Franklin D. Roosevelt took over in 1933 from Herbert Hoover. Congress can be asked to consider either upward or downward revisions in the estimates.

While the budget message must and will be sent to Congress, there is considerable doubt that Truman will choose to deliver the usual State of the Union address although he could if he so desired.

There has been no commitment from the White House on this point. It seems more probable now that the gray-haired Missourian will not attempt to lay down a program for his successor.

New Yorker Buys Bentonville Bank

BENTONVILLE, (AP) — A former New York Department store manager has purchased controlling interest of the Bank of Bentonville because he believes "Northwest Arkansas has a great future."

Arthur P. Smith. president of the bank, announced sale of the stock yesterday to H. Cornell Smith, former assistant managing director and active head of Gimbel Brothers in New York.

The purchase price was not disclosed but the bank has resources totalling $3.5 million. Transfer of control will be effective "on or before Sept. 12."

Aged Woman Sees First Light Burn

By NORBERT OLSHEFSKI

CAVE CITY, (AP)— A 97-year-old woman who hasn't left her North Arkansas mountain home for 26 years finally has seen an electric light burn.

Not only that, she now is weighted down with modern electric gadgets including an electric blanket, a fan and subdued lighting.

Mrs. Betty Stoner lives in the rugged Ozarks about four miles from here and 18 miles from Batesville. Early in August the Arkansas Power and Light Company built a line to a small cluster of houses called Hilltop Community, where she lives.

The last time Mrs. Stoner, or Aunt Mary as she is called in the community, left her house was in 1926 when she took a trip to Batesville. The farthest trip she has ever taken was 30 miles to another county.

Asked if she hadn't seen electric lights burn in Batesville, she replied:

"It was daytime and they were not turned on."

"Aunt Mary" was just a young girl when the civil war was going on but she remembers the Confederate soldiers marching down the road, beating drums and playing fifes.

Although she is a strong member of the GOP she professes loyalty for the Confederacy.

Asked what she thought about GOP president nominee Dwight D. Eisenhower, she said, "Ike's a good man" and if she could get to the polls in November she plans to vote Republican.

The modern electric gadgets were given to her as gifts by the light company crew which installed her electric system.

When she first saw the light she said, "It burns so bright that it hurts my eyes a little." So the crew bought her some diffused lighting fixtures.

Mrs. Stoner lives with her son-in-law in a four-room log house covered with willow board on the outside.

She was born Feb. 20, 1855 in Independence County and has seven living children, 26 great-grandchildren and 9 great-great-grandchildren.

When the little ceremony of giving the gifts was over she invited the men back for her 100th birth day.

"Come back," she said, "We'll have a dance, too."

Oil Companies Ignore Chance for Defense

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Small Business Committee said today none of seven big oil firms accused of monopoly practices has accepted an offer to appear before the committee and dispute the charge.

The monopoly accusations were detailed in a long-suppressed report written by Federal Trade Commission staff members. The report was made public by the Senate committee Monday after President Truman acceded to senators' demands that it be released.

Blake O'Conor, directing the committee's professional staff, said the group will decide now whether to order public hearings of its own on the matter, write a report based on the FTC findings or simply let the report stand.

Sen. John Sparkman of Alabama, the committee chairman and Democratic nominee for vice president, announced in making the report public he was reserving yesterday and today for public hearings if any of the seven companies wanted to reply.

"We have had no request for a hearing from any of the seven," O'Connor told a reporter. "There have been no takers, so Dr. Walter Adams, the staff member who would have conducted the hearings, is returning to his post as a member of the faculty of Michigan State College at East Lansing, Mich."

The report named the seven companies as Standard Oil of New Jersey, Standard of California, the Texas Co., Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., and Gulf Oil Corp., all incorporated in this country, the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., largely owned by the British government, and Royal Dutch Shell, owned mainly by Dutch and British interests. In press statements at the time, the companies generally denied any wrongdoing.

The Justice Department is investigating the group, and has filed damage suits totaling 67 million dollars against the two Standard companies, the Texas Co. and Socony-Vacuum.

O'Connor said he considers it "perfectly understandable" that the companies declined an opportunity to answer the FTC while the grand jury inquiry and the law suits are pending.

Sen. James E. Murray, Montana Democrat, announced, meanwhile, he expects the FTC report will be used widely as campaign material in support of Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson. the Democratic presidential nominee. Murray said it "shows Stevenson made the correct and courageous stand" on the campaign issue of state or federal control of the rich offshore oil reserves in this country.

Stevenson said he was against any "blanket cession" of these national assets to individual states.

DOROTHY DIX

Helpful Sister

Dear Miss Dix: Ten weeks ago my brother's wife had a baby. My brother works hard but when he comes home his wife, who has had a day of leisure, expects him to make dinner, giving the baby as an excuse. My brother is also working for his Ph. D. and, since he is so worried at home, his marks have been getting lower. How can I tell his wife to organize her home better? I am willing to help her.
CAROL D.

Answer: Judging from your writing, you are a very young miss, and should be highly commended for your concern over your brother's welfare. Are you sure you are judging the situation fairly? The mother of a 10-weeks-old baby really doesn't have much time for leisure, although she should be able to prepare dinner for two without much difficulty.

I'm sure she would appreciate your offer of assistance. Why not go over and see what you can do for her? The experience will be helpful to you, and will aid your brother's family over a period of adjustment to the new baby that is sometimes quite difficult.

An infant and a Ph. D. aspirant in the same household are quite a handful, and I'm sure your efforts will be very useful in smoothing the domestic machinery.

Let Mother Decide

Dear Miss Dix: The man I go with is 21, and I am 17. He is divorced. We like the same things and get along well except that he doesn't believe me when I tell him certain things. He claims that he has been lied to so much that he can't believe anyone. I don't think that's fair. My family objects to him because he has been married before and I don't think that has anything to do with our present or future.
S. M.

Answer: First of all, whether you approve of your mother's decisions or not, she is the one to be consulted on your problems, since at 17 you haven't the experience to figure everything out for yourself. A single boy, closer to you in age, would be a much more suitable companion than a divorced man.

Dear Miss Dix: We are two girls of 13. Another friend, Vera, who is 12, has dates, uses lipstick and thinks we are cowards because we don't do the same. We don't believe in things like that until we're 16. Who is right?
A. F.

Answer: You are right. You have a code of conduct entirely in keeping with your age, and don't let anyone tease, or ridicule, you out of it. Vera does not seem to be a good friend for you, and I agree with your mother that the less you see of her the better.

Dear Miss Dix: For five years I have been going with a boy who has said he was in love with me. We planned to marry when I finish college. Lately, however, he hasn't come out with me and has told several people he doesn't go with me anymore. What must I do?
P. Q.

Answer: You have been given a cue to make a graceful exit. The boy hasn't the courage to tell you frankly that he doesn't want to go with you, so has taken the ungentlemanly course of getting the information to you via third parties. Make sure your information comes from reliable source and, if possible, verify it directly with the boy. The chances are that his attentions have wandered, and I advise yours to do likewise.

Dear Miss Dix: All the relations of my husband's side call me skinny. My husband says I am pretty close to average Miss America figure and, though I think I'm just about right, I feel so self-conscious around his relations.
LOU

Answer From the measurements you give, Lou, I, too, would say you're about right. Perhaps hubby's family is inclined to avoirdupois and are envious. Take their remarks good naturedly and stop being selfconscious.

Dear Miss Dix: I would love to have a dog but my mother and father say that the city is no place for one. I am 12 years old.
RONNIE

Answer: A dog is a wonderful companion for a boy, and I wish you could find someone who would persuade your parents to get one. Of course, a large dog is out of place in the city, but the smaller breeds do very nicely, even in a small place. But remember, Ronnie, if mom and dad do finally agree to the dog, it's your job to take care of him. One reason why parents don't like the idea is that dad usually gets the job of walking the dog, while mom has all the feeding and house care to do.

Officers Will Try to Starve Out Badman

PACIFIC, Mo., (AP) — Police, convinced they have a cordon around William Merle Martin, 42, one of the FBI's 10 most-wanted fugitives adopted a starve-him-out attitude today.

"We can't possibly get enough men to comb those woods thoroughly," Capt. Lewis Howard of the Missouri Highway Patrol said.

"Our men could go within three feet of him in some sections and not know it. We'll just have to wait until he gets hungry enough to make a break."

A driver of a car, stolen in Brimingham, Ala., several days ago, fled into a rugged section of Western St. Louis County, about 40 miles west of St. Louis after highway troopers forced the vehicle into a ditch.

They said the man, believed answered Martin's description.

Around dusk last night two armed farmers, part of a large group of civilians who have joined county, state and federal authorities in the area, saw a man who appeared to be Martin walk from the woods.

The man spotted them and fled. They fired shotguns but apparently didn't hit him.

Martin, who began a crime career in 1929, got on the FBI list after the slaying of Deputy Sheriff Bob. Carver near Olathe, Kan., June 23.

Ulith pleaded self defense in the July 3 shooting, claiming that McDuffee previously had tried to kill him.

Bus Company Offers Wage Increase

LITTLE ROCK, (AP)— A 3-man arbitration board yesterday granted a 4-cent-an-hour wage increase to union bus drivers of the Capitol Transportation Company— a penny lower than the firm's offer prior to arbitration.

The union, Division 704 of the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes' of America AFL, had asked a 20-cent-an-hour boost.

In the decision handed down by the board, 15 of 18 union proposals were rejected; one was settled during arbitration; one was granted and one— the wage provision — was modified.

Of the company's 18 proposals, 12 were granted; three were refused, and three were modified.

Not only were union officials disappointed at the decision, the local president B. Beryl Bland, said he doubted that the Board had legal authoity to change the effective date of the contract.

The company had asked for a 2-year contract, while the union wanted the agreement to run for only a year.

The Board rejected the company's proposal, but it set Sept. 1 as the effective date of the new contract instead of June 1 — the former expiration date. This, in effect gave Capitol a 15-month contract.

Under the decision, the new wage scale for top operators drivers will be $1.41 per hour. Top maintainance men will get $1.56 per hour.

ANDA Group to Name New Head

LITTLE ROCK, (AP) — [illegible] year-old president of the Arkansas Negro Democratic Association says he will not seek re-election to the post at the group's meeting here today.

Dr. J. M. Robinson, who first was elected president of the ANDA when the group organized in [illegible] said last night:

"I'm tired. Twenty-five years in the harness is enough for any one."

Robinson said he thought possible candidates for his post would be Wiley Branton of Pine Bluff and G. C. McKey of Texarkana.

He repeated the claim that his refusal to seek re-election was not connected with his support of Jack Holt for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Prior to the July 29th preferential primary at which Holt was defeated Robinson said he would resign as ANDA president if Gov. McMath were re-elected governor.

Robinson said that loyalty to state and national Democratic nominees would be stressed at today's meeting.

Outsiders Take Lead in Golf Tournament

By BOB MYERS

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Four favorite daughters from Hawaii, Washington, Texas and California all strangers to the lofty position in which they find themselves, tee off today in the semi-finals of the Women's National Amateur Golf Championship.

Victors in yesterday's quarter-finals at the exclusive Waverley County Club make the lineup read like this for today's 18-hole play:

Mrs. Jacqueline Pung of Honolulu vs. Patricia Ann Lesser of Seattle.

Patricia Garner of Midland, Tex., vs. Shirley McFedters of Long Beach, Calif.

Tomorrow the winners meet at 36 holes for the title.

Mrs. Pung is a 29-year-old mother of two young daughters, the wife of a Chinese fireman and she likes to shed her shoes as soon as possible after a match. She will also go into a hula-barefoot, of course-on the green following a victory. She weighs well over 200 pounds and stands-barefoot-a mite over five feet. She can also belt a golf ball a great distance.

Miss Lesser, 19 and the "one-man golf team at the University of Seattle, is the daughter of a retired Army colonel, and holder of most of the title around the Pacific Northwest.

Miss Garner, 23, the daughter of a Texas oilman, has been playing golf but four years.

Miss McFedters, a junior at UCLA, won the Southern California public links title the past two years.

Rankin Will Have Time to Cool Off Now

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)— John Rankin will have time to cool off now. For most of his life he's been as active and blazing as a man with a box of matches on fire in his hip pocket.

Rankin, the tireless champion of white supremacy who had his hand called on the floor of the House ing around words like "kike" and of Representatives for throwing around words like "kike" and "Negro" won't be back next year.

He had been a member of the House from Mississippi for 32 years. This week the voters of his state turned him down for renomination in favor of a fellow congressman, Thomas Abernethy, who is 49.

At 70, still lively as a boy, Rankin is one of those old-men who never seem bruised by the shoving around time gives them.

Even his white hair seems to stand up in constant indignation.

Unlike some of his ponderous fellow members, far younger, Rankin could be on his feet in an eyeblink for a fight with his mouth or his fists. Size didn't faze him. His fellow members, president or even the Supreme Court were all targets for his tongue and his temper.

In 1945 he swung on Frank Hook a fellow Democrat from Michigan. Hook, one-time iron ore miner, was a lot bigger man. Rankin had accused Hook of consorting with Communists. When Hook called him a liar, Rankin swung.

Communism was on his mind. He was one of the most enthusiastic Communist-hunters of his time, a pursuit he developed as chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

He was equally attentive to, and equally against, any civil rights moves by the Democratic administration. He was strictly for segregation of Negroes.

At the same time he championed the Tennessee Valley Authority, rural electrification, and war veterans. Veterans were his special province. He was chairman of the House Veterans Committee.

But for attentiveness to his job, he set an example. Up at six in the morning, he got down to his office before any of his staff. And he knew his way around Congres as few men did.

In spite of his shrewdness, events he couldn't control were Rankin's undoing. He lost his job through a reorganization of Congress.

In 16 previous elections Rankin had squeaked through, or breezed through, depending on who his opponent was. He might have kept doing that indefinitely.

But this year the Mississippi Legislature, over his protests, combined his congressional district with that of Abernethy who has been a House member 10 years and the two men had to fight each other for the one seat.

FCC to Rule on TV Channels

WASHINGTON, (AP) — Four companies bidding for two television channels in Little Rock will present their cases in competitive hearings ordered yesterday by the Federal Communications Commission.

The FCC said Arkansas Television Company and Arkansas Radio and Equipment Company both have applied for VHF Channel 4; and Wrether, Hill & Alvarez and the Arkansas Broadcasting Company have applied for VHF Channell 11.

How Well Do Bears Smell?

By WARREN PAGE
Shooting Editor

I have stood unmoving within 30 feet of a bear and watched it crop sedge, the sweetish green grass that coastal bears favor in the Spring, with the animal completely unaware of my presence until the wind freaked man-scent to him.

I have several times stalked up to within easy shooting range of both black and brown bears across flats empty of man-size cover, simply by moving when the critter's head was down or away freezing when he swung up and around.

Bears have notoriously poor eyesight, although the brown bear will do better than his smaller cousin on objects both moving and still. Once either has seen a man or even a boat at fair distance he will strain for a clearer view, often raising on hind legs not to threaten but to see better. Generally speaking, however, bruin's vision leaves much to be desired.

But there's nothing wrong with his nose. Let a stray breeze carry a whiff of the ripe aroma of a man who has been hunting for some days in the same clothes, and brother bear snaps to attention pronto. Usually he sets off for the hills in haste dignified or undignified, depending on whether he's a kindly brownie or a black.

And the range of his scenting power is phenomenal. It is my private opinion that his powers of scent are keener than those of even the suspicious whitetail.

This past Spring we were in a little bight behind Point Latouche up in Yakutat Bay. When we dropped anchor the wind was quartering offshore so that man and boat smells were carried away from the snow filled valley that ran five or six miles back into the mountains. On a slide between 800 and 1000 yards up the valley, we spotted a young brownie, out of hibernation unwisely early, obviously on the prowl for feed. His aimless wandering carried him through a patch of alders and out onto another snow patch a good 200 yards further from us, still quite unsuspicious of anything in the world but his own empty belly.

Suddenly the boat veered around under a gusty breeze that eddied around the point and up the valley. Three or four minutes later we saw that bear whip to attention, take a healthy lungful of tainted air, and then start along the slope away from us as hard as he could go.

With a noseful of danger, a black bear will ordinarily make for the heavy timber without hesitation in just this same fashion; but a brown bear or grizzly, boss of the local boiler works until he has acquired education about the threat mankind offers, may not always be in such a sweat to depart a tainted area.

Only a pair of seasons ago a friend was obliged to shoot a bear that had seen him clearly moving had obviously winded him, and had heard him yelling, but still kept coming in with deadly purposefulness. That brownie had earlier been wounded by some trigger-happy nincompoop, and to it man smell meant merely an opportunity for revenge.

Usually even the big bears take any taint of man as reason for having a date over the ridge — and they can pick up the slightest trace. Not just camp smoke, which doesn't bother them too much, but merely the trace of human scent occasioned by a careless touch of a log by the trail, a brush against a bush, or even, believe it or not the prints of wet rubber boots on stream gravel.

Meridian, Natchez Playoff Winners

By The Associated Press

Meridian and Natchez hold a one game edge in the Cotton States League baseball playoff because both teams made a few hits go a long way.

Meridian, the pennant winner, turned back Monroe's fourth place invaders 4-3, although outhit 10-7, Natchez was as poor a host, jumping Greenwood 7-3 altough getting only five hits. Natchez finished the regular season in second place, with Greenwood in third.

Tonight's games will be played at Meridian and Natchez again.

Meridian's Bobby Harrison, a 24-game winner during the regular season, was tight in the clutches against Monroe last night after his teammates gave him a two-run edge in the first frame.

Roy Jayne pitched three-hit ball for Natchez and his mates got five off two Greenwood Hurlers. A grand slam home run by Manager Troy Mitchell put Natchez ahead in the first inning.

Third Baseman Don Allen got another with the bases empty in the third.

Life Story of Dizzy Dean Opens Sunday

The cry of "play ball" with the accompanying excitement of All-Star games, shut-out pitching, all sparkling plays and Dizzy Dean's garbled English will give the Saenger Theatre a World Series atmosphere when "The Pride of St. Louis" starring Dan Dailey and Joanne Dru plays there Sunday and Monday.

The picture narrates the life story of Jerome Herman Dean, the gifted athlete who clowned his way across the national scene for seven semesters to become a base ball immortal.

Among the highlights shown on the screen as the story of the lovable, zany pitcher unfolds are the 1934 All-Star game in Washington, the 1934 World Series between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Detroit Tigers, which climaxed the year in which the famous "Me and Paul" combination amassed the total of 49 victories, 30 for Dizzy and 19 for Daffy, who went on to win two games each in the series and the 1938 World Series between the Chicago Cubs and the New York Yankees. Such familiar baseball figures as Frankie Frisch and the famous "Gas House Gang" of the Cards are depicted in the film.

Dan Dailey who plays the role of the fabulous "Dizzy" trained for three months with Ike Danning one time backstop for the St. Louis Browns, Pittsburgh Pirates, Baltimore Orioles and the Los Angeles Angels, to perfect the pitching style of the famous Dean. In the course of the picture, fans will see action in twelve different baseball parks including St. Louis, Chicago, Washington, Detroit and several minor league cities.

Dean was born at Lucas, Arkansas, and began his baseball career at Little Rock. Several Arkansas towns are referred to in the film.

Mobile May Aid Lookouts in Drive

By STERLING SLAPPEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

If Chattanooga wins the Southern Association pennant it will be with a big assist from Mobile.

First off Mobile belted New Orleans 9-1 in a regular seven-inning affair. Then, in the second game of the doubleheader, Mobile did it again, only not as desively — 9-8 in 11 innings. Chattanooga, meanwhile, lost to Little Rock, 2-1.

Atlanta managed to win for a change, 3-0, over Birmingham and recaptured second place from New Orleans. Atlanta is three games back of Chattanooga and New Orleans in 3½.

All Chattanooga could get off little Verne Williamson was five hits. The only run came on Roy Hawes' homer. Little Rock scored both runs in the fourth on four singles, a walk and sacrifice.

Atlanta showed some animation in winning from Birmingham. Earlier in the day the Atlanta Journal said a good source predicted that Cracker Manager Dixie Walker would not be back next year. Just after the story appeared Walker got booted out of the game in Birmingham. He protested too long over a close play. Birmingham's John Minarcin also was chased. He beat his bat on the ground in disgust.

Memphis and Mobile are tied for fourth after Memphis defeated Nashville, 7-2. Don Nicholas of the Chicks stole his 77th and 78th bases leaving him only three short of the record.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK, (AP) — The Giants' own writers gave up on them a few days ago West, and so it may be recorded with finality that the remarkable baseball saga which began approximately a year ago has at last come to an end.

The men who travel with Leo Durocher's athletes say they suddenly seemed to realize that lightning was not going to strike them for the second time, and that the spark which had sustained them through a season of adversity has flickered and gone out. The defending league champions, they agree, will be fortunate to beat out the St. Louis Cardinals for second money.

Actually, for a ball club which soared to the heights the Giants did last September in overtaking the Dodgers and clawing their way into the World Series, there can be little incentive to finish second. After such an experience as that, it has to be either first nor nothing. There's no in-between.

The conviction here still is streng that they would have won it again if their lineup had remained intact and Sal Maglie had not sprung an ache in his back. Maybe the Giants of '51 will not go down as one of the great clubs of history, but they were plenty good, and they gave the fans of the nation a thrill which may never be equalled.

As for Leo Durocher, who has been getting batted around of late, our honest opinion is that he has done a more skillful job of managing this year than he did last. Just keeping his club's spirit up and keeping it in the race as long as he did in the face of its manifold misfortunes called for ability of a high order.

The truth is that once the Giants started rolling last year there wasn't a great deal for the dandy little manager to do except name a starting pitcher and then stand from under.

This year he has had his problems, and serious ones. They began April 3 that afternoon in Denver, to be exact, when Monte Irvin, his big runs-batted-in man, broke an ankle in an exhibition game.

After that it was Willie May, one of the most exciting young stars in years, leaving for the Army.

Then Larry Jansen losing the edge of his effectiveness and Maglie hurting his back and Bobby Thomson mysteriously losing his fielding touch at third base. If ever a pilot had to operate from day to day and improvise almost by the inning, it has been Durocher.

Durocher's $45,000-a-year contract expires with the final game on Sept. 28, and he no doubt will be in their slugging to have it renewed for a period of years. President Horace Stoneham is understood to favor a year-to-year pact with his pilot from here on.

Reports that Stoneham has soared on Leo for his recent umpire trouble and resultant five-day suspension may be discounted. The two are kindred spirits, in a way, and Leo is Horace's boy. That is, as of now.

Outsiders Take Lead in Golf Tournament

By BOB MYERS

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Four favorite daughters from Hawaii, Washington, Texas and California all strangers to the lofty position in which they find themselves, tee off today in the semi-finals of the Women's National Amateur Golf Championship.

Victors in yesterday's quarter-finals at the exclusive Waverley County Club make the lineup read like this for today's 18-hole play:

Mrs. Jacqueline Pung of Honolulu vs. Patricia Ann Lesser of Seattle.

Patricia Garner of Midland, Tex., vs. Shirley McFedters of Long Beach, Calif.

They arrived in the semi-final stage after a round of golf that reduced its charge of surprises and golf good and bad.

Tomorrow the winners meet at 36 holes for the title.

Mrs. Pung is a 20-year-old mother of two young daughters, the wife of a Chinese fireman and she likes to shed her shoes as soon as possible after a match. She will also go into a hula-barefoot, of course-on the green following a victory. She weighs well over 200 pounds and stands-barefoot-a mite over five feet. She can also belt a golf ball a great distance.

Miss Lesser, 19 and the "one-man golf team at the University of Seattle, is the daughter of a retired Army colonel, and holder of most of the title around the Pacific Northwest.

Miss Garner, 23, the daughter of a Texas oilman, has been playing golf but four years.

Miss McFedters, a junior at UCLA, won the Southern California public links title the past two years.

Rankin Will Have Time to Cool Off Now

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)— John Rankin will have time to cool off now. For most of his life he's been as active and blazing as a man with a box of matches on fire in his hip pocket.

Rankin, the tireless champion of white supremacy who had his hand called on the floor of the House of Representatives for throwing around words like "kike" and "Negro" won't be back next year.

He had been a member of the House from Mississippi for 32 years. This week the voters of his state turned him down for renomination in favor of a fellow congressman, Thomas Abernethy, who is 49.

At 70, still lively as a boy, Rankin is one of those old-men who never seem bruised by the shoving around time gives them.

Even his white hair seems to stand up in constant indignation.

Unlike some of his ponderous fellow members, far younger, Rankin could be on his feet in an eye-blink for a fight with his mouth or his fists. Size didn't faze him. His fellow members, president or even the Supreme Court were all targets for his tongue and his temper.

In 1945 he swung on Frank Hook a fellow Democrat from Michigan. Hook, one-time iron ore miner, was a lot bigger man. Rankin had accused Hook of consorting with Communists. When Hook called him a liar, Rankin swung.

Communism was on his mind. He was one of the most enthusiastic Communist-hunters of his time, a pursuit he developed as chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

He was equally attentive to, and equally against, any civil rights moves by the Democratic administration. He was strictly for segregation of Negroes.

At the same time he championed the Tennessee Valley Authority, rural electrification, and war veterans. Veterans were his special province. He was chairman of the House Veterans Committee.

But for attentiveness to his job, he set an example. Up at six in the morning, he got down to his office before any of his staff. And he knew his way around Congres as few men did.

In spite of his shrewdness, events he couldn't control were Rankin's undoing. He lost his job through a reorganization of Congress.

In 16 previous elections Rankin had squeaked through, or breezed through, depending on who his opponent was. He might have kept doing that indefinitely.

But this year the Mississippi Legislature, over his protests, combined his congressional district with that of Abernethy who has been a House member 10 years and the two men had to fight each other for the one seat.

FCC to Rule on TV Channels

WASHINGTON, (AP) — Four companies bidding for two television channels in Little Rock will present their cases in competitive hearings ordered yesterday by the Federal Communications Commission.

The FCC said Arkansas Television Company and Arkansas Radio and Equipment Company both have applied for VHF Channel 4; and Wrether, Hill & Alvarez and the Arkansas Broadcasting Company have applied for VHF Channel 11.

How Well Do Bears Smell?

By WARREN PAGE
Shooting Editor

I have stood unmoving within 30 feet of a bear and watched it crop sedge, the sweetish green grass that coastal bears favor in the Spring, with the animal completely unaware of my presence until the wind freaked man-scent to him.

I have several times stalked up to within easy shooting range of both black and brown bears across flats empty of man-size cover, simply by moving when the critter's head was down or away freezing when he swung up and around.

Bears have notoriously poor eyesight, although the brown bear will do better than his smaller cousin on objects both moving and still. Once either has seen a man or even a boat at fair distance he will strain for a clearer view, often raising on hind legs not to threaten but to see better. Generally speaking, however, bruin's vision leaves much to be desired.

But there's nothing wrong with his nose. Let a stray breeze carry a whiff of the ripe aroma of a man who has been hunting for some days in the same clothes, and brother bear snaps to attention pronto. Usually he sets off for the hills in haste dignified or undignified, depending on whether he's a kindly brownie or a black.

And the range of his scenting power is phenomenal. It is my private opinion that his powers of scent are keener than those of even the suspicious whitetail.

This past Spring we were in a little bight behind Point Latouche up in Yakutat Bay. When we dropped anchor the wind was quartering offshore so that man and boat smells were carried away from the snow filled valley that ran five or six miles back into the mountains. On a slide between 800 and 1000 yards up the valley, we spotted a young brownie, out of hibernation unwisely early, obviously on the prowl for feed. His aimless wandering carried him through a patch of alders and out onto another snow patch a good 200 yards further from us, still quite unsuspicious of anything in the world but his own empty belly.

Suddenly the boat veered around under a gusty breeze that eddied around the point and up the valley. Three or four minutes later we saw that bear whip to attention, take a healthy lungful of tainted air, and then start along the slope away from us as hard as he could go.

With a noseful of danger, a black bear will ordinarily make for the heavy timber without hesitation in just this same fashion; but a brown bear or grizzly, boss of the local boiler works until he has acquired education about the threat mankind offers, may not always be in such a sweat to depart a tainted area.

Only a pair of seasons ago a friend was obliged to shoot a bear that had seen him clearly moving had obviously winded him, and had heard him yelling, but still kept coming in with deadly purposefulness. That brownie had earlier been wounded by some trigger-happy nincompoop, and to it man smell meant merely an opportunity for revenge.

Usually even the big bears take any taint of man as reason for having a date over the ridge — and they can pick up the slightest trace. Not just camp smoke, which doesn't bother them too much, but merely the trace of human scent occasioned by a careless touch of a log by the trail, a brush against a bush, or even, believe it or not the prints of wet rubber boots on stream gravel.

Meridian, Natchez Playoff Winners

By The Associated Press

Meridian and Natchez hold a one game edge in the Cotton States League baseball playoff because both teams made a few hits go a long way.

Meridian, the pennant winner, turned back Monroe's fourth place invaders 4-3, although outhit 10-7. Natchez was as poor a host, jumping Greenwood 7-3 altough getting only five hits. Natchez finished the regular season in second place, with Greenwood in third.

Tonight's games will be played at Meridian and Natchez again.

Meridian's Bobby Harrison, a 24-game winner during the regular season, was tight in the clutches against Monroe last night after his teammates gave him a two-run edge in the first frame.

Roy Jayne pitched three-hit ball for Natchez and his mates got five off two Greenwood Hurlers. A grand slam home run by Manager Troy Mitchell put Natchez ahead in the first inning.

Third Baseman Don Allen got another with the bases empty in the third.

Life Story of Dizzy Dean Opens Sunday

The cry of "play ball" with the accompanying excitement of All-Star games, shut-out pitching, all sparkling plays and Dizzy Dean's garbled English will give the Saenger Theatre a World Series atmosphere when "The Pride of St. Louis" starring Dan Dailey and Joanne Dru plays there Sunday and Monday.

The picture narrates the life story of Jerome Herman Dean, the gifted athlete who clowned his way across the national scene for seven semesters to become a baseball immortal.

Among the highlights shown on the screen as the story of the lovable, zany pitcher unfolds are the 1934 All-Star game in Washington, the 1934 World Series between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Detroit Tigers, which climaxed the year in which the famous "Me and Paul" combination amassed the total of 49 victories, 30 for Dizzy and 19 for Daffy, who went on to win two games each in the series and the 1938 World Series between the Chicago Cubs and the New York Yankees. Such familiar baseball figures as Frankie Frisch and the famous "Gas House Gang" of the Cards are depicted in the film.

Dan Dailey who plays the role of the fabulous "Dizzy" trained for three months with Ike Danning one time backstop for the St. Louis Browns, Pittsburgh Pirates, Baltimore Orioles and the Los Angeles Angels, to perfect the pitching style of the famous Dean. In the course of the picture, fans will see action in twelve different baseball parks including St. Louis, Chicago, Washington, Detroit and several minor league cities.

Dean was born at Lucas, Arkansas, and began his baseball career at Little Rock. Several Arkansas towns are referrdd to in the film.

Mobile May Aid Lookouts in Drive

By STERLING SLAPPEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

If Chattanooga wins the Southern Association pennant it will be with a big assist from Mobile.

First off Mobile belted New Orleans 9-1 in a regular seven-inning affair. Then, in the second game of the doubleheader, Mobile did it again, only not as desively — 9-8 in 11 Innings. Chattanooga, meanwhile, lost to Little Rock, 2-1.

Atlanta managed to win for a change, 3-0, over Birmingham and recaptured second place from New Orleans. Atlanta is three games back of Chattanooga and New Orleans in 3½.

All Chattanooga could get off little Verne Williamson was five hits. The only run came on Roy Hawes' homer. Little Rock scored both runs in the fourth on four singles, a walk and sacrifice.

Atlanta showed some animation in winning from Birmingham. Earlier in the day the Atlanta Journal said a good source predicted that Cracker Manager Dixie Walker would not be back next year. Just after the story appeared Walker got booted out of the game in Birmingham. He protested too long over a close play. Birmingham's John Minarcin also was chased. He beat his bat on the ground in disgust.

Memphis and Mobile are tied for fourth after Memphis defeated Nashville, 7-2. Don Nicholas of the Chicks stole his 77th and 78th bases leaving him only three short of the record.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK, (AP) — The Giants' own writers gave up on them a few days ago West, and so it may be recorded with finality that the remarkable baseball saga which began approximately a year ago has at last come to an end.

The men who travel with Leo Durocher's athletes say they suddenly seemed to realize that lightning was not going to strike them for the second time, and that the spark which had sustained them through a season of adversity has flickered and gone out. The defending league champions, they agree, will be fortunate to beat out the St. Louis Cardinals for second money.

Actually, for a ball club which seared to the heights the Giants did last September in overtaking the Dodgers and clawing their way into the World Series, there can be little incentive to finish second. After such an experience as that, it has to be either first nor nothing. There's no in-between.

The conviction here still is streng that they would have won it again if their lineup had remained intact and Sal Maglie had not sprung an ache in his back. Maybe the Giants of '51 will not go down as one of the great clubs of history, but they were plenty good, and they gave the fans of the nation a thrill which may never be equalled.

As for Leo Durocher, who has been getting batted around of late, our honest opinion is that he has done a more skillful job of managing this year than he did last. Just keeping his club's spirit up and keeping it in the race as long as he did in the face of its manifold misfortunes called for ability of a high order.

The truth is that once the Giants started rolling last year there wasn't a great deal for the dandy little manager to do except name a starting pitcher and then stand from under.

This year he has had his problems, and serious ones. They began April 3 that afternoon in Denver, to be exact, when Monte Irvin, his big runs-batted-in man, broke an ankle in an exhibition game.

After that it was Willie May, one of the most exciting young stars in years, leaving for the Army.

Then Larry Jansen losing the edge of his effectiveness and Maglie hurting his back and Bobby Thomson mysteriously losing his fielding touch at third base. If ever a pilot had to operate from day to day and improvise almost by the inning, it has been Durocher.

Durocher's $45,000-a-year contract expires with the final game on Sept. 28, and he no doubt will be in their slugging to have it renewed for a period of years. President Horace Stoneham is understood to favor a year-to-year pact with his pilot from here on.

Reports that Stoneham has soared on Leo for his recent umpire trouble and resultant five-day suspension may be discounted. The two are kindred spirits, in a way, and Leo is Horace's boy. That is, as of now.

To Seal Tragic Mine Shaft

JOPLIN, Mo., (UP)—The mine shaft into which badman William "Billy" Cook tossed the five bodies of the Carl Mosser family of Atwood, Ill., almost two years ago, will be permanently closed off.

Mayor H. Chris Oltman of Joplin said last night he will take "personal action" to see that the mine shaft is closed and unpleasant memories connected with it ended as nearly as possible.

Cook, a native of Joplin, today awaited execution in the gas chamber of California's San Quentin prison for the slaying of Seattle, Wash., Salesman Robert Dewey.

The mine shaft into which the bodies of the Mosser family were tossed is on Joplin's Fourth Street.

The entire Joplin area is plagued with hundreds of abandoned open mine shafts, officals said, and bodies and automobiles have been recovered from them for years.

Mayor Oltman said he was "determined" that the fourth street shaft be filled up or a permanent covering placed over it, so there will be "no danger to children

There is no comfort, there is no wisdom like that which comes from Heaven. Today great throngs of our fine young people are discovering that fact through the teachings at their favorite church school. The Sunday School is where they learn the art of better living by precept and by example. These schools are alert to their responsibility. They serve as lighthouses pointing out, to young people, the way to Heaven. Here, trained teachers share with young buoyant life all the good and tried values of religion.

In the glorious company of faithful teachers, they learn to express themselves in the language of the Great Teacher. Principles of chemistry and mathematics give way to the world's best seller, the Holy Bible, as a guide book. This great Sunday School should be a challenge to you. It is here one learns to link the present to the eternal...discover the horrors of Hell and the blessings of Heaven. In the Sunday School we learn to be good neighbors, faithful soldiers and to prepare for that final journey from earth to Heaven. Do you go to Sunday School?

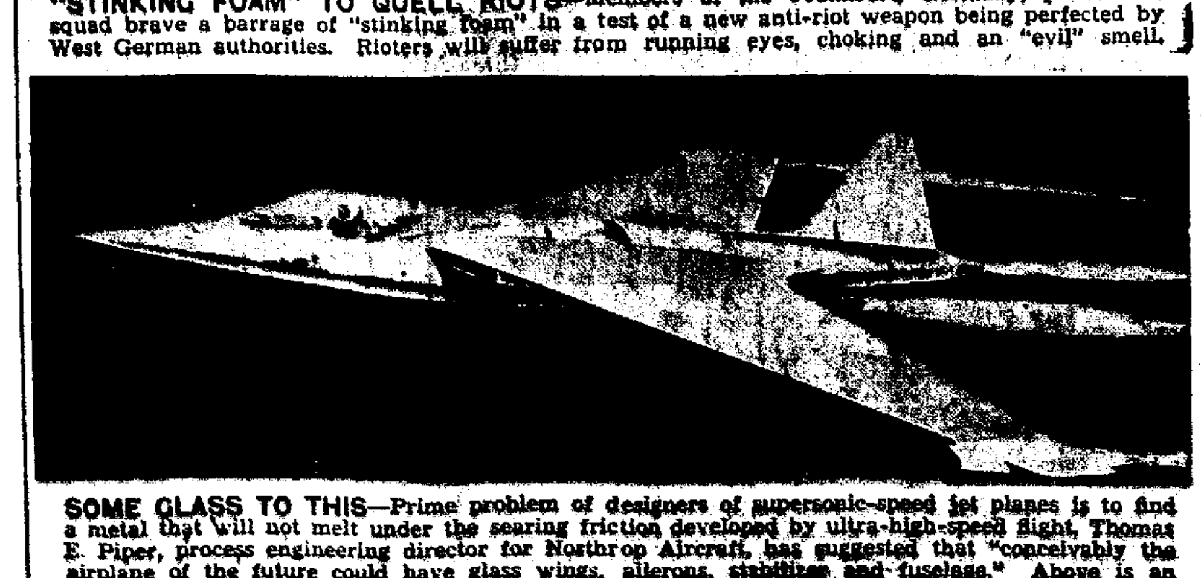
"STINKING FOAM" TO QUELL RIOTS—Members of the Frankfurt, Germany, police riot squad brave a barrage of "stinking foam" in a test of a new anti-riot weapon being perfected by West German authorities. Rioters will suffer from running eyes, choking and an "evil" smell.



SOME GLASS TO THIS—Prime problem of designers of supersonic-speed jet planes is to find a metal that will not melt under the searing friction developed by ultra-high-speed flight. Thomas E. Piper, process engineering director for Northrop Aircraft, has suggested that "conceivably the airplane of the future could have glass wings, ailerons, stabilizer and fuselage." Above is an artist's conception of such a plane, which would employ a type of glass fiber laminate for friction-sensitive parts.

NEW YORK (AP)— Girls, our success formula for today is simple:

"Stay in there and keep pitching those curves."

The symbol of this vibrant maxim is Marilyn Monroe, who has proved an ambitious girl doesn't have to come to the big city to get ahead. She can do it in her own home town.

At 9 Marilyn earned five cents a month spending money setting tables in a Los Angeles orphans home. At 24, in the nearby film studio where she now has to wait on nobody, she draws down $750 a week. In Hollywood, where she is rated as one of the most sultry discoveries since the late Jean Harlow, this naturally is considered peonage.

"They keep saying that one of these days they'll tear up my contract and write me a better one," she said. "And one of these days I wish they would."

"They keep me so busy," she complained, "sorry I'm so late."

She turned her wide blue eyes on me, and I had an uneasy feeling they would melt and drip on the table. Then she sat down beside me — real close— and I had an uneasy feeling that maybe I'd melt.

"I was having my hair fixed in my hotel room, and all I had on was a towel," she said, and added carefully —"a small towel. Some reporters were on the other side of the door asking me questions. And such questions They wanted to know if I knew how many stomachs a cow had, and they seemed real surprised when I gave them the right answer — four.

"Then they asked me if I knew what heat was? I told them sure — Heat is something that is generated. Isn't that right?"

Marilyn, who recently was in a film called "Monkey Business," rather enjoys people who take her for a real life dumb blonde. She is dumb the same way Mae West is.

At the moment she is rather amazed by the public interest in her disclosure that she never wears brassieres, girdles or any other form of underclothing, and sleeps raw except for a nightly dab of perfume.

"It's more comfortable not to wear underclothing, and I don't like to feel wrinkles," she said. "What's so unusual about that? You must know a lot of girls who do the same thing— and who put on perfume before going to sleep."

Editor's Note: If Boyle does, he never mentioned it before.

Miss Monroe feels most American women should follow her example and emancipate themselves from bras, corsets, and girdles.

"But, first, some of them ought to exercise," she said. "In order to be. . . to be. . . you know. firm I exercise with the weights myself

"I lie on my back with my arms overhead and lift the weights 15 times. It is a kind of pull against gravity, I guess. I used to walk a lot, too. Walking up a steep hill is the best thing for a woman's legs."

But what about the subject on the minds of 10 million girls this leap year — how to catch a husband? Marilyn, whose own marriage at 16 didn't last, gave two simple rules:

"1. A girl should follow her instincts.

"2. That will about take care of things, as instincts are important."

As for sex a current events topic most movie stars and baseball players usually have opinions on, Miss Monroe said:

"Truthfully, 've never given it a second thought."

And she was gone before I thought of asking her what her first thought was.

Newspaperboy Day on October 4

WASHINGTON (AP)— A quarter of a million American newspaper carrier boys will help sell the new type Series E defense bonds in 12 million homes next Oct. 4.

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder announced this yesterday, saying the carriers had offered their bond drive services through the International Circulation Managers Association.

Snyder said it was "a magnificent demonstration of good citizenship."

Oct. 4 is Newspaperboy Day, and the Post Office Department is is suing a new three-cent stamp to commemorate the public service of the carrier boys.

Detroit Opens Air Show

DETROIT (AP)—The five billions dollar International Air Exposition opened here today with the most spectacular demonstration of military air power ever seen by civilians.

More than 500,000 persons are expected to jam the Detroit Wayne Major Airport for the three day exposition.

All branches of the armed forces have sent their biggest, fastest and newest planes to the show.

In addition a huge B-36 global bomber was expected to arrive this afternoon after a flight from Spokane, Wash., via the North Pole. AB47 Stratojet bomber also was scheduled to land at the show this afternoon after making a flight from its California base in less than four hours.

U. S, Britain Trying to Settle Iran Oil Dispute

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, (AP) — The United States and Britain are expected to offer substantial concessions shortly in what may be a last-ditch effort to settle the AngloIranian oil crisis.

But there was no great optimism apparent here or in London that the touchy problem will be solved by the new negotiation proposals diplomatic sources indicate will be placed before Premier Mohammed Mossadegh of Iran.

Indications are that the Western powers are prepared to make what some diplomats consider substantial concessions, and to offer financial inducements to Mossadegh if he agrees to enter into negotiations on what American and British officials consider reasonable terms.

The feeling of pessimism stemmed from the 3½-hour meeting between American Ambassador Loy W. Henderson and the chief British diplomat in Tehran, George Middleton, with Mossadegh Wednesday.

They appeared glum as they emerged from the conference, which was to explore various approaches to the Anglo-Iranian settlement, and to test the Premier's reaction to the proposals which Washington and London expect to make.

J. R. Robertson Succumbs at Shreveport

J. R. Robertson, aged 65, a former resident of Hempstead, died Wednesday in a Shreveport Hospital.

He is survived by two daughters Mrs. Gladys Fields of Hope, Mrs. Vera Moran of Bosier City, La. a son, T-Sgt. Austin Robertson of Randolph Field, Texas, two brothers, Jess and Jim Robertson of Okolona, four sisters, Mrs. Mattie Clark of El Dorado, Mrs. Bessie McCauley, Mrs. Ruth Howard of Okolona and Mrs. Stella Jones of Cooter, Mo.

Hurricane Moves Slowly Toward Land

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane warnings were hoisted along a 250 mile stretch of Atlantic coastline between Fernandina, Fla., and Georgetown, S. C., today for a dangerous Atlantic hurricane moving slowly toward land.

The center of the savage tropical disturbance was located about 110 miles east of St. Augustine, Fla., at 9 a. m. EST.

It was moving slowly northwestward at about 10 miles per hour, packing winds of 80 to 90 miles per hour.

The advisory warned that "this is an emergency" and said tersely:

"All interests on the Georgia and South Carolina coasts should take immediate hurricane precautions."

The advisory pinpointed this season's first Atlantic hurricane near latitude 29.8 north and longitude 79.6 west and said it was attended by a small area of hurricane force winds around the center and a rather wide area of gales.

Storm warnings remained up from Jacksonville, Fla., to Wilmington, N. C.

Grady Norton, chief storm forecaster at the Miami weather bureau, said it probably would be another 12 hours before the hurricane center hit land if it continued the present course.

Texas City Victims Appeal to High Court

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Supreme Court has been asked to see that the victims of the Texas City, Tex., disaster get paid for the losses they suffered.

The high court yesterday was asked to reinstate damage awards totaling 240 million dollars, growing out of 273 legal actions by 8,485 claimants.

A Houston, Tex., U. S. District Court first ruled that the government was liable to the claims because a nitrate laden vessel that exploded, touching off a series of other blasts, was in government service. Later, the U. S. Circuit Court in New Orleans overruled the decision.

More than 500 persons were killed, some 3,000 injured, and an estimated 50 million dollar property damage was caused by the explosions and fires.

200 Miles Added to Highway System; Protests 4-Lane Road to Little Rock Plant

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Highway commission opened $556,852 in bids on eight projects here today but delayed until this afternoon an expected $92,919 for surfacing an eight graders by brand name rather than specifications.

Included in the bids was one of $92,919 for surfacin an eight mile stretch between Huntsville and Forum in Madison County. Federal engineers have refused to provide U.S. aid on the project on grounds another route would be less costly and more desirable.

The apparent low bid on the job was submitted by McClinton Brothers Construction Co. of Fayetteville.

Opening of bids on motor graders is expected later today. The commission recently advertised for bids on three makes, dropping its former practice of drawing specifications which must be met and allowing bids on any make that conforms.

Three firms have submitted bids on other makes of graders, and Atty. Gen. Ike Murry hais been asked for an opinion on whether the new method of advertising by brand names is legal.

The request came from Pulaski County Rep. Jim Coates, Jr. Deputy Auditor B. E. Friday says he will not pay for any graders bought under the process if Murry says it is illegal.

During this morning's meeting Chief Engineer Alf Johnson told the commission that more than 200 department cars and trucks have been driven better than 100,000 miles. Three have more than 300,000 miles on them, he said.

He said the department needs 50 new pickup trucks and a number of station wagons.

Reports of opposition to efforts to have the commission build — with federal help — a four lane access highway to the projected jet bomber base at Jacksonville also was heard but the move was not brought before the commission this morning.

At Camden, publisher Walter Hussman said he had telegraphed the commission and federal engineer F. R. Oliver opposing the plan.

"Within the past year Mr. Oliver and the Highway Department rejected an identical proposal here after a request by the U.S. Navy," Hussman said. The Navy asked for a four lane highway to its ammuntition depot at Camden where a $50 million expansion program is under way.

Hussman said the proposed jet bomber base already has federal and state highway access routes but tht only one federal highway provides access to the ammunition depot from areas west of the Ouachita River.

Projects on which bids were opened today and apparent low biders:

Nevada County — 6 miles gravel base course and double bituminous surface treatment on Prescott-Little Missouri River bottoms surfacing road, Highway 19 Interstate Construction Co., Pine Bluff, $52,670.16.

White and Jackson — 8.25 miles crushed stone base course and double bituminous surface treatment on Bradford-Denmark surfacing road, Highway 87, Ben M. Hogan & Co., Little Rock, $77,650.95.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Highway Commission, waving aside Highway Department recommendations and a shortage of maintenance funds, yesterday added 200 miles of county roads to the state highway system.

The list of roads, prepared by districts, was approved on a single motion and without a dissenting vote.

In other actions, the busy outgoing Commission:

1. Awarded six contracts for secondary road projects; rejected two others as too high; put off paving Highway 67-70 between Little Rock and Benton for 1952, and received a list of six "absolute must" projects for this year.

2. Purchased 13 motor graders from a total of six bidders and without following its controversial "name brand" invitation for the equipment. Thirty automobiles for the Highway Department also were purchased.

Highway Department eninceers opposed addition of the new roads to the system, insisting in a report to the Commission that traffic on the roads did not justify the move. The report added that most of the roads were in very poor condition.

In the Hope District new roads added:

Springhill to highway 29, 2 miles.

Highway 27 to Narrows Dam, 7 miles.

Cut-off between Highway 29 and Highway 4 through industrial section of Southwest Proving Grounds at Hope, 4 miles.

Antoine to Highway 19, five miles.

Snyder to Head Bank Conference

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Snyder will lead the U. S. delegation to 7th annual meeting of the World Bank and International Monetary Fund beginning Sept. 2 in Mexico City.

At a news conference yesterday Snyder said both organizations are doing "fine jobs" toward helping develop world resources and trade, and smoothing out international currency problems.

Snyder also said the U. S. position of gold is "unchanged." This country has been buying and selling gold at $35 an ounce, setting the world price for gold. Some gold producing nations have urged that the U. S. raise the price.

FISH YARN

TOKYO (AP) — This is a bearish sort of fish story:

Kyodo news service says fishermen opened a 165 pound shark off the Southern Japanese coast —and found a wild bear inside. The agency added that groups of hungry wild bears have been swimming off shore hunting for food.

Zealanders Bound for U. S. Brave Storms

BOSTON (AP) — A Harvard University-bound New Zealand physician and his family— "down to our last can of bully beef" — have arrived in Peru aboard their 48-foot ketch after battling the stormy Pacific on an 11-week voyage.

Dr. R. A. Davis wrote Harvard officials in a letter received yesterday that hurricane-force winds lashed the vessel on its 6,750-mile trip from Wellington, New Zealand.

The Miru, with Davis, 34, his wife Lydia and their sons, John, 10, and Timothy, 5, and two New Zealand crewmen aboard, limped into Callao, Peru, last Monday.

After her fuel oil tanks ran dry, the craft crawled into port with her auxiliary engine running jerkily on kerosene from the galley stove. Her sails were torn in the long bout with raging winds.

Davis, who will do graduate work at the Harvard School of Public Health, will head the ketch toward Boston on her final 3,000 mile leg tomorrow.

The couple wrote:

"It was a rough trip for us with much wetness, cold and rearing weather to cope with, but we arrived safely. The journey from now on along the coast of South America through the Panama Canal and up the East Coast will be a joy ride, but the Caribbean may sting us as a nasty one."

Davis gained sailing experience while ministering to 16,000 persons via his vessel when medical officer of the Cook Islands, which stretch 1,000 miles across the South Pacific between Tahiti and New Zealand.

Local Seaman Now in Korean Area

Kenneth Guthrie, seaman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil F. Guthrie of 312 East 75th St. Hope is serving in the Far East on the Staff, Commander Fleet Air Wing 6.

Fleet Air Wing 6 has been operating in the Far East since it was commissioned on Aug. 4, 1950. The staff is composed of about 150 officers and men.

Squadrons under the Wing's command, which include units of the Royal Air Force, are performing day and night search and reconnaissance missions in support of the United Nations Forces in Korea and adjacent areas.

Chapman May Enter Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) —Secretary of the Interior Chapman says he may take a leave of absence without pay to campaign for Gov. Adlai Stevenson, Democratic presidential nominee.

He told a reporter yesterday he has not quite made up his mind. In the meantime, Chapman heads west today to line up his first speaking tour.

Four years ago, Chapman said, he took leave without pay from his post as undersecretary to work full time in President Truman's election campaign.

Six Louisiana Electors Protest Tidelands Stand

NEW ORLEANS (AP) —Six of Louisiana's 10 Democratic presidential electors have resigned in protest to Gov. Adlai Stevenson's stand against state ownership of rich oil-bearing tidelands.

The four remaining electors have indicated they have no intentions of belting. Only one of the resigned electors has been replaced as yet.

In the latest revolt, Neville Levy of New Orleans and Edward V. Pavy of Opelousas yesterday joined four other electors who had previously resigned.

Gov. Stevenson declared recently that he agreed with President Truman's veto of a bill that would have given the states title to the tidelands.

Levy, in his letter of resignation, asserted:

". . . There comes a time when there can be no further compromise and that period has now been reached.

"I have been a lifelong Democrat, and I intend to remain a Democrat, but I cannot place a political party above the principle of state soverignty as written into the Constitution of the United States."

Pavy advised N. B. Carstarphen of Shreveport, chairman of the State Democratic Central Committee, that he was resigning and said:

"I feel the best interest of the people of our country as a whole— and the state of Louisiana in particular — will not be served by the election of Gov. Stevenson."

Stressing the financial loss that Louisiana, Texas, and California might suffer if the federal government retains control of the offshore lands, Pavy estimated Louisiana's income from tideland oil royalties would earn the state an estimated 30 million dollars a year.

The electors' revolt is part of the political turmoil in Louisiana that prompted Gov. Robert Kennon to declare yesterday:

"For all practical purposes Louisiana now has a two-party status as far as the November election is concerned. Neither party can safely mark Louisiana in its column."

Louisiana last went Republican in 1876.

Many Louisiana and Southern Democrats oppose the national Democratic platform, particularly its stand on tidelands and its plank that calls for federal action in the field of civil rights.

This group contends the civil rights problem is one for the states to solve.

To take advantage of this split in Democratic ranks, Louisiana Republicans have pledged an intensive campaign to capture votes of dissatisfied Democrats and independent voters for Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, Republican presidential nominee.

Eisenhower has advocated state ownership of the tidelands and allowing the states to settle the civil rights problem.

Two Newsboys Back From Trip to Florida

Its back to work today for two Hope Star newsboys who returned yesterday from a trip to Florida with A. H. Washburn, publisher of The Star. Mr. Washburn remained in Florida where he is visiting his father, W. O. Washburn, at Sarasota.

The youngsters, Charles Ray Tittle and Ernest Whitten, were gone six days. They returned by plane leaving Tampa at 10:15 a.m. yesterday and arriving in Texarkana at 3:10 p.m. the same day. They made stops at New Orleans and Dallas.

Hospital Built by Dr. Cannon 37 Years Ago

After thirty seven years of ser[illegible] vice to the sick people of [illegible] community, thirty-two years [illegible] which have been in the present building, the Josephine Hospital will be closed on September [illegible] 1952, it was announced today by Dr. Jim McKenzie.

The hospital has been kept [illegible] about a year longer than was planned, in the hope that a new community hospital would be [illegible] construction by this time.

However, due to the physical condition of the present property [illegible] was not thought wise to try [illegible] operate as a hospital until a community hospital could be built.

Dr. McKenzie said at the present time it does not seem probable that construction on a new hospital can be begun before July, [illegible] and it would require almost two years for the construction. It is impractical to make the repairs that would be necessary if the Josephine Hospital is to be kept open for another four years, the Doctor continued.

The closing of this hospital will throw an added burden on the other two hospitals in Hope, which are already overcrowded at times.

Josephine Hospital was built by Dr. G. E. Cannon, and owned and operated by him until July, [illegible] when it was sold to Dr. Jim McKenzie who has operated it [illegible] the present time. Dr. McKenzie will continue to maintain his [illegible] in the hospital building, and [illegible] September first will take his [illegible] pital patients to the Bra[illegible] eral Hospital.

A committee, named by [illegible] C. Cook, to plan a new county [illegible] pital, in a series of meetings [illegible] decided the County couldn't [illegible] with local funds alone, a hospital large enough to take care of [illegible] needs of this section.

As a result an effort is being made to secure federal aid [illegible] there is some hope that funds [illegible] be made available, possibly [illegible] year. In that event construction [illegible] a new County Hospital will [illegible] immediately.

Under the present setup all federal aid money allotted to Arkansas for the next two or [illegible] years has been channeled to [illegible] University Hospital at Little Rock.

If no new federal funds are available construction will [illegible] ly not be started before [illegible] the local project.

To Sing at Stock Show Here

Little Jimmy Dickens, diminutive singing star of the 'Grand Ole Opry' and WSM, TV programs at Nashville, Tenn. will appear in person at Third Dist. Livestock Show Tuesday Sept. 23, for one performance. He is to appear on the stage of the Coliseum with his "Country Boys". This unit has been acclaimed by both critics and press as one of the top attractions of the folk-world, now appearing throughout the country.

Dickens is one of the most lovable personalities seen on any American stage today. He probably has the loudest voice of any man his size anywhere. Born in Bolt, Virginia, a very small town in the mining community near Beckley. Jimmy took his guitar, big voice and familiar smile into radio at the early age of 15 and has now won nation-wide popularity.

Jimmy, who stands only four feet eleven inches, was reared on a farm and worked hard to climb the ladder of success. Today he is one of Columbia's Ace recording artists and a star of WSM 'Grand Ole Opry'. Jimmy is proud of his success in life but he remains the same old "country boy" he always was. He is fond of his friends, enjoys making new acquaintances and is proud of his fine outfit and gives credit to each member of his organization for his own ability as a preformer.

Other than singing Jimmy does not have many hobbies, but he does like hunting and fishing. One of the personal [illegible] of the little man with the [illegible] voice is to go to [illegible]
